Shimon 'Tap' Solved Gem Theft in '44, Probers Told

$68,000 Case Cited By Former Partner; Grunewald Called Go-Between on 'Hill'

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Testimony that Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon once told a business associate he broke the $68,000 Kent jewel robbery case in 1944 with the help of wire-tapping was given yesterday to the Senate District investigating subcommittee, according to Chairman Claude Pepper (D., Fla.).

Pepper told a press conference the testimony was given by William J. Nolan, of the Nolan (auto) Finance Co., a partner of Shimon in an Arlington used-car firm which they later sold.

Shimon made headlines for capturing a Washington dentist's wife in Mexico City and recovering the jewels from her—all after she had been acquitted by a jury here. After the Shimon capture, the woman, Mrs. Frances Dolmage, was convicted of perjury for having denied the theft.

Pepper said he was told Shimon's feat caused "red faces" in the Police Department. Pepper attributed to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent, a suspicion that Shimon broke the case by wire tapping.

Pepper said Nolan's testimony, in a closed door meeting, also quoted Shimon as having told of a number of visits to the Capitol to meet Henry Grunewald during the investigation in 1947 of Howard Hughes, millionaire plane maker, by the Senate War Investigating Committee headed by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.).

Pepper described Nolan's testimony as identifying Grunewald as intermediary between Shimon and the war committee. Senator Brewster said last night he has known Grunewald casually for 6 or 8 years, but that never to his knowledge did he receive any information from Grunewald that Grunewald obtained from Shimon.

Grunewald, who has an apartment at the Westchester, has been named as the missing witness whose testimony was wanted for the Federal grand jury until last Friday. At that time the grand jury hit the deadline fixed by the statute of limitations for any wire-tapping violation connected with the Hughes inquiry. The deadline was passed without an indictment. Pepper has said police officers have testified they helped Shimon tap Hughes' wires during the 1947 Senate probe of Hughes' wartime plane contracts.

Grunewald formerly had an office in the Munsey Building, but moved to a suite in the Washington Hotel. The hotel reported his of-

Commuters' Rail Fare Hike Sought

The 2300 commuters between Washington, Baltimore and Brunswick (Md.) points face fare increases averaging 16 percent on both the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads.

The higher fares—if approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Maryland Public Service Commission—would go into effect September 15.

Both lines cited operating losses on their commuter schedules.

The increase on the unlimited monthly ticket between Baltimore and Washington will be $4.95 on both lines—from $19.80 to $24.75.

Baltimore-Washington commuters also will be offered a monthly ticket on both lines good only Mondays through Fridays at $22.30.

A 12-trip weekly Baltimore-Washington ticket will cost $6.20 under the proposed new schedules, compared to the present $5.65 on both lines.

On the B. & O., an unlimited monthly ticket between Washington and Brunswick will cost $30.70 under the new schedule; a Monday-through-Friday monthly ticket, $27.65, and the weekly ticket, $7.70.

Union Again Asks Seizure Of Railroads

Spokesman for 300,000 rail workers asked President Truman anew yesterday to seize the railroads to avert a threatened Nation-wide strike after union-management White House peace meetings ended in stalemate.

The request was made by President W. Park Kennedy of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and President Roy O. Hughes of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors.

They acted after a 2-hour and 45-minute meeting, presided over by Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, failed to produce an acceptable formula for ending the 17-month-old contract dispute.

Kennedy and Hughes said "there is no point in continuing the White House talks because the railroad presidents have shown no interest in settling this controversy and have not attended the conferences."

They accused the carriers of "taking advantage of the international situation" to take a "defiant, high-handed attitude" invites trouble and inevitably will cause it unless the dispute is settled at once.

The union representatives, who asked Mr. Truman to seize the railroads last week with a warning that their members were considering wildcat strikes, seemed particularly bitter because the presidents of the lines are not conducting negotiations in person.

The White House, in announcing failure of the latest negotiating session, said only that both sides agreed to resume the talks if and when Steelman "can find a basis for negotiations." The negotiations have been going on at the Executive Mansion under his supervision for the past week.

The latest setback came on the heels of a late-hour meeting Monday night at which the unions had been prepared to demand that President Truman seize the roads or face a strike that could tie up shipment of supplies to the Korean war front.

Quota for District Estimated at 250, 1088 in Virginia, 737 in Maryland

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

An expected November draft call for 50,000 men will bring the Korean-crisis Selective Service total to 150,000, it was disclosed yesterday.

The 50,000 figure was given a House Appropriations subcommittee by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, boss of the draft, on August 1. The testimony has just been made public.

Since the District's quota in the first 100,000 was exactly 500, presumably its quota for November would be 250 men. But no State breakdown was available yesterday. In fact, Hershey told The Washington Post last night he won't actually get the Pentagon's order for the November draft call until September 1 or shortly afterwards.

Based on earlier quotas for Maryland and Virginia, an unofficial estimate shows Maryland probably would be called on for 737 draftees in November and Virginia for 1088. The first of Virginia's September quota will be called up the last of this week for actual induction, Richmond draft headquarters said yesterday.

Hershey revealed the expected November call while asking the Congressmen for a supplemental appropriation of $20,476,000 to gear up the draft machinery.

The general told the House members he was "here asking for money to induct 185,000 men." This was the original figure given him by the military chiefs, he explained, and covered the rest of fiscal 1950—to next June 30.

Representative Albert Thomas (D., Tex.) asked:

"Are you speaking with prophetic vision?"

"No sir. I am just warming up."

Then he said: "I expect a 50,000 call for November, which will leave me only 35,000 for the rest of the year," meaning the fiscal year, to reach the 185,000 total. The September and October inductions, previously announced, will total 100,000.

Last night Hershey told The Washington Post, however, that "you don't have to be a prophet to see that we're reunning at a rate of 50,000 a month."

But he said he just doesn't know if the military chiefs will keep to that rate, raise it or lower it.

Store Puts Quick Freeze on Avid Icebox Collector

A Chevy Chase, Md., woman who already has crowded four new refrigerators into her kitchen is considerably miffed at a store because it refused to deliver two more iceboxes.

A store executive explained it this way yesterday:

The woman went to two branches of the store and at each place ordered an icebox. Both arrived on the same delivery truck.

The driver saw four new iceboxes already in the woman's kitchen. He called his boss and explained the situation. "Bring 'em back," said the boss.

The woman called the store and complained bitterly that it was her own business if she wanted to buy new iceboxes.

"We recognized her type," said the executive. "A black-market patriot. We don't want customers like that."

Naktong Crossed At Several Points In New Threats To Vital Base

Tokyo (Wednesday), Aug. 16 (AP)—North Korean Communists today stabbed to within 9 miles of Taegu from the northwest and menaced the defenses of that key American base from two expanding bridgeheads across the Naktong River on the southwest.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson at Eighth Army headquarters reported a Red company held a hill 9 miles from Taegu, the provisional South Korean capital. The Reds were reported surrounded by troops of the United States First Cavalry Division.

This Communist unit was one of several that had made unopposed tank-supported crossings of the Naktong near Waegwan, 12 air miles northwest of Taegu. The North Koreans have massed some 60,000 troops west of the river in the Waegwan area for an expected all-out offensive to crack the United Nations defense.

General MacArthur's headquarters has said all the Red crossings on the Waegwan sector have been "contained."

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported the Reds have thrown a new bridgehead across the Naktong near Hyonpung, 14 air miles southwest of Taegu, and have 1500 troops on the east bank.

Whitehead said the bridgehead, which rammed a wedge between the First Cavalry and the United States Twenty-fourth Division, was established Monday. Behind this new thrust, he said, the Reds have one—perhaps two—divisions on the west bank.

Changnyong Bridgehead Expanded

Fifteen miles farther south the Reds expanded their Changnyong beachhead to positions 6 to 7 miles east of the Naktong as bitter and indecisive fighting with the Twenty-fourth Division went into its twelfth day. Associated Press Correspondent Jack MacBeth said the line was irregular in this battle southwest of Changnyong, 23 air miles southwest of Taegu. Some 12,000 Reds in the bridgehead made gains up to 3 miles in some sectors, particularly in the south where an American battalion was pushed back.

[The United Press reported Communist troops at Angang-ni, 26 miles east of Taegu in another threat. A Fifth Air Force spokesman said fighters and bombers blasted North Korean troops and tanks late yesterday at Angang-ni which is on the northern road between Taegu and Pohang. The announcement was the first official word that large Red forces had broken through the South Korean lines southwest of Pohang.—Editor's note.]

The North Koreans cracked through the Twenty-fourth in battalion strength, about 800 men. This force chewed into the infantry positions in a desperate attempt to link up with guerillas who had infiltrated the American lines.

The surging Communists penetrated to a depth of 7 miles in a pounding assault under a blistering sun. The Red break was considered "serious" by U. S. officers, but one staff man said:

"We are still confident we can push the Gooks back across the river but it will take time."

Stassen Asks Blunt Warning To Russians

Harold E. Stassen last night said Russia should be notified that war will be carried directly to her soil if "Communist imperialist forces" launch further aggression anywhere in the world.

He said this should be done by congressional resolution and petition to the United Nations General Assembly.

Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and candidate for the GOP Presidential nomination in 1948, called for sweeping foreign and domestic changes in policy in a speech delivered over CBS. The speech was entitled "Reaping the Red Whirlwind."

He said the United States clearly cannot permit non-Communist nations to be picked off one at a time. But he added that if Moscow follows up the Korean attack with Red satellite aggressions elsewhere and if the United States attempts to meet the attacks where they occur, its armed strength will be dissipated at distant points of the world.

"Do not these two alternative facts mean," he asked, "that it must be American policy that if further aggressions occur at any

House Unit Seeks Drastic Cut In D. C. Civil Defense Request

The District Appropriations Subcommittee has decided to slash to $30,000 the District's request for $290,000 to get civil defense started here.

This was learned yesterday as hearings were made public on the Commissioners' request for the money in a supplemental appropriations bill.

The hearings were full of highly critical comments by the House members of civil defense plans as outlined by Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young and Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes 3d, his assistant.

The $30,000 figure was Young's original estimate. Actually, he said, the cost of any effective program probably will be "way in excess" of $290,000.

General Young explained the city had 85 air raid sirens in World War II but that the $290,000 included only $20,000 for purchase of three or four to start with. The 85 were disposed of after the war.

Representative Joe E. Bates (D., Ky.), the subcommittee chairman, said:

"I guess I am a little old-fashioned. Why could we not use church bells and fire sirens that we already have, to warn the public?"

Hayes said "we will probably use everything we can get" but he added that the church bells and existing sirens wouldn't do alone.

Hayes explained $15,000 was needed to survey buildings in the District, to determine how many and which ones could offer protection in case of an A-bomb. Bates wanted to know why informa-

Russia Equips Reds as Fast as We Strip Them

On the Masan Front, Korea (Wednesday), Aug. 16 (U.P.).—New Soviet-manufactured war equipment is flowing to the North Koreans as fast as the Americans and South Koreans can destroy it, Intelligence officers said today.

They said although the war has raged for seven weeks over a large area of Korea, new jeeps and motorcycles have been captured with speedometer readings of only 100 or 200 miles, indicating a steady flow of equipment to the front.

(Jacob A. Malik, chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, said in the Security Council last week that the only Russians arms used by the North Koreans were those "sold" to them before the Soviet armed forces evacuated the country in December, 1948.)

Ammunition captured during the last week's American advance on this southern front bore stenciled dates as recent as June, 1950.

The guns, tanks and other weapons are not of recent design and some guns were designed as far back as 1930.

Superforts Put To Tactical Use In Greatest Blow Since Normandy

Tokyo (Wednesday), Aug. 16 (U.P.)—Ninety-six B-29 Superfortresses rained 960 tons of bombs on 40,000 Communist troops today in a devastating raid against the North Korean buildup for an attack on Taegu.

The raid against the troops on the west bank of the Naktong River was the biggest airstrike of its kind in direct support of ground forces since the Normandy invasion in 1944.

The United States bombers dropped a total of 3800 bombs, weighing 500 pounds each.

All Drops Visual

They struck the enemy from as low as 5000 feet in an attempt to cripple the Red troop concentrations on the front near Taegu, the temporary South Korean capital.

The Superforts went at their job carefully, with each plane assigned specific targets. All the bombs were dropped by visual sighting, not by instrument.

Flying from south to north in formations of 10 planes each at 10-minute intervals, each squadron hit a different target in the rectangle which covered 24½ square miles.

Then, as the last Superfort turned for home high-speed fighter planes swooped in low to bomb and strafe anything still able to move.

10 Squadrons Involved

An Air Force spokesman who disclosed the raid said all the bombs were fused to explode instantly upon hitting the targets.

"Today's operation was equivalent to the blast effect of more than 30,000 rounds of heavy artillery," the spokesman said.

American troops in the area had been alerted in advance to withdraw from any sectors which might be hit by the blasts.

The Allied ground forces did not attempt to cross the river in force at once, and it was expected that any forays to the west bank would be made by reconnaisance parties only.

The Superfortresses came from five groups based on Japan and Okinawa. There were 10 squadrons in the raiding party.

They struck at altitudes ranging from 5000 to 10,000 feet which were the altitudes of the first fully effective Superfort strikes against Tokyo in World War II.

40 Bombs Per Plane

The first groups across dropped their 40 bombs per plane on aiming points at the north end of the rectangle. As the raid progressed each group hit farther south until the last ones were pounding the Reds just north and

Key Rail Tunnel In North Korea Blasted by Raiders

A United States naval shore raiding party has blocked enemy rail traffic on the North Korean east coast by blasting a tunnel at Chongjin, a Pentagon spokesman said yesterday.

The successful completion of the raid was reported to the Pentagon by General MacArthur's headquarters. Few details were given.

The raiding party apparently was put ashore by Seventh Fleet ships. The tunnel was blasted with 2000 pounds of TNT. The raiders apparently returned to their ships without losses.

An Army spokesman said the tunnel is about 120 miles south of Vladivostok and about 275 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

Reynolds' Body Found 300 Feet From His Goal

Lone Pine, Calif., Aug. 15 (AP). The body of 17-year-old Christopher Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir and only son of Singer Libby Holman, was found today on Mt. Whitney at a spot 300 feet from the summit of the Nation's highest mountain.

The body was lowered to the 11,500-foot level by ropes. There it must rest until a sheriff's posse can remove it from the rugged slopes Wednesday.

Shortly before word of the discovery was received here, an informant said the body of the second youth to die in the ill-fated climb was found by the Sierra Club, veteran mountain hikers.

Steven Wasserman, also 17 and Reynold's companion on the expedition which started August 6 was found dead Sunday.

Rule for Marriage

Save Shouting for Fire Alarms, Not for Tiffs, Says Adventist

A happily married Seventh-day Adventist elder last night gave the annual camp meeting of the SDA Potomac Conference his 17 rules for a successful marriage.

"Never shout at one another unless the house is on fire," Elder Denton E. Bock, president of the SDA Theological Seminary, stated.

His wife of more than 30 years was in the audience of almost 3000 who heard him relay these 16 other rules in SDA's Columbia Hall in Takoma Park.

"Cultivate absolute unselfishness.

"Never both be angry at once.

"Let each one strive to yield most often to the wishes of the other.

"Let self-denial be the daily practice of each.

"Never find fault unless the fault is certain and always speak lovingly.

"Neglect the whole world rather than one another.

"Never allow a request to be repeated.

"Never make a remark at the expense of one another.

"Never part for a day without loving words to think of during absence.

"Never let the sun go down upon anger or grievance.

"Never meet without a loving welcome.

"Never forget the happy hours of early love.

"Never sigh over what might have been; make the best of what is.

"Never forget that marriage is ordained by God and that His blessing alone can make it successful, and

"Never be contented till you know you are both walking in the same narrow way."

At a later service, Elder Robert L. Boothby, pastor of the Capitol Memorial Church in Washington, urged the audience to make thorough preparation "in this threatening atomic age" for the coming of Jesus Christ to earth the second time.

The 10-day encampment will continue today with additional department reports scheduled at a 9:30 a. m. conference.

Seckinger Tells Forum

Mineral Depletion of Soils Shares Blame for Diseases

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, District Health Officer, yesterday placed part of the blame for chronic diseases on mineral-depleted soils.

Through unchecked erosion, the health officer said, the soil loses mineral elements essential to vigorous plant growth. The end result thus menaces human health, particularly increasing the problems of degenerative diseases, he said.

Dr. Seckinger expressed his views at Spartanburg, S. C., in a panel discussion on water use and management. The meeting was sponsored by the Soil Conservation Service, in that city.

The District Health Officer, a member of the Interstate Commission, Potomac River Basin, described the Potomac as a "sick river," comparable to many rivers beset by industrial wastes, sewage wastes, sewage disposal, and the weight of soil erosion.

Soil erosion, he said, menaces health not only by depleting the soil of its minerals but by adding to the pollution of the streams. As a result of this mineral depletion, plants cannot pick up the minerals which humans get through eating the plants.

Appearing on the program with Dr. Seckinger were representatives of various Government and industrial groups concerned with water problems. The speakers and guests were welcomed by Dr. T. S. Buie, regional director, and H. G. Edwards, chief of the regional water conservation division, United States Soil Conservation Service.

Far-Flung Empire Rejoices

Six-Pound Daughter Is Born To Britain's Princess Elizabeth

London, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth, heiress to the British throne, gave birth to her second child, a six-pound baby girl, at 11:50 a. m. (6:50 a. m. EDT) today.

The British Empire, beset by cares of the last war and fears of a new one, forgot them all in a day of wild rejoicing.

"Just what we wanted," exulted the Duke of Edinburgh. "I hope she'll be just like Elizabeth." He ordered champagne all around in Clarence House.

Sixty-two guns boomed out from the outer defense of the Tower of London, heralding the birth of the Princess who will be third in line for the throne, after her older brother, Prince Charles, born November 14, 1948, in Buckingham Palace.

Princess Elizabeth, 24, risked a difficult if not dangerous confinement so her "lonely" first son would have a playmate and the throne would be secure.

LT. COL. C. B. SMITH,
. . . his leadership inspired men

Lieut. Col. Charles B. Smith, 34, who was stationed here from 1946 to 1949, has been awarded the Silver Star fer heroism in Korea, General MacArthur's headquarters announced yesterday.

Smith, a battalion commander in the Twenty-first Infantry Regiment, was cited for an action near Osan when some 32 enemy tanks broke through defensive positions and overran a field artillery battery.

"Smith directed the defense which repelled repeated Red infantry attacks. Later, with his unit encircled by the enemy, Smith's leadership inspired his men to hold until their ammunition was exhausted, inflicting heavy Red casualties before withdrawing to new positions."

Smith was previously in the news as commander of the first unit of United States troops to arrive in Taejon from Pusan.

A graduate of West Point class of 1939, Smith served in the Pacific during World War II. He previously had won the Bronze Star and Soldiers Medal. He is a native of Lambertville, N. J.

Smith was stationed in intelligence headquarters here from January, 1949 to June, 1949. His home was at 3426 South Stafford st., Arlington. His wife and two children went to Japan when he was transferred there in 1949.

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate's party-line row over foreign policy, which had threatened to blow sky high any semblance of bipartisan accord, suddenly quieted yesterday after GOP disavowals of any partisan intent.

A speech by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.) paved the way for the tacit understanding to "cease firing."

Lodge, one of the signers of a GOP foreign policy manifesto that touched off the ruckus, said the statement was meant to be "constructive" and not "political" and accused Democrats of "not reading it through."

In the same breath he called for an all-out preparedness effort that would know no party line. He urged Mr. Truman to go stronger on that tack than he has in the past, namely:

"That the President declare the present struggle (in Korea) to be one for our existence, that it is not just a police action; that it is a struggle not only for the survival of the United States, but a struggle for the whole free world. The President has not said that . . ."

He later told newsmen a determined rearmament effort by the United States and her free world allies "can clean this thing up" in three or four years instead of 15 to 25, but the United States must not "blow cold" again after the Korean campaign is over.

Lodge insisted the GOP manifesto, even though it went back into the past to "pick out a few errors," was never intended as a political document. Saying the statement never used the word "Democrat," he implied that Republicans themselves helped contribute to some of the "errors" complained of.

"I think it is utterly pernicious to attempt to play politics with foreign policy at any time, and particularly so when the Nation is in danger," Lodge told the Senate. "If there is anything I profoundly believe, it is that politics must cease at the water's edge."

But Lodge reserved the right to criticize specific actions and programs.

"To be bipartisan about foreign policy does not mean one becomes a 'Yes man'," he said.

Democratic leaders, who had planned a second day's attack on the Republican foreign policy statement as a political blow to bipartisan cooperation, called off the counterattack after the Lodge speech.

"It looked to me like the olive branch," said Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.). McMahon, who on Monday blasted the GOP authors of the statement as "masters of hindsight," said he "saw nothing to reply to."

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), canceled plans for a speech tearing into the GOP statement. Lucas said he thought Lodge "half apologized" for the statement.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (R., N. Mex.), chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, said he didn't think Democrats should push the argument any further after the Lodge speech, saying it would only widen the cleavage on foreign policy.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), one of the signers of the GOP statement, said he agreed with Lodge that "we had no purpose whatsoever of breaking down bipartisan support, but 'bipartisan' doesn't mean rubber stamping."

Other signers of the GOP statement, caling for speedy correction of our military weakness, and criticizing past mistakes, were Senators Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa).

Lodge told the Senate he was surprised at the "tone" of the Democratic kickbacks.

"Of course the statement did make a few criticisms of things which had happened in the past, but it did not make them in any spirit of digging up old scandals; it did so solely with a view to learning from the errors of the past, so that we would be more accurately guided in the future."

To be bipartisan on foreign policy certainly doesn't mean to "applaud when mistakes are made," Lodge continued.

"On the contrary, it means that errors are recognized," he said. "It means, of course, that a majority Senator should recognize the errors made by the majority, and that a minority Senator should not point out an error merely because he is in the minority."

General's Son Graduated as Navy Recruit

The Navy's Air Reserve Recruit Training Program had the pleasure last night of graduating the son of an Army general—a two-star general at that, and commander of the Washington Military District to boot.

Further, it was the Army man—Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren—who touted the Navy's program as something the Army just doesn't have.

Herren's standing at the graduation exercises was not as Military District commander, however. He was simply the father of 17-year-old Thomas, jr., one of 85 boys who completed eight weeks of training at the Anacostia Naval Air Station.

But what was a general's son doing on the grounds of a Navy station?

"Unification," explained the general.

"Good idea, too," Herren said. "The Navy gives the boys eight weeks on base, getting training that can be useful. It shows them what the Navy has to give—before the others put in their bid."

The general's son didn't think it was too bad an idea, either. But now he goes on to a prep school. Then, if he can make it, West Point.

The boys had five weeks of classroom training, then three weeks of work in the base shops. They were "berthed and messed aboard the station."

It all ended last night with a parade, presentation of certificates and a dance.

As "recruits" in the Organized Navy Reserve, they need only two weekend drill periods to move up to the next rating— airmen or seamen "apprentices."

Road From Gothic Line to D. C. Is Paved With 'Self-Respect'

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

A long road, for one of war's children, is that from Italy's Gothic line and the falling bombs to sessions with Betty Grable, Bob Hope and Vice President Barkley.

Sixteen-year-old Carlo Diani, president of the Boys' Republic of Italy, was highballing down that road yesterday when he called on the Veep at the Capitol and made him an honorary member of the "Republic."

Carlo is one of Italy's "war children" who made up one of the great tragedies of the Italian war . . . children cast on their own when their families were killed or lost from them through bombing. He is one of those children whose story has been told in several motion pictures out of Italy.

Starred in Movie

In fact, Carlo starred in his own story in one Academy-Award-winning documentary, "A Chance to Live," made by March of Time in Italy.

Carlo was a boy of 10 or so when bombing of his home north of Florence left the family house destroyed and himself and young sister alone in the world.

They hitched a ride south, lived hand to mouth . . . for months getting their food where and how they could. Who has been in Italy knows too well these children.

Yesterday . . . well, you never saw a healthier-looking boy than Carlo Diani, or talked with a more pleasant one.

Likened to Boys Town

What lay between was this organization of Boys Republic at Santa Marinella, 40 miles north of Rome.

It operates on the self-government, rehabilitating concept of the Nebraska Boys' Town. Its founder is an Irish priest who went to Italy 20 years ago from Dublin and, in his 37 years of life, has compressed an incredible amount of activity.

Monsignor John Patrick Carroll-Abbing, here from Italy, was in the party that called on the Vice President yesterday. Also along was personable Rosalie Rubino, executive director of the Boys' Republic of Italy, Inc., the agency in New York which raises funds to support the Italian boys' towns.

What did Monsignor Carroll think was the secret of making war's children into such boys as Carlo has become?

"Self-respect," he said. "Give a boy back his self-respect."

You envisioned Carlo fleeing south from the Gothic line. Then you thought of this trip, six years later, across the United States. In Hollywood, said the monsignor, movie stars went out of their way to talk with Carlo. And n[illegible]e Vice President of the [illegible] States was holding up his ha[illegible] showing Carlo his ring and sa[illegible] "My ring came from your home, Florence. . . ."

It was a long road from the Gothic line and it seemed like a miracle, which it wasn't. It was hard work and the philosophy:

Indonesia Now Unitary State; Reds Hit Change

Jakarta, Indonesia, Aug. 15 (AP). Indonesia underwent a constitutional face-lifting today, amid angry cries from the Communist-led labor bloc.

A Republic of Indonesia—replacing the United States of Indonesia on August 17 — was proclaimed by President Soekarno, after the U. S. I. Parliament's approval of a draft constitution. Soekarno then flew to the former rebel capital of Jogjakarta to preside over the dissolution of the old republic, which led the anti-Dutch revolt.

Dissatisfied with the switch, the Red-led Federation of Labor Unions proclaimed August 17 "a day of mourning," asserting that the new unitary state remains "controlled by Dutch and other foreign capitalistic interests."

Boston Joins 'Cold War' Against Russ Crabmeat

Boston, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The cold war against Russian crabmeat spread to this "home of the cod" today as Boston longshoremen joined New York stevedores in refusing to unload the food from a British liner.

Daniel Donovan, international vice president of the AFL longshoremen, said the $250,000 worth of crabmeat due here Wednesday "will have to go back to Russia."

Army, Navy Union Opens Parley Today

More than 300 members of the Army and Navy Union of the United States of America, the country's oldest veterans' organization, arrived in Washington yesterday for the annual national encampment.

The first formal session of the encampment will be held at the Washington Hotel at noon today with an address by National Commander Col. Joseph Stehlin of Miami Beach, Fla.

The Department of the Potomac, headed by Comdr. George M. Bladen, will act as host to the encampment.

Memorial services will be held at National Cemetery at noon Friday.

Hospital Benefit Dance

A dance to benefit the Prince Georges General Hospital will be held at 10 p. m. on September 23 at the Hall Brothers tobacco barn at Upper Marlboro, Md. It will be the seventh annual benefit dance staged by the Prince Georges General Hospital Guild.

U. S. to Unify Navy With Britain, Canada

40% of Red Shock Troops Wiped Out

By the United Press

The largest and most powerful naval fighting force the world has ever seen is being forged by the United States, Canada and Britain, officials said yesterday.

They referred to joint announcements yesterday by the United States Defense Department and the British Admiralty that a preliminary committee report, the first of three steps aimed at standardization of all phases of sea warfare, has been approved.

Staff discussions will open soon on 14 specific fields like anti-submarine warfare, naval air operations, communications, mine warfare, amphibious operations and logistics.

No Target Date Given

The final step will come when line officers from the naval staffs of the three nations sit down together for detailed studies of the problems of unification.

No target date was given by the Defense Department. Officials noted that the three navies cooperated closely in World War II and are doing so right now in the Korean war.

This would indicate working compromises, at least, have been reached and it should not be too long before the joint armada is a reality.

At the end of World War II the three navies totaled more than 1600 major vessels, plus uncounted hundreds of smaller craft. They included 37 battleships, some 150 aircraft carriers of all types and more than 650 destroyers. This is an indication of the tremendous power possible under the unification.

Political Leaders Approve

Political leaders of the three nations already have approved the program's objectives and now it is in the hands of the men who would fight a future sea war.

The releases here and in London said the first report was approved for the United States by Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, Lord Fraser, British First Sea Lord, and Vice Admiral H. T. V. Grant of the Royal Canadian Navy, signed for their respective nations.

Despite the expected close intermingling, the Defense Department emphasized that control by any one nation of its own forces is not impaired under the arrangement.

Tokyo, Aug. 15 (AP).—The shock divisions of the North Korean army—more than 50,000 foreign-trained officers and men—have been cut nearly in half by casualties, American intelligence officers estimated today.

They put the figure at "40 percent and up."

Total figures on Communist losses have not yet been brought up to date, General MacArthur's headquarters said. Other lesser divisions, guerillas and conscripts have had killed and wounded running into the thousands.

But the flower of the Korean Reds, more than six divisions, is known to have suffered the bloodiest losses.

The six foreign-trained divisions were the battering rams in every major battle since the beginning of the invasion.

They were trained by Chinese Communist commanders and probably by Russian officers, intelligence said.

Many of them were battle-taught through service with the Chinese Reds in their wars with the Nationalists. But intelligence said it had no evidence that any were in the Soviet armies during World War II. And no Chinese or Russian officers have been seen, dead or alive, on the battlefields in Korea. At the same time American officers pointed out that Soviet tactics and methods are seen everywhere; for example, "persuasion fire."

This is an artillery barrage laid down by Red artillery in the Reds' own rear. It is designed to keep Red units from breaking or even retreating under pressure of an attack. It was used unhesitatingly by Russian commanders on Russian infantry in the last war.

It was noted in use a few days ago in one of the Naktong River actions to keep a Korean unit from falling back. The Reds went back anyway, through their own barrage.

And in their handling of tanks and defense against American tanks, the Koreans are using methods forced in the fire of the battlefields of Europe.

India to Submit Korea Plan As Formal Proposal to U. N.

Lake Success, Aug. 15 (NYHT).—India today decided to submit as a formal proposition, probably on Thursday, its new idea to help the United Nations Security Council escape from the domination of Russia's council presidency during the rest of August.

Encouraged by preliminary signs of support for his plan, Indian delegate Sir Benegal N. Rau prepared officially to put before the council a resolution calling for assignment of a Korean study to a committee composed of the six non-permanent members of the council.

These countries—India, Ecuador, Egypt, Norway, Cuba and Yugoslavia—would take over all Korean business from the full council, conduct a study and return in several weeks a report for Korean peace, including a blueprint for a future united and independent Korea.

The designed effect would be to suspend Council meetings on Korea for the period of study, and by the time the report was ready the council presidency would have passed from Russian Delegate Jacob A. Malik to Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Great Britain.

France appeared to indorse the suggestion immediately, and Egypt and Yugoslavia were said to support it in principle. The United States and Britain, while not committing themselves, were not critical of the suggestion and were studying it today.

GIs Capture 'Little Cassino' But U.S. Fire Drives Them Off

By Stanley Swinton

With Twenty-fourth Infantry Regiment West of Haman, Aug. 15 (AP).—Negro infantrymen silently climbed a precipitous mountain in the dead of night, slipped behind North Korean positions and without a single casualty early today captured "Little Cassino."

It was high ground for which scores of Negro soldiers have fought bloodily during the past three days.

Then the confusion that so often marks this grim Asian war began.

Other American troops, not aware "Little Cassino" at last was ours, unleashed a mortar barrage of white phosporous and high explosives. One Negro infantryman was wounded.

An order came down from higher command to move down from the peak for a redisposition of positions. Angrily, the men under Company Comdr. Lieut. Gabriel Anselmo, of Portland, Oreg., withdrew.

Enemy Returns

Three hours later North Koreans were observed back at the picturesque Buddhist temple whose light had flickered eerily during the predawn hours a few yards below the Twenty-fourth Infantrymen's positions.

Navy planes came in and rocketed the temple.

"Little Cassino" was given its name by a veteran of the bitter fight for the Abbey of Monte Cassino in Italy, Maj. George (Little Butch) Donaho of Los Angeles.

Battalion Comdr. Lieut. Col. George R. Cole of Portland, Me., who fought with the Forty-fifth (Oklahoma) Division in Italy, agreed.

It was Cassino transplanted in miniature to the Korean mountains—a Buddhist temple instead of a Catholic abbey, but the same deep-dug rock positions from which tough North Korean fighting men popped up to cut down attacking infantry despite rakings by artillery and high explosives and the rocketings, strafing and flaming fire bombs of the United States Air Force.

'Worse Than Italy'

"We attacked day after day with heavy casualties but they were too damn well entrenched," said Maj. E. J. Carson of Quincy, Ill.

Then another Negro battalion was called in.

It jumped off Sunday morning, moving forward over the lower slopes of terraced rice fields. Close to their objective, the enemy raked them with small-arms and automatic-weapons fire.

With one company cut to pieces and others badly hit, the battalion was forced back.

"I keep thinking of the Appennines," said Cole. "Those mountains are all alike—all tough. But this is worse than Italy because of the scrubby little trees the enemy can hide in."

At dusk last night, Anselmo and his men moved out with another company in support.

"They slipped up behind in the night without the North Koreans even knowing they were there," said Lieut. Francis Thompson of Princeton, Ind., artillery liaison officer.

"In the dawn the enemy discovered them and threw up a smoke screen. It mixed with the swirling fog."

Then Came Own Mortars

Then the mortar barrage began—American mortar fire, the men said.

"Yeah, we got white phosphorous and mortars this morning—our own," said Sergt. David Robinson of La Grange, N. C., bitterly.

After the mortaring came the orders to move down from the terrain won with American blood.

Hours later, Maj. Bowen Carter of Omaha, Nebr., who fought with the Seventy-eighth Division in Europe, reported that Navy airmen had been ordered in to attack the temple, which had been speedily reoccupied by the North Koreans.

But the bitter ground attack seemed to have had some purpose.

GIs Tricked By Blackfaced Reds Again

United States Twenty-fourth Infantry Regiment, Korea, Aug. 15 (AP).—Six North Korean guerillas slipped through the lines of American Nero infantry with a blackface dodge.

Maj. Horace Konaho of Los Angeles said a patrol reported seeing two men wearing American uniforms and with faces and hands blacked coming out of the hills with four North Koreans whose hands were held overhead. The group came over at a point where there were no troops.

The six passed through unchallenged. Later it was discovered no prisoners had been turned in.

That night a guerilla attack broke out near the village the six were seen entering.

Some days ago Twenty-fourth Regiment infantrymen found two dead North Koreans with faces blackened.

Blackface is a trick first used by the Germans against the Negro American Ninety-second Division in Italy.

Negro artillerymen on Monday captured two North Korean guerillas hiding in a hut less than 100 yards from American gun positions.

These two Communist infiltrators proved to be hungry, terror-stricken men.

"That ain't Superman," said one GI.

Few guerillas are captured. Tough and dangerous, they usually fight to the death. Alert Lieut. Lavon Smith, Austin, Tex., caught these two and a woman partisan who had concealed them.

One was a half-starved 16-year-old boy so weak he hardly could stand. The other was a bearded man of middle age. He had been wounded several days ago and had smeared tar over bullet wounds in his chest and left leg to stop the bleeding.

Win by Sept. 1, Leader Orders North Koreans

Tokyo, Aug. 15 (AP).—North Korean troops today fought under orders to drive United Nations forces from Korea by the end of the month.

The directive came from Kim Il Sung, North Korean Premier and commander-in-chief of the Red army.

In a special message issued in connection with the fifth anniversary of the Japanese surrender—an event that set the stage for the split between North and South Korea—the Communist official asserted:

"The longer this is delayed the stronger will become the United States and South Korean defenses."

Then he ordered his troops "to drive the United States and South Korean forces from Korea by the end of August."

The so-called "Liberation Day" also was marked by the Republic of Korea.

The North Koreans reportedly had set August 15 as the date they would take Taegu.

Attlee Says British Policy On Formosa Is Hands Off

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee was quoted today as saying Britain's part in the Korean war in no way binds her to defend Formosa against a possible Chinese Communist attack.

In a telegram to a Labor legislator who had called for assurance that this country would stay out of Formosan developments, Attlee said he "thinks" Red China understands the British position.

The Prime Minister's statement came as British diplomats in Washington sought to reconcile conflicting Anglo-American policies over the strategic island.

Laborite Fenner Brockway earlier this month wired Atlee: "War between the Chinese (Communist) government, which we have recognized, and America is a grave possibility. I pray you to make it clear that British support in Korea cannot be extended to action unauthorized by the United Nations against China."

Attlee's reply, dated August 9 and disclosed today:

"Thank you for your telegram about Formosa. We are of course well aware of the dangerous possibilities of the situation. We have made it quite clear that our action in Korea is in accordance with the Security Council resolution and is not concerned with Formosa. I think that is understood in China."

President Truman has ordered the American Seventh Fleet to ward off any attack on the island in a bid to localize the Korean war. But Red Chinese leaders have pledged to "liberate" Formosa anyway.

Tenfold Increase in Air Role Seen When Offensive Opens

An Air Force spokesman predicted yesterday that the payoff from United States air supremacy in Korea will increase tenfold when a ground offensive becomes possible.

He declined to express any opinion as to when such an offensive may come, however. It does not seem likely soon, since American and South Korean ground forces are still outnumbered and fighting to hold a base for a continuing buildup.

In response to a question, the spokesman said more American planes could be used in Korea. But he said the reason why more are not sent to the Far East is that shipping space that would be required to support their operations is needed more for other purposes.

During the last month (July 14 to August 14) the United States Air Force in the Far East flew a total of 12,519 sorties, of which 9615 were combat sorties and the remainder largely cargo flights. These operations occurred during the rainy season, which hampered air activity. The weather normally improves steadily from now until October, when it is excellent.

From July 14 to August 14, F-51 Mustang fighters of the Australian Air Force flew 464 sorties.

During July, Naval and Marine fliers also flew 1148 sorties.

Troops in Germany May Fraternize Now

Frankfurt, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The United States Army was directed today to start "co-mingling" with the Germans. This is a direct reversal of the "non-fraternization" policy ordered by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at the end of the war.

The Gallup Poll

Strong Public Favor for UMT, Arming of Germans, Japanese

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 15—One of the most urgent problems facing the United States and Western democracies is an acute shortage of trained fighting manpower in relation to Communist forces throughout Europe and Asia.

Three major steps to help overcome this serious shortage are given overwhelming support by the American public in a recent national opinion survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Each of the three steps would mean a major reversal of present policies.

1. Universal military training in the United States. The public vote for this has reached an eight-year-high, with a ratio greater than 4 to 1 in favor.

2. Building up a West German army. There has been sharp reversal of American public opinion on this idea since before Korea.

Whereas the weight of sentiment was against it in May, opinion today stands 4 to 1 in favor of helping the West Germans build up an army at least equal in size to the army of Soviet-controlled Eastern Germany.

3. Building up an army of Japanese soldiers. This idea, in a somewhat different form, has already been suggested in the United States Senate.

The idea of a Japanese army, to help augment our manpower in Asia in case of a Communist attack on Japan, has the approval of seven out of every ten American voters questioned in the Institute's survey.

Here are the detailed results of public opinion study on the manpower problem.

"In the future, do you think every able-bodied young man (who has not already been in the armed forces) should be required to take military or naval training for one year?"

January, 1948	65	24	11

The next question in the survey was:

"The Eastern Zone of Germany, which Russia controls, is now building up an army. Do you think the United States should or should not help the Western Germans now to build up an army of equal size?"

West German Army

The final question was:

"Do you think the United States should take steps now to build up an army of Japanese soldiers to be ready to fight the Communists if Japan is attacked?"

Davies Believes Russia Has More Than 100 A-Bombs

Houston, Aug. 15 (AP).—Former United States Ambassador to Russia Joseph E. Davies today said he believes Russia has more than 100 atomic bombs. Most estimates are below that figure.

Davies said manpower and resources behind the Iron Curtain are limitless.

"And Russia has engineers and scientists just as well qualified as any we have," he said. "They have many top scientists from Germany and they have developed many of their own. Personally, I would add considerable to any estimates we get of the material of war they have produced. They have 40,000 tanks, millions of trained men, thousands of planes."

9th Red Paper Banned In Western Germany

Frankfurt, Aug. 15 (AP).—Allied authorities cracked down again today on anti-Western propaganda in Germany by banning the Communist newspaper Volksstimme (People's Voice) in Stuttgart.

This was the ninth Communist newspaper banned by the Allies since August 3. Seven Communist newspapers still are being published in western Germany.

GPO Finds Atom Book Best Seller

The Government Printing Office has a new best seller in "The Effects of Atomic Weapons," Superintendent of Documents Roy Eastin predicted yesterday.

All 10,000 copies of the 456-page book were sold Monday, the first day of sale, he reported. The majority filled advance orders from libraries, mayors, civil defense officials and State governments.

Another printing of 15,000 copies has been ordered, Eastin said, with a hoped-for release date of August 23.

The book sells for $1.25.

One report, said many of the books were sold "to eager agents of Russia" and "little delegations of Russians and their yes-men." Eastin branded this an unadulterated lie."

Eastin predicted a sale of 50,000 copies, high for a Government publication, but nowhere near an all-time record.

"Infant Care" at 50 cents a copy has sold more than six million copies. Other big sellers: "Postage Stamps of the United States," 200,000 copies at 50 cents, and a three-volume publication for tinkerers called "You Can Make It," 250,000 copies at 45 cents.

Britons Get More Meat

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Food Ministry tonight announced a 10-percent increase in the size of Britain's fresh meat ration. Effective August 27, each person will be entitled to one shilling, six-pence (21 cents) worth a week. The present ration is one shilling, four pence (19 cents) worth.

Cancer 'Victim' Closer to Ship

The Navy officer who four years ago was told he had cancer and was going to die was only one step away from return to a fighting berth aboard ship yesterday.

Lieut. Comdr. Rosenberg

The House passed a bill to restore Lieut. Comdr. Edwin M. Rosenberg, to active duty. The bill already had passed the Senate and now goes to the President for signature.

Rosenberg has been told he will get shipboard duty in the Far East, probably in the Korean area, when the bill goes through.

In 1946 Navy doctors discovered Rosenberg, fresh from a tour on baby flat-tops in the Pacific, had cancer of the kidney and groin.

Radiation treatments restored the Naval Academy graduate to good health. Then he launched a fight to get back on active duty, claiming: "It's a waste of the people's money giving me three-fourths retirement pay for doing nothing."

The bill was sponsored in the Senate by Bourke Hickenlooper and in the House by Paul Cunningham of Rosenberg's home state of Iowa.

Jersey 'Gas War' Revives

Hackensack, N. J., Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Gasoline prices fell four cents a gallon in a new gas price war today and motorists gleefully told station attendants to "fill 'er up." But station owners warned that they may shut down the stations again if the prices continue to fall. Last week Independent station owners closed their stations for three days to halt a price war.

2 Red Advances Menace Taegu

gnyong area, southern anchor of the central front, Americans held their lines in the center and north along the North Korean bridgehead sector.

About 3000 Reds—along with armored firepower—were across the Naktong near Waegwan. Using an underwater bridge, the Communists hit with probe-feeler strikes at South Korean defenders.

Intelligence officers admitted concern about Waegwan. They were unable to learn whether the Reds were ready to unleash their 60,000-man juggernaut in what allied officials expect will be the biggest offensive of the war.

Captured North Koreans told intelligence, however, that United States and South Korean resistance had slowed the Red conquest timetable. The prisoners said the schedule called for the capture of Taegu on Tuesday, fifth anniversary of V-J Day and the liberation of Korea from Japan.

Armored Cars Knocked Out

A United States Eighth Army communique said the South Koreans Tuesday night successfully counterattacked North Koreans crossing the Naktong around Waegwan. But there was no word of the strength of forces involved.

American planes knocked out an unspecified number of Red armored cars in support of the counterblow.

Other United States aircraft plastered North Korean communications lines and supply dumps along the 120-mile front. Jet fighters and light bombers struck at bridges and other installations north of Yongdok and hit targets around Chonju, Waegwan and Yongju.

A strafing raid by fighter pilots east of the Naktong hit at about 300 North Koreans, killing or wounding some 100 enemy with machine-gun fire.

Air Force officials said other planes knocked out three of 12 Red tanks spotted west of the Naktong in the same area.

Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the Far East Air Force, announced that B-29s have written off as a target the huge Wonsan oil refinery in North Korea. The big bombers, he said, have "almost completely destroyed" the vital plant.

Ground action Tuesday gave all signs of a build-up for the long-awaited major Red attack.

AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported continuing pressure by the Communists all along the 24th Division front on the Naktong. He said the North Koreans and the Americans are throwing the works at each other but neither side is getting anywhere except for the one Red battalion that overran positions of the 24th.

As the crucial Naktong battle shaped up, United States Negro infantrymen on the southern front near Chinju took a precipitous mountain in a night-prowling attack without a single American casualty. Success came after a three-day close-in fight for the position called "Little Cassino," because of its resemblance to the Italian height where a bloody World War II battle raged.

After taking the objective, the United States troops were hit by mortar fire from other American forces unaware the mountain had been seized.

Later the Negro troops were pulled down off the peak to regroup. When the Americans left the North Koreans came back.

It was unclear whether another attack would have to be made for the strategic high ground around Haman 20 miles east of Chinju, or the 24th Infantry Regiment's front.

Dispatches from 8th Army headquarters said American forces still hold the airstrip at Pohang on the east coast. United States planes evacuated the field when it came under enemy mortar and machine-gun fire as the Reds closed in after their capture of Pohang.

Officers estimated that 3000 North Koreans remain in Pohang. They are isolated from the rest of the Red Army and probably are feeling a supplies pinch.

It probably will be several days before the Pohang picture is clarified, Army spokesmen reported. They described the situation as "fluid" in the area where the Reds stabbed deep into the Allied defense line.

The Communist North Korean radio, meanwhile, asserted that Red troops had seized Kosong in southernmost Korea, about 20 miles southwest of Masan and the same distance southeast of Chinju.

General MacArthur's headquarters said last week that U. S. Marines had seized Kosong and swept northwest 12 miles to within three miles of Sachon.

20-to-40 Mobilization Reported in N. Korea

The Defense Department has received reports that the North Koreans started general mobilization of all men and women between the ages of 20 and 40 on August 1.

Briefing officers told newsmen yesterday these reports were not officially confirmed but followed definite information that the Communists started conscripting young men and some women in the Seoul area several weeks ago.

New Red Atrocities Discovered by Patrol

With United States 25th Division, Aug. 15 (AP).—New North Korean atrocities were reported today along the central front.

A reconnaissance unit of the 25th Division recovered the bodies of two of its men who had been killed in action.

After death, the North Koreans either kicked or pounded the corpses until the faces were smashed in and bones shattered.

96 B-29s Bomb Red Troops

west of Waegwan, on the southeast corner of the rectangular target area and only 13 miles northwest of Taegu. Each plane covered an area slightly more than a mile long.

The Air Force spokesman compared today's strike to the employment of B-17s and B-24s, as the strategic bombers of World War II, and to the tactical role in the St. Lo offensive in Normandy.

But the Superforts today carried about 20,000 pounds of bombs each as compared with 5000 the World War II Flying Fortresses and Liberators could handle.

Correspondent Watches Results

United Press Correspondent Ralph Teatsorth flew along the Naktong River in a C-47 just east of the bombed area shortly after the B-29s went to work. He saw a number of small fires started.

"I saw no flak and no enemy fighter while we were in the air," Teatsorth said.

The southern three-quarters of the target area is relatively flat country which runs into a series of hills, he said. The valleys were filled with clusters of villages which the Red troops were believed to have used as hiding places.

"When the bombs hit, large clouds of dust and smoke arose," Teatsorth reported.

"They cleared away partially and then lighter clouds of smoke rolled up. It looked as if the bombs were going right on the targets."

Planes Lace Naktong Foe With Bullets and Bombs

Tokyo, Aug. 15 (AP)—United States warplanes today laced machinegun bullets and bombs into North Korean troops massed along the Naktong River for an expected desperation plunge at the emergency South Korean capital of Taegu.

Strafing jet and Mustang fighters killed or wounded 100 of a unit of 300 Reds on the east side of the river. The North Koreans were probing for a weak spot in the U. S. First Cavalry Division front.

On the west bank, where about 60,000 Communist troops are massed, the fast-flying planes bombed and strafed 12 Red tanks and knocked out at least three.

A flight of light bombers smashed at a Communist troop concentration in the same general area west of the river with "excellent results," said an Air Force announcement.

The statement said excellent results were also obtained in fighter plane strikes against a railroad line in the Waegwan area, heart of the big Red troop assembly.

On the northern front, fighters smashed at warehouses north of Yongdok, east coast town that has changed hands several times. Again the Air Force reported good results.

Jet and Mustang pilots said they saw large Communist concentrations along the northern front, defended by South Korean forces. They attacked nine enemy tanks moving toward the South Korean line but results were not observed.

The fliers spotted nine pieces of horse-drawn artillery near Kunwi, 22 miles north of Taegu, and knocked out seven. The presence of the artillery there indicated the Reds had advanced about 13 miles against the South Koreans, who were reported four days ago holding a line three miles north of Uisong—10 miles northwest of Kunwi.

Yanks Pick Up Korea Tricks, General Says

On the Naktong River Front, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Maj Gen. John H. Church said today that American forces are learning the Korean type of warfare faster than the enemy realizes.

And more important, he said, they are learning that the enemy must be destroyed—"It is not just enough to push him back; if you don't destroy the enemy he will come around you and behind you."

"Our boys are learning to dig in no matter where they are. And to seek and hold high ground wherever possible," he said.

Church attributed North Korean successes thus far to greater manpower and an effective indoctrination that makes them afraid to surrender and afraid to retreat.

The North Koreans fight savagely because they have been told of the things that will happen to them if they are captured, he said, while they also are afraid of what their own people will do to them if they don't accomplish an assignment.

Church, a veteran of 33 years of military service, admitted the enemy also made good use of supporting fire from artillery.

He said he didn't know exactly how they had done it but that the North Korean forces apparently also were surmounting what appeared to him to be an impossible supply problem.

Red Issue Slows Control Bill Vote

By The Associated Press

A tall stack of amendments for the economic mobilization bill, capped by a Republican move to attach a control-the-Communists measure to it, set off angry debate in the Senate yesterday and helped postpone action until next week.

The Senate will begin voting at 1 p. m. Monday, but when it will get around to final action on passage of the bill itself is anybody's guess. It depends on how many amendments are pushed to a vote.

Until that time, general debate is unlimited. After that, discussion will be held down to 10 minutes on each amendment.

The agreement was worked out in the aftermath of a shouting party quarrel in which Democrats accused Republicans of trying to slow down the economic control measure and riddle it with limiting amendments.

Red Issue Injected

Senators Mundt (R., S. Dak.) and Ferguson (R., Mich.) brought that dispute to fever pitch by bringing up the Communist issue, with the argument that it fits right in with the bill's economic controls aimed at gearing the country to meet Communist threats in Korea and elsewhere.

The economic measure would give President Truman almost unrestricted power to apply price-wage-rationing curbs if he saw the need, and to take other steps such as channeling scarce materials into the war effort.

The time for a start on voting advanced into next week by stages.

First Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) objected to a vote today.

Thursday was ruled out because Majority Leader Lucas (Ill.) will be in his home State that day.

Friday Loses Out

Friday was pretty generally accepted, for a while, but Senator Neely (D., W. Va.) objected to that. He explained that he and Senators Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Kilgore (D., W. Va.) are to address a West Virginia Young Democrats meeting that day.

A number of amendments already have been voted into the bill, but the Monday agreement means there will be no more ballots until then.

Mundt and Ferguson told reporters they made their move in an effort to "get action" on their long-stymied proposal, which would require registration of Communists and set up other rules the sponsors say are needed for nation security.

"When we put on controls, and when we need controls, we need them on people who are subversives as well as loyal Americans," Ferguson told reporters.

Lucas to Fight

"If you are going to push decent Americans around, you had better push disloyal Americans around too," Mundt put in.

Both contended that the proposed curbs on Communists fit in with the home-front economic measures already in the bill.

A fight was promised by Lucas. He said he had told Senator Wherry (Nebr.), the Republican leader, that he wanted to take up the security question next week, but the GOP members thereupon pitched the issue into the economic controls debate.

Mundt and Ferguson said they were ready to call their proposal up "any time" but did not know when a vote would be asked.

A separate Administration bill to safeguard internal security is being prepared now, in line with recommendations from President Truman.

The Mundt-Ferguson proposals and several related bills are covered in an omnibus measure that Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee introduced yesterday.

Delayed Effect of Controls Predicted

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

When the economic controls bill becomes law, its immediate effect on the ordinary citizen will hardly be noticeable, a survey indicated yesterday.

Present plans of the Federal agencies that will administer the new powers do not call for any such revolutionary regulations as governed citizens' day-to-day business affairs during the last war.

For that matter, most businesses will not be noticeably affected, it appeared.

Perhaps the most significant impact will be on construction activity. But even there it is possible that the effect of rising prices of building materials may be more of a factor in curtailing activity than any rules to be issued under the new law.

The Government's objective in this field is to reduce the number of new housing starts to about one million a year. The present rate is about 1,275,000, but before Korea it had been increasing to such an extent that the level might have risen to about 1,400,000.

The means by which the reduction is to be accomplished, as President Truman has made clear, is the tightening up of overliberal home-financing terms.

Thus, to qualify for a Federal guarantee of his mortgage, the buyer will have to make a larger down payment and pay off during a shorter period of time.

Requirements of this sort are expected to reduce new building substantially. But some officials believe the present scarcity of building materials, the prospect of higher prices, and the concern of bonding over the ability of contractors to perform within their cost estimates may themselves accomplish much of the desired reduction.

In another field of credit restriction, that applying to installment buying, the expected orders will probably not call for procedures too different from those considered as "standard practice" already.

The principal effect of the orders— a renewed "Regulation W" of World War II days—will be to terminate substandard practices. Under these, buyers of autos, furniture and household appliances often make little or no down payment and have a long period in which to pay off.

Present standard practice for automobile financing calls for a down payment of one-third of the purchase price (usually met by the turn-in value of the old car) and 24 months to pay. The new terms will probably not affect the amount of the down payment, and will reduce the allowable maturity term to 21 months.

General practice now on installment buying of household appliances—ranges, refrigerators, washing machines, deep freezers, television sets, etc.,—provides for little or no down payments, and full payment over as long as 30 or 36 months. The same is true for furniture.

The new regulations may insist on a 15 percent down payment for appliances (although probably none for furniture) and a reduction of the payoff period to 24 months.

The terms listed above, however, are seen as only the first step. Later, it is probable that the Federal Reserve Board, which will administer this phase of the controls act, will stiffen the terms, by increasing the down payment percent and shortening the time.

The reason for the relatively moderate initial curtailment is that the Federal Reserve does not want to create a large organization of police-like inspectors to obtain enforcement. If its regulations gain the voluntary acceptance and agreement of the finance companies themselves, enforcement is easier and more certain.

Thus, the board hopes to curtail time buying and obtain compliance by voluntary acceptance of the provisions by the industry, through a sort of educational and step-by-step tightening-up procedure.

The other main area of Federal regulations under the new law, that of allocations and priorities, will be executed for the main part by the Commerce Department. The Interior Department may have jurisdiction over allocations of fuel and power, and the Agriculture Department over farm products, but for some time, at least, there will be few if any major shortages in these items.

The main place where allocations are expected to be exercised is in the field of industrial raw materials, principally steel (especially alloy steel), nonferrous metals and rubber.

The mechanics are by no means decided on. But officials think that the job can probably be done in most places by a relatively simple system.

Under these plans, there would be no varying degree of priorities, as there were during World War II, when a much larger program brought much greater scarcity and much more intense competition among producers.

Instead, there will simply be military contracts, which have a priority, and nonmilitary ones, which do not. A producer working on a military order would have first call on the metals he needs. Other manufacturers will get what materials are left. The priority right will probably not extend to production facilities, such as construction materials for new plants, or machine tools.

It is believed that with the exception of copper, there will be such an adequacy of materials left over after priority demands have been met, that for at least six to nine months the economy will not have to do without very much of what it wants.

It is not yet decided what other orders will be used to help accomplish the priorities. Some experts in the Government want to issue war-time conservation orders, limiting the amount of scarce materials that can be used in the making of non-military goods. Others feel that so-called limitation orders, cutting back the actual number of units of various civilian items like autos and refrigerators, would be more desirable.

But in any event, it seems clear that previous stories warning of great cutbacks in consumer "hard goods" have been much exaggerated. Whereas automobiles, for example, may not be allowed to come off the line at the 10 million a year rate of the present, they will not be curtailed to a rate below that of last spring, at least for the time being.

Senate Group Shelves Co-Op Tax Action

By the United Press

The Senate Finance Committee yesterday agreed to put off until next year a decision on whether to put a tax on the earnings of now exempt cooperative organizations.

It ordered staff experts to study the effect of making co-ops, mutual savings banks and building and loan associations subject to income taxes.

The question arose in connection with the Administration's five-billion-dollar stop-gap war-tax bill. The bill would boost personal income taxes 10 to 20 percent to raise almost three billion dollars a year and hike corporation rates from 38 to 45 percent to raise an additional one and a half billion dollars.

Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.) had proposed an amendment to tax the undistributed earnings of cooperatives as another source of revenue.

The committee approved a proposal to deny tax exemption to organizations that are manipulated to the private advantage of substantial donors.

The decision to postpone a decision on taxing co-ops was in line with Monday's order for a staff study on the possibility of an excess-profits tax on individuals and corporations or a general Federal sales tax.

Author Seeks Pepper Seat as Independent

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 15 (U.P.). Stetson Kennedy, author of the anti-Klan book, "Southern Exposure," today planned to seek the seat of Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) as an independent candidate in the November general election.

Kennedy said he will run on a "civil rights platform" against Representative George Smathers, who beat Pepper for the Democratic nomination, and Republican John P. Booth.

House Group Probes REA

By The Associated Press

"Certain information" received in hearings has set off an inquiry by a House subcommittee in generation and transmission loans made by the Rural Electrification Administration.

The bare fact is disclosed in an intermediate report by an Executive Expenditures subcommittee, filed at the end of last week.

No hint of the nature of the information, nor of what transactions are involved, appears in the report. Chairman Hardy (D., Va.) declined to give any clews yesterday.

The report, on an investigation of REA operations, says only: "During the course of hearings, the subcommittee received certain information with respect to generation and transmission loans.

"Based upon this information, the subcommittee has directed that further staff study be made, with a view to future hearings and issuance of a final report."

Hardy told a reporter the study would be comprehensive and not limited to loans made in any one area.

The Hardy subcommittee's report said replies to a questionnaire sent to REA cooperatives "reflect a picture of satisfaction generally with most REA policies."

The report listed nine cases under the heading "administrative difficulties" but commented that in general personnel appears "capable and competent."

270 D. C. Reserves Will Be Activated

Two hundred and seventy Army enlisted reservists from Washington will be called to active duty between mid-September and mid-October, Second Army Headquarters announced yesterday. These are in addition to the regular draft calls.

The enlisted men represent the District's share of the combined Army-Air Force call for 42,000 reservists announced Friday.

The call will also catch 470 men from Maryland and 540 from Virginia, it was announced.

The total Second Army quota included 5320 men, the remainder from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, and Delaware.

No officers were included.

The 270 men from the District will be assigned to units which have already been activated but which are under authority strength, a Second Army spokesman said.

Will Stand By

The enlisted men will first report for physical examination and then stand by for active duty calls which will be issued between mid-September and mid-October.

It is anticipated that more than 500 local men will be ordered to take their physicial examinations, the spokesman said, to insure that the District quota will be met.

The Air Force said that advanced students in its ROTC may apply for discharge from reserve units of the Air Force or other services. If discharged, they will be deferred from the draft as long as they stay with the Air Force training program. Advance students are those taking their third or fourth year courses. Students in the first or second year courses will remain subject to call to active duty.

Within 48 Hours

The Navy told its reservists that application for postponement of their recall to active duty must be submitted within 48 hours after they get their orders.

Locally, recruiting officers reported a "slow day" yesterday.

Twenty-one applicants showed up at the Marine recruiting office. Two former marines reenlisted, and two new marines recruited. Four recruits were shipped to Parris Island, and two reenlisted marines were sent to Quantico, Va.

Twenty men enlisted in the Army-Air Force recruiting office.

Only four men applied for the Navy, and two were accepted. Eight men enlisted for the Navy and shipped to the Great Lakes training center.

Speed Pledged

Revised Bill Ordered on Allotments

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The armed services yesterday were directed to speed preparation of a revised bill for enlisted men's family allowances for consideration of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey told the committee that men with more than three children should not be put in uniform because of the financial hardship on their families and the burden it will place upon the Government.

Comdr. Will Davis of the Navy Bureau of Personnel, who heads a service committee considering the problem, promised a revised measure would be ready for the committee Thursday.

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) said the matter was one of great urgency on which the committee would act as fast as possible.

The problem has caused concern in and out of Congress. Many reservists and National Guardsmen called in the Korean emergency have complained their families cannot get along on military pay alone.

The National Selective Service director suggested a plan under which the top three grades of enlisted men would continue to receive quarters allowances but would get no additional family benefits.

Lower enlisted grades, including ordinary GIs, would receive allowances with the serviceman and the Government sharing the cost. A wife would receive $50 monthly with the GI and the Government each contributing $25.

A wife and child would receive $80, a wife and two children $90 and a wife and three children $100. In the latter case, a recruit would contribute $50 of his $75 pay to his family.

Senator Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.) insisted that any bill should include a provision for compulsory support of the family by the serviceman. The bill offered by the military had not included such a feature.

The armed services have proposed a scale of benefits starting at $75 a month for a wife, and ranging up to $150 for a wife and three children. The GI would pay only the first $30, with the Government making up the remainder.

Military spokesmen said the figure should be at least as high as this because living costs have risen about 50 percent since the World War II dependency scale was drafted in 1942.

D. C. 'Enemy' Guards Test Coast Radar

Jet planes of the District's 121st Air National Guard Fighter Squadron yesterday flew as an "attacking" force to test alertness of East Coast radar stations.

They took turns with the three other squadrons of the 113th Fighter Group of the D. C. Air National Guard to act as attacking and defending aircraft.

For example, the 121st, as the "attacker," would be picked up by the radar net at secret locations and the 142d Squadron of Delaware, the "friendly" force, would be directed to intercept it.

Also participating in the test were the 148th Squadron of Virginia and the 104th Squadron from Maryland.

The D. C. Air National Guard began its annual 15-day training period Saturday at two air bases—Andrews Field, Md., and Byrd Field, Sandston, Va. At Andrews Field, along with the 121st Fighter Squadron, are Detachment A of the 213th Air Service Group, the 121st Utility Flight and the 121st Weather Station.

Yesterday, the 121st jets also continued intensive aerial gunnery practice off Chincoteague, Va., firing at long sleeves towed by other planes. The squadron flew 20 such sorties.

O'Dwyer Named Envoy to Mexico

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York was chosen yesterday by President Truman to be Ambassador to Mexico, and Democrats thought they could see at least one favorable political consequence.

O'Dwyer

A successor to O'Dwyer will have to be elected in November. That will mean a bigger vote in New York City than otherwise would have been expected. A big vote in the city, according to Democratic strategists, will help their nominees for Governor and other state-wide offices.

O'Dwyer, who was born in County Mayo, Ireland, 60 years ago, came to the United States at the age of 20. He held such jobs as grocery clerk, hod carrier, coal passer and bartender before he joined the New York police force, studied law, and started up the political ladder.

Mayor O'Dwyer was a White House visitor yesterday, but declined to talk to reporters about his conference with the President.

"Why O'Dwyer?"

A few minutes later, however, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced that Mr. Truman had offered O'Dwyer the post as Ambassador to Mexico and that he had accepted. Ross said the nomination would go to the Senate about September 1, after O'Dwyer has resigned as mayor.

The big question yesterday, heard at the Capitol and elsewhere, was: "Why O'Dwyer?"

The only answer immediately available was that O'Dwyer wanted to go to Mexico City, made his desire known, and Mr. Truman felt that he would be a good man for the job.

O'Dwyer, whose health has been poor, has visited Mexico City, and seems to have made a hit there with President Miguel Aleman and other Mexican officials.

As Ambassador to Mexico, he would receive $25,000 a year, as compared with the $40,000 a year he gets as mayor of the Nation's largest city. To that $25,000, however, would be added the approximately $15,000 a year he would receive as a pension from New York, plus $10,000 for his expenses as ambassador.

The present Ambassador to Mexico is Walter Thurston, a career diplomat, who is highly regarded at the State Department.

A dispatch from Mexico City yesterday afternoon said that the White House announcement about O'Dwyer caught the American Embassy by surprise. This was called to the attention of State Department officials. They explained that the Embassy could only have been surprised by the identity of the man chosen to succeed Ambassador Thurston, not by the fact that Thurston was to be relieved. They pointed out that Thurston had served in Mexico City for about four years, and normally would be moving on to another post.

O'Dwyer's decision to resign as mayor, on August 31, means that the New York Democrats now have to choose nominees for three important posts—Mayor, Governor and United States Senator.

Less than three hours after yesterday's White House announcement, Vincent Impelliteri, president of the City Council, said he would be a candidate for O'Dwyer's job.

Among those who have been mentioned for the Democratic nomination for Governor are Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.; Robert Wagner, jr., who is Manhattan Borough president; Paul Fitzpatrick of Buffalo, Democratic State chairman; Judge Ferdinand Pecora, and Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing.

Lieut. Gov. Joseph Hanley is regarded as the certain choice for the Republican nomination for governor.

Senator Herbert Lehman seems just as certain of being nominated for a full 6-year term on the Democratic ticket. He is now serving out the term of Robert F. Wagner, who resigned.

Both parties choose their nominees in conventions next month.

Germans Send Satellites Steel, Slash U. S. Orders, Buyers Say

Frankfurt, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Angry American steel men accused German government officials and industrialists today of sabotaging United States rearmament by slashing scrap steel export to America while selling to Russian satellites.

The Americans branded the German action "outright sabotage" and charged it will add millions of dollars to the cost of United States rearmament.

"Soviet satellite countries," they charged, "are obtaining the major part of the available (scrap) supply." They said United States efforts to buy scrap are hamstrung by newly imposed German government restrictions.

The steel men said United States High Commissioner for Germany John J. McCloy has answered their protests by saying the alleged restrictions were "purely a Germany affair."

The basis of the American complaint is cancellation by the German government of a license for shipment to the United States of 325,000 tons of first-quality, heavy melting steel. The cancellation came when the former Allied Joint Export Import Agency turned over its operations to the German government.

United States buyers then were issued a license for 150,000 tons of steel scrap. On August 1, the steel men said, Germany announced a sharp restriction of scrap export and advised contractors that only 50 percent of the reduced shipments could be high-grade melting steel.

The remainder, the Germans said, would have to be inferior grades, which the U. S. steel men said would be useless to American mills and too expensive to ship.

Meanwhile, 220,000 tons of high-grade scrap have been moved to Iron Curtain countries under trade agreements the West German government continues to honor, the Americans asserted.

Pholien Is Named Belgian Premier

Brussels, Aug. 15 (AP).—Joseph Pholien, 65-year-old senator, was named Premier of an all Social Christian government today under Prince Baudouin.

The Social Christians are the Catholic Party that alone, against the opposition of Socialists, Liberals and Communists, brought King Leopold back from exile last month. To avoid threatening civil conflict, Leopold turned over his powers to his son, 19-year-old Baudouin, the Crown Prince, last week.

The new 16-member Cabinet, replaces that of Social Christian Jean Duvieusart.

Pool Plan Put to British On Take-or-Leave Basis

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 15 (AP).—French and West German leaders, replying to British counterproposals, put the Schuman coal-steel plan on a take-it-or-leave-it basis today.

The plan bears the name of French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman. He proposes a merger of the heavy industries of France and West Germany under an international authority, with other nations free to join.

In speeches to the consultative assembly of the Council of Europe, Maurice Schuman, chief of France's Popular Republican Movement (MRP), French Socialist Andre Philip and Heinrich von Brentano, spokesman for West Germany's ruling Christian Democrats, insisted on a truly sovereign international authority to merge coal and steel production.

They were commenting on an alternate project advanced by Britain's Harold MacMillan and David Eccles, both Conservatives, which would limit the supernational authority by placing it under a committee of ministers within the European Council.

Maurice Schuman declared this was unacceptable. He and Robert Schuman are both members of the MRP. They are not related.

A British Laborite, Mrs. Eirene White, told the assembly the British Government thought it "wiser and more friendly" to await the results of Paris negotiations among various nations on the Schuman Plan than to intervene at this stage.

Philip expressed the Franco-German viewpoint in an attack on the British counter-project.

"We hope many other nations will come in (the Schuman Plan), but here are two irreductible points—a real international authority responsible to a common parliament with real powers," he asserted.

Philip said the European Council could not adequately supervise the high authority until the statute is rewritten to give the assembly real powers.

BIGNESS COMES IN HANDY!

In Peace—In War!

ON December 7, 1941, the Japs launched their "surprise attack" on Pearl Harbor . . .

On June 25, 1950, the Reds launched their on South Korea . . .

And today, as in 1941, 1942 and 1943, it is the enemy's turn to be surprised—

At the ready strength of our competitive free-enterprise industries . . .

At the speed of their productive mobilization!

Socony-Vacuum, one of America's big companies, geared to peacetime competition under the U. S business system, has been steadily growing stronger—looking ahead, plowing back—building for future needs.

And today in Petroleum this bigness is coming in "handy"—vitally handy as our nation goes on a war footing.

Today, for example, Socony-Vacuum's world-wide producing facilities have more than doubled—and refining capacity has increased nearly 50% since 1942—big build-up year of World War II. Today, Socony-Vacuum's year-after-year plowing-back program is paying off, as new pipelines, tankers, modern refining units, increased personnel hit their peak of performance.

Socony-Vacuum has pledged its all-out efforts to meet our military and civilian needs. We believe the free system which has enabled us to become a big company, which makes our nation the greatest in the world—is worth serving and protecting to the limit of our resources and abilities.

Committee of 1 Hears Lehman In Oleo Fight

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.) ran into difficulties yesterday when he tried to explain to a two-member Senate Judiciary subcommittee why he wants the Federal Trade Commission ordered to investigate the margarine industry.

The committee failed to show.

Lehman had his statement all prepared, with mimeographed copies released to the press. In it he addressed himself to the committee members by name: Chairman James O. Eastland and his associate, Senator Alexander Wiley, (R., Wis.) Eastland was absent. Wiley was attending a Republican Policy Committee meeting.

Kilgore Helps Out

In response to Lehman's appeal, committee employes rounded up a Judiciary member—though not a member of the subcommittee—Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.), and the hearing went on.

Lehman told Kilgore that 65 percent of all the oleo sold in the United States is produced by seven firms. Lever Bros., he said, is the biggest firm, but it also is the smallest of the seven in oleo production. Lehman fears that Lever Bros. may try to violate the anti-trust laws in order to get bigger.

Lehman declared a resolution calling for a probe of oleo, which he and Wiley and two other Senators, Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) have introduced, is not "a rear-guard action aimed at trying to undo by indirection what the Congress did directly in repealing the excise tax on oleomargarine."

"The main purpose," he said, "is to protect the consumers of my State and of the entire Nation from a danger which I believe threatens them."

Ripe for Misuse

He said a shrinkage in the butter market through increased sales of oleo would affect milk production in New York almost as much as it would affect butter producers in Wisconsin. He declared the situation is "ripe for misuse by monopoly in the oleomargarine field."

Another witness, Charles Holman, head of the National Milk Producers Federation, who speaks for most of the milk producers in the country, was the next witness. He had to give way for testimony about beer.

Representative Reva Beck Bosone (D., Utah) told Kilgore that a brewery in Utah had lost $3200 in revenue stamps and wanted credit for them. When she got through, Holman testified that oleo makers are hiking the price for their product. Most margarine is made of cottonseed oil, he said. Margarine used to sell for about five cents a pound more than cottonseed oil, he said, showing tables as proof. The spread is now about 11 and 12 cents, he said.

Police 5-Day Week Bill Becomes Law

A bill authorizing a five-day work week for Metropolitan, White House and Park Police was signed yesterday by President Truman.

A brief ceremony at the White House, attend by police officials, marked the occasion.

The five-day week will not become an actuality until several months after Congress has approved enabling legislation, now before it, which would provide $645,456 to hire and equip 300 additional Metropolitan policemen.

Inspector Clarence H. Lutz, head of the Police Department's training division, has told a House Appropriations subcommittee it will be necessary to have at least 200 additional men assigned to active duty before the five-day week can be put into effect.

Once the appropriations hurdle is cleared, however, he believes new men can be added to the force at the rate of 100 a month.

Police officials have computed they will need 300 extra men on the Metropolitan force to have the same amount of protection now afforded under the six-day week.

For 8½ Months

The $645,456 figure represents only the cost of extra men and equipment for eight and a half months of the current fiscal year.

The cost of the five-day week, on a full fiscal year basis, will rise to a little more than $1,100,000 in six years as the new rookie policemen progress to the status of top-paid police privates.

Lutz said an emergency program has been drafted to go into effect as soon as funds are appropriated. It is planned to reduce the training course for police rookies from six to four weeks.

The regular District Supply Bill this year authorized an increase of 300 in the Metropolitan Police Department's authorized strength. The department's authorized strength will jump to 2284 when the 300 extra rookies are approved.

Present strength is 1930 men—54 short of authorized strength without the 300 additional men.

Of the 54 vacancies, in addition to the 300 which the appropriations bill will authorize, 12 are taken by men on military leave. This leaves 42 vacancies, and men have already been selected to fill 16 of the posts. The remaining openings will be filled, police officials say, from the rookie class that enters training school September 1.

More For White House

The White House police force will need 23 additional men to go on a five-day basis, and Park Police will require 33 extra men.

Candidates for all three forces must come originally from the Civil Service Commission rolls. Because of the anticipated heavy demand for new policemen, the Civil Service Commission has scheduled another examination for police force candidates on August 21.

President Truman used six different fountain pens in signing the five-day bill yesterday and then handed the pens to the police officials present.

They were Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of Metropolitan Police; Inspector Howard W. Francis, chief of the White House Police; Inspector Mark Raspberry, head of the Park Police; Inspector Lutz, Pvt. Royal L. Givens, president of the Policemen's Association, and Pvt. Hubert Taylor, White House Police representative on the legislative committee of the Policemen's Association.

9 Policemen Shifted To White House Duty

District Commissioners approved yesterday the transfer of nine Metropolitan Police privates to duty with the White House police force.

Inspector Hobart W. Francis of the White House Police said the action was simply a routine move to fill vacancies and bring the force up to strength. Members of the White House force are selected from personnel of the Metropolitan Police Department and the Park Police.

Prince Georges Women Ask 'Impartial' Personnel Board

Prince Georges County's League of Women Voters yesterday called for an "impartial" personnel board to supervise hiring of county employes under a government reorganization plan authorized by the Sothoron bill, effective July 1.

In response to an invitation from the commissioners for suggestions on the personnel plan, the league recommended that the personnel board membership include no county department head whose employes might be affected by its decisions. The recommendation conflicted with an earlier proposal by the commissioners that the board be composed in part of department heads.

The league's suggestions, submitted in a letter, were taken under advisement by the commissioners, who said they expect to take final action on the personnel board in two weeks.

The league's proposal further suggested employment of a trained personnel supervisor to work in conjunction with the board. It also asked a merit system for hiring employes, compensation based on the responsibility of the job involved and a policy of giving promotions, "wherever possible," to permanent employes.

A suggestion from William R. Turner, president of the Chillum Citizens Association was that the new board be instructed to hire employes "without regard to political affiliation." He proposed a 60-day advance notice of competitive examinations for prospective employes.

On the recommendation of a committee of three, the commissioners agreed to charge $12 per "front foot" for storm sewer construction affecting seven streets in the Riverdale Heights subdivision.

Residents who benefited from the work previously had been billed at rates ranging from $12 to $24 a foot.

State Board Accepts County Sewage Plans

Richmond, Va., Aug. 15 (AP).—The Virginia State Water Control Board today announced it is satisfied with preliminary steps taken by Arlington County to abate stream and river pollution.

At a special hearing before the board today, Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg said the county will petition the Arlington Circuit Court within six months for a referendum on a bond issue to pay for expanded county sewage facilities.

The water control board had given Arlington until today to make definite plans to add to its sewage disposal system. The Arlington County Board decided Monday night to request a referendum.

Although the county board did not set a specific bond figure, county officials have estimated it will cost $2,617,000 to expand the present sewage disposal system, finance two new pumping stations and new trunk lines.

Arlington now treats 5.5 million gallons of sewage each day, but dumps an estimated six million gallons more of untreated sewage into the Potomac. The proposed expansion would allow treatment of 20 million gallons daily.

Smithsonian Given Rare Salamanders

In case you're looking for a typhlotriton, the Smithsonian Institution has just acquired 23 of them, it was announced yesterday.

But why would you look for typhlotritons?

They are blind, white, transparent salamanders, and very dead in pickle jars.

The typhlotriton is one of the rarest and least known animals—"ghostly denizens of the everlasting darkness of the earth's depths," the Smithsonian calls them.

They were found in the limestone caves of the Ozark Mountains and were presented by Dr. C. G. Goodchild of the Southeast Missouri State College, Springfield, Mo.

Seldom in scientific collections, the creatures occasionally have been brought to the surface in well-borings, but generally in a mutilated condition.

Dr. Doris Corcoran, associate curator, division of reptiles and amphibians, said the typhlotriton, unlike most blind cave animals, is in the process of evolution toward loss of its eyes.

100,000 Hear Visionary Tell Of 'Message'

Necedah, Wis., Aug. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Anna Van Hoof said she saw and received a message from the Blessed Virgin Mary at high noon today.

The 41-year-old back-country farm wife rose from her dooryard shrine and told a reverent throng—estimated at nearly 100,000 persons—that the Mother of Christ wanted them to "pray, pray, pray." One of her seven children said that her mother said she had seen the vision.

The crowd gathered in this straggling village to watch what the gaunt woman said was her seventh visit with the Virgin. Although observers saw nothing unusual, the faithful went away satisfied, many of them firmly believing the Virgin had been in their midst.

Shortly after Mrs. Van Hoof knelt alone before the shrine, she turned and began to speak in a tense voice. Her words were interpreted as the message of the Virgin for the people.

Repeatedly, she urged her listeners to "pray, pray, pray," saying that "all religions must go together against the enemy of God right now." The enemy of God, she said, "is all over America," and only prayer will win peace.

In the rambling talk she said "Pope Pius XII is in danger unless we pray. We can save Pope Pius XII if we pray as we never prayed before."

Still dwelling on the urgent need for prayer, Mrs. Van Hoof said, "I want to warn of Korea. It won't end unless we pray. Our bishop must remember my warning of Fatima. Black clouds are coming over America. Alaska is the first stepping stone. Remember the Pacific Coast. Remember now, prayer only will save us."

When Mrs. Van Hoof began to speak, microphones were moved up to carry her voice to the throng that spread out around her. After her last words, she turned from the microphone and was escorted to her house by a state highway patrolman.

Mrs. Van Hoof came out of her house at two minutes before noon. She knelt for a moment before the statue of "Our Lady of Fatima," which had been erected in her back yard, then stood and blessed the multitude with a crucifix held in her right hand.

The crowd was absolutely quiet, despite the 90-degree heat and the dust clouds that rose from the sandy Juneau County soil.

After the blessing, she turned and again knelt before the statue with her head in her hands. Observers less than 20 feet away saw her lips moving, but nothing was heard. In about a minute she made the sign of the cross, bowed her head, and once more stood up. She lifted a rosary and a crucifix toward the statue, then turned around and began to speak.

Near-Record Quake Recorded But Location Remains Mystery

By The Associated Press

The earth shook yesterday to the most violent quake in recent years.

Where it occurred was not immediately determined. But scientists agreed it was of an intensity that causes great damage when centering in populated areas.

From Auckland, New Zealand, came a report that Rotura—center of noted Hot Springs Spas—was shaken by a severe quake at 5:45 a.m. (EST).

However, Boston College and Harvard University seismologists said the New Zealand quake definitely was not the one that rocked seismographs — the sensitive instruments that record earthquakes —in widely separated parts of the world.

The seismographs wrote wild, incoherent messages that fascinated scientists could not immediately interpret.

Only Father Daniel Linehan of the Boston College seismograph station at Weston, Mass., offered a positive estimate of the location 3 hours after the quake flung the record far off the recording paper.

He placed the quake as 5215 miles from Boston—possibly in North or Northeast Turkey or the Caspian Sea area.

But Dr. L. Don Leet, head of the Harvard University seismograph station in Harvard, Mass., hazarded a guess that it originated 8000 to 9000 miles distant, probably in the East Indies. He said it probably was the biggest quake of the present generation.

The quake record began at 9:23.57 (EST), at Harvard, and one second later at Weston.

Hours later the earthquake's waves racing thousands of miles through the earth's crust still were so huge that instruments were "saturated" with motion.

Father Linehan said the recording light beam that traces the record on photo-sensitive paper a foot wide was swinging in a path six feet wide.

The Rev. Joseph Carroll, S.J., at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., believed the tremor was located in the Pacific, possibly in the vicinity of Japan.

But the Central Meteorological Observatory at Tokyo, which recorded the severe shock at 9:16 a.m. (EST), believed it originated somewhere in the northern part of the American continent.

Reporters In Korea

War correspondence, of course, is one of the more hazardous trades; but in less than two months of the fighting in Korea the number of correspondents killed or believed killed in Korea already approximates the figure for a full two years of the Second World War. All told about 45 newspaper, radio and movie correspondents and photographers were killed, or died of illness or accident, in all theaters, between December 7, 1941, and the Japanese surrender. Probably one reason for the higher mortality rate in Korea is the higher degree of freedom permitted to the correspondents, who are evidently permitted to roam where they wish, since apparently no press relations officers can be spared to look after them.

Doubtless this has also had something to do with the reluctance of the military to establish a censorship. Never perhaps has a war been reported with so much frankness and realism of detail. Some of this detail may have been, as is alleged, of military value to the enemy—as, for example, in the case of dispatches identifying units in particular sections of the front; much of it has certainly provided him, as it has provided the editors of the New York Daily Worker, with material for propaganda. In this category are the numerous stories suggesting that cynical bitterness has been the prevalent mood of the American troops.

There is no doubt that stories of that sort have been causing a good deal of consternation here in Washington; and according to a news story one of the persons most gravely alarmed by them is President Truman himself. Apparently there is a good deal of disagreement between Washington and Tokyo on the questions of whether censorship is advisable and of what form it should take. What it all comes down to, it seems to us, is whether the enemy benefits more than we do by a full disclosure of all facts, including those that are highly unpalatable.

Defense Organization

President Truman has made it perfectly clear that he does not intend to set up new agencies to administer the defense program. That is equivalent to saying that he does not expect to exercise the powers Congress is about to thrust upon him to establish broad controls over wages and prices. The limited authority he has requested to allocate scarce materials, give priority to defense orders, tighten credit controls, and increase taxes certainly does not require any additional control machinery. Moreover, the Government already has a new agency—the National Security Resources Board—that should be able to give general direction to the Administration's defense program and resolve interagency conflicts.

For the present, the existing organizational set-up seems adequate to establish effective controls over allocations of the limited number of raw materials in short supply. And Government officials are confident that, with few exceptions, most industrialists will cooperate fully with the Government in working out agreements. Another reason for their belief that a limited and largely voluntary system of controls is sufficient, for the time being, is the fact that the expanded military program is slow in getting under way, and probably will not reach peak levels until the middle of 1951. Hence, the full impact of increased military spending (the effect of which has been greatly exaggerated) will be felt only gradually, and in its initial stages the control program will not be as rigorous or as difficult to enforce as many people suppose.

These arguments in favor of relying on limited controls administered by existing Government agencies assume, of course, that the country will not become involved in a full scale war. In that event price and wage controls and rationing would be inevitable, and the Government would be compelled to set up new agencies to administer these controls. That would be a colossal and time-consuming organizational task, requiring months of preparation and experimentation. For that reason we conclude that, while the President rightly objects to immediate application of comprehensive controls, he will be wrong if he fails to make preparations now for setting up new administrative agencies ready to function in an emergency.

However much we may dislike the prospect, any effective general control over prices and living costs would necessitate the creation of a huge bureaucratic agency comparable to the OPA. The Government would also need new agencies to settle labor disputes, control and adjust wage rates, and possibly direct the movement of labor. It would require the services of experts with first-hand knowledge of industrial and labor problems to man these agencies; and it is none too soon to begin looking for them. Some are needed at once; many more should be located and alerted for duty, if the necessity arises. For, as Senator Taft said in the debate on the defense production bill, a half million additional employes might have to be taken on to administer a tremendous detailed control program.

Then there is the problem of establishing a supervisory agency to coordinate the policies and direct the activities of special control agencies under full mobilization. The National Security Resources Board is the logical selection for that task. If it does not have such a plan it should be instructed to speed the work of developing one for future use, if standby control powers have to be invoked.

After Five Years

The five year turning point of "peace" with Japan has produced a lot of retrospect and spurred the quest for a treaty of peace with as many associates in the war as can be assembled.

The Republican minority in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has looked back on the way that peace in the Pacific was botched. But, it seems to us, they miss out the essential history. What appears clear is that Japan was defeated when the American forces captured Saipan within the defense perimeter of Japan. If, as the British military historian Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller says, the politicians should have taken over from the military after the landing in Normandy, so the same supercession should have been made after the capture of Saipan. But war-making continued to predominate. We fought on and on, at bloody Iwo Jima and at even bloodier Okinawa, and also deprived Japan of her lifeblood at Cairo and Yalta—in the agreements first with Chiang Kai-shek and then with Soviet Russia to strip Japan down to her volcanic core. The grand mistake was so to destroy Japan as to leave all Asia open to the Cossack.

The vacuum of power that was left in Asia after the war was due as much as anything to the fact that our arms fought with unconditional surrender upon their banners. Unconditional surrender is the modern formula for never-ending warfare and annihilation. No doubt it responded to the hue and cry of the American population. However, there was one man who was always dubious about it. That man was James Forrestal, and, if his diary is ever published, his misgivings (which turned to despair) may be revealed. It may even explain his gesture in going to Iwo Jima. Unable to buck the passion and the hysteria of the men at home, he decided to share the agony of the men on the beaches. On Forrestal's return he tried again to influence events, and eventually found a likeminded soul in Secretary Byrnes. The two sought a modification of unconditional surrender—in fact if not in theory—in favor of the Emperor. Without it, as they knew, there would have been no surrender of the peripheral Japanese armies. They had to contend with the bitter-enders, but succeeded in their campaign, thus paving the way for surrender. However, the modification did not qualify the basic war aim to make Japan impotent, for already the Japanese were crushed, and the retention of the Emperor merely held them together in their defeat.

Now the peace-makers in Washington hope to make the peace with Japan more or less a return to the past. This is due to the disillusion with Russia and to the demonstrated lack of power content of China. It is a miraculous change of front—a complete twist of the circle from the days when the United States fought to extirpate co-prosperity. Of course the new co-prosperity sphere that is beginning to be talked about is not to be militarized, as of old; but there is a feeling in favor of the rearmament which the occupation authorities, carrying out the aims of the war, made Japan eschew in its new constitution. The aggression in Korea, which appears to have been precipitated by Muscovite knowledge of this design, has hardened the nostalgia into policy, and Japan as a "Switzerland" (General MacArthur's analogy)—neutral, permanently disarmed—is a completely scrapped concept in American policy. Since Korea, for instance, the Japanese have been allowed to raise a "national police reserve" of 75,000, with former Japanese officers in charge.

The uppermost thought in the minds of the American peacemakers is, of course, the need to get military safeguards. Before Korea there was ceaseless talk about bases in Japan. Since Korea, with a U. N. police power established ad hoc, the need, surely, has been transformed. The United States should work to combine a peace with Japan with the formal establishment of a U. N. Police Authority out of the present anti-aggressionists. Let us seek bases in Japan for the United Nations and try to enlist Japanese in a permanent police force of the United Nations. Some of the mistakes of the war and the peace might possibly be repaired along this route.

China's "Friends"

The perennial debate on China has been sharpened by the aggression in Korea in a manner which suggests that policy toward that country is going to rate high among the November issues. But Senator McCarran's contribution to the subject smacks more than a little of hypocrisy. The Truman Administration is held to have wrecked the Chiang Kai-shek government. Assuming that Chiang Kai-shek got any aid from the outside in wrecking himself and his government, Senator McCarran himself is entitled to a front seat in the wrecking crew. For the Nevadan was one of the crusaders in behalf of silver that launched this country on the Silver Purchase Act of 1934; this irretrievably injured China.

Silver used to be China's money standard, so that when, as part of the New Deal, this country started in all markets to buy up silver at any price, it boosted the price of China's money standard. From 30 cents an ounce silver went up to $1.29, where the United States pegged it. This dear money raised the Chinese price of goods abroad, so that China could not purchase freely. It threw Chinese money policy, moreover, out of kilter. K. P. Chen, one of China's leading bankers and one of the most respected of China's elder statesmen, put the case against America and its silverites in this way:

> On account of this American purchasing plan, not only was monetary stabilization denied China but the nightmare of civilization, the depression, came to fall upon China as its prey. The rise of the silver price brought in its wake, as far as China is concerned, falling prices, shrinkage of currency, destruction of industries and business, a greater deficit in the government's budget, and increasing chaos in society.

The consequence was that China was forced off the silver standard in order, as Mr. Chen put it, "to stabilize her currency and avoid national bankruptcy." It never succeeded.

The McCarrans are the "friends" of China who now want to subsidize Chiang Kai-shek in order to keep up his hopeless fight with his opponents in China—Communists and others. The unfortunate Chinese people, who yearn only for peace, must be groaning, "O Lord, save us from our friends." All the help they ask for is to be left alone for a spell—after all the senseless interventions which have made them drink so much bitter tea.

More Potatoes

It seems well nigh criminal, at a time when the United States is taking on enormous new defense expenditures, to be paying out money to dump surplus potatoes in New Jersey. Yet, because of an unrealistic price support law and lush inducements to growers to produce, not for the market but for the Government, last year's sordid process is being repeated. The Department of Agriculture lost an estimated 90 million dollars in supporting the 1949 potato crop; present estimates are that it will be stuck for at least 75 million dollars on the 1950 crop. The destructive process is moving northward. So far the Government has bought about 6½ million bushels of the 1950 crop, beginning in the Carolinas, and soon it will face a similar problem in Maine. Incidentally, about two thirds of the potatoes bought so far have had to be sold back to farmers at 1 cent a hundred pounds to be used for livestock feed or destroyed.

This essay in upside down economics is possible even at the lowest support level which the current law permits—60 percent of parity. Indeed, the 60 percent figure was sufficient to bring the highest per acre yield in New Jersey history, and 40 percent or more of that crop must be bought by the Government because market prices are below the support level. Even though some of these Government-owned potatoes will be used for school lunches and mental and penal institutions, and a few will be used industrially, large numbers must be dumped. There are remarkably few takers for industrial alcohol, for example, even though all the manufacturer needs to pay is the cost of transportation.

All this is the price of repeated congressional catering to a special agricultural interest over the protest of the Department of Agriculture. It is the inevitable result of a support system which takes too little account of technological advance—mechanization, new fertilizers, new insecticides. Potato farmers have found a way to beat every restriction so far enacted.

Fortunately, an end to this nonsense may be in sight. Congress some months ago enacted a law applicable to the 1951 potato crop under which there could be no price support unless the crops were under marketing quotas. There is no machinery in the law under which the Department of Agriculture can arrange potato quotas. Thus, without further legislation, there will be no price support on the 1951 crop. Undoubtedly Congress will be under strong pressure to provide for marketing quotas, and it is true that rigid quotas with penalties could hold down the loss, though they might invite other abuses. But if Congress does yield to the demand for some sort of potato support, it is absolutely essential to couple this with practical measures to divert fringe and high-cost potato growers into other forms of production. The public has had quite enough of potato give-aways out of taxpayers' funds.

Britain's Trade

Britain's visible adverse trade balance—or the excess of imports over exports— for the first five months of the year was larger than in the corresponding period of 1949. The London Times warns that no improvement will occur until and unless the United Kingdom can satisfy the larger demand for its manufactures resulting from the larger dollar and sterling earnings of the sterling area. Delays in shipment and high production costs of British exports tend to divert business to dollar areas and "put some ultimate strain on the sterling area countries' loyalty to the dollar pool." The reference is to Australia's complaint that in spite of a boom in its wool exports, the proceeds go to swell the pool, without commensurate advantage to Australia.

In the United Kingdom, the remedy lies in more production and stout resistance to inflationary pressures that raise production costs. That will be an extremely difficult task, especially now that the British are preparing to devote more of their limited resources to meet increased military demands. But unless it is carried out the British will never attain the self-sufficiency necessary to emancipate them from external aid, or respond adequately to the security danger which the aggression in Korea has revealed.

Letters To The Editor

Chiang And MacArthur

With regard to the letter "Chiang misleads MacArthur" in your issue of August 10 and signed anonymously as "Disgusted Chinese," I wish to point out that the author is obviously not a Chinese, because at the end of his third paragraph he said that the bombings of the Nationalist air force on the mainland of China only "aid Communists in convincing the Asiatic people that we are the true trouble-makers." The word "we" is a slip of the tongue that betrays his nationality. Any foreigner may criticize the Chinese National government if he wants, but he has no business to pose as a Chinese in doing so.

I have checked up with a responsible official in the Commerce Department who has charge of aviation gasoline, and have been told that the records of the Office of International Trade as well as the new Office of Industry and Commerce are confidential, and not available to the public. In fact, the Commerce Department has no record of the Chinese air force's stockpile of aviation gasoline of such a recent date. To attribute the source of information to the Commerce Department is therefore another falsehood which is unfair to the department.

Throughout my dealings with the Commerce Department, I know that that department sometimes issues licenses to exporters before the latter have concluded deals with foreign buyers. If the buyers find the price too high, they are under no obligation to purchase merely because a license has been issued to the exporter. Between February and June, referred to in the letter, the Chinese air force did buy aviation gasoline from another exporter, because his price is much lower. I arranged for the license to the latter exporter, at the request of the Washington office of the Chinese air force.

It is entirely unfair to General MacArthur to say that he would ship aviation gasoline to Formosa without knowing whether it was really needed or not. Equally unfair is it to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to say that he has pulled wool over General MacArthur's eyes for political purposes. The author has posed himself as a greater military authority than General MacArthur when he says that the bombings by the Chinese air force on the mainland have no military value, but that the single fuel tank sent to Formosa would give the Chinese National government "a new chance to exploit the mainland."

D. K. LIEU,

Editor's Note: "Disgusted Chinese" is the pseudonym of a person of Chinese descent with American citizenship, whose name, for reasons of position and connections, could not be disclosed, but of whose credentials this newspaper was assured.

Part-Time War

The lack of material enthusiasm that has been shown to date by the United Nations in general for the efforts of a few in Korea necessitates a reevaluation of the causes that have been put forth for the failure of the League of Nations. If an organization of nations cannot effectively meet an issue of aggression and war, then the value of such an organization is doubtful.

On our home front it is difficult to say where Mr. Truman's idea of fighting a part-time war will eventually lead us. One effect of his actions, however, is certain; they will tend to destroy the morale of any individual that is put into uniform and they will result in a tremendous amount of unnecessary casualties. If he is basing his actions on intelligence reports that the Russians do not want war at the present time, his intelligence is as questionable now as it has been in the past. Russia is in better position to fight a direct war or a series of indirect wars now than she will be 5 or 10 years from now, for with each passing week the opposition to communism increases.

Needs In The Crisis

Now is the hour all political greed and selfish business should be swept clean off all desks and out of all minds and replaced with the business of the hour, and that is, what is vital for our country in this crisis.

If rationing is best for our cause, let us have it now but let us have it without the graft, greed and black markets we had in the last war.

It is very easy for some to have the other fellow make the supreme sacrifice, while they preserve their comforts, profits and lives.

We Americans ought to be wearing deep mourning and hang our heads in shame, for sending young inexperienced men, ill equipped for their tasks over there. This situation was a disgrace to American planning. When are we going to learn the powerful wisdom of these words, "In peace prepare for war"?

We want to know the cold facts about the situation and needs of our country. We want it made crystal clear to us the part we must take in this crisis, regardless of the sacrifices involved. These are our rights as American citizens.

War Objectives

We should be thankful for Mark Sullivan's article of August 13 in which he dares challenge the odious modern theory that all we need to do in war is to lick the other fellow, then go home and everything will be all right.

When General Sherman said a century ago: "War's only legitimate object is a more perfect peace," it must have sounded like common sense. In our days the same terse sentence would cause many eyebrows to be raised in high quarters. Yet was General Sherman an appeaser, a subversive? Did he give aid and comfort to the Confederates by his words?

I, for one, will join the opinion of Mark Sullivan and General Sherman and I claim that the next war's objectives do not have to be dreamed up but are well known to all. At mobilization, which means now, all pending plans should be put to work such as the ripe and practical ones of Atlantic Union, Schuman Plan and European Union. These would grow naturally in strength during the conflict. All armies in action should be international as was the fact in wars I and II, especially as in the cases of General Eisenhower's SHAEF, with the firm understanding of keeping them that way after the war.

From this solid core of realities of yesterday and of today all the other hopes of man could spring. Atlantic and European Unions could federate. With their single command and integrated army they would be one in foreign policy.

To hasten victory and obtain victory in peace we should prune from our systems all the evil socialistic contagions which are blighting our countries and making them ripe for physical and mental surrender to communism. Karl Marx should be our best guide as to what not to do.

Alaska Land Rights

I must take issue with Mary Lee Council whose letter of August 7 charges that this association's objections to the anti-reservation clause in the current Alaska statehood bill are "purely academic." The clause repeals the 1936 law, as stated by Eduard C. Lindeman in his August 1 letter. Unless that law was "purely academic" how can its repeal be?

Miss Council's statements are virtually identical with those sent me directly by Alaskan Delegate Bartlett to which I replied (in part):

"I cannot agree that this is merely an academic matter. Confirmation and definition of native land titles has been awaiting action since 1867. The endless postponement of a settlement has maintained a cloud over all land titles in Alaska. Events have shown that there are strong influences opposed to giving the natives title to lands justly and properly theirs. Delay is an asset to those influences and a source of alarm to the natives. They feel, and we think with reason, that the purpose of the delay is to allow the opposition more time.

"We feel that this provision is a source of antagonism and friction between the natives and nonnatives of Alaska; that it unreasonably delays giving the natives their rights without any advantage to the state and the rest of the people; and that such an action at this time can and will be interpreted as discrimination against a non-Caucasian minority. We also believe it most untimely to include such a provision, with its bad effect upon the confidence of the Eskimos and other natives, at a time when our Alaskan defense system is based on outposts manned by native volunteers."

On several points, Miss Council is inaccurate:

1. Contrary to her statement, present authority of the Secretary of the Interior to establish reservation is and was enacted by Congress in 1936 as "an instrument for settlement of the land question." (House Report 2244, Seventy-fourth Congress, second session, 1936).

2. The Supreme Court did not rule in 1949 (in the Karluk case, in which this association filed a brief) that establishment of reservations gives no title. On the contrary, the court confirmed Karluk land and water rights because of the validity of Karluk Reservation as established by the Secretary of the Interior.

Those who challenge Alaskan native land rights and titles will no doubt seek to create the necessity for further litigation and legislation. But their challenge and the actions they force upon defenders of native rights do not invalidate existent native rights and titles.

3. Establishment of reservations does not "set the natives apart from other residents of Alaska" or segregate them in any way. Alaskan natives as citizens of the United States are as free to come and go as they please after receiving title to their lands as they were before. The difference is they come and go with a feeling of security in the possession of their lands.

Miss Council makes one fundamental point with which I am in complete agreement: "Those (aboriginal) rights should be determined . . . entirely apart from the statehood issue." Exactly. That is another sound reason for removing the anti-reservation clause from the statehood bill.

Talking Back To Russia

By Malvina Lindsay

Negative Technique

ON EVERY side today someone is telling what this country ought to be doing about psychological warfare. Yet strangely in all the clamor for a burnt offering to appease wounded national pride over Korea, no one has demanded an investigation, with Klieg lights and television, as to why this Nation three years ago this summer began its big psychological and cultural retreat throughout the world.

What subversive influences, investigators might ask, caused members of Congress in 1947 to cut in half appropriations for the foreign information program? What Soviet master spies under the Capitol dome caused American libraries and information centers to be closed in crucial spots abroad, mobile motion picture units in China, Malaya, Siam, the Philippines to be put in storage, the Voice of America to surrender its best European listening spots?

However, there are enough Lot's wives already transfixed by the scene behind. The question now is: What strategy for the revived psychological front?

The average armchair strategist in this field wants American propaganda to be harder hitting. He wants it to outshriek Soviet broadcasts, speakers and statements in denial of Soviet lies and to follow up with strong counteraccusations. Yet such a procedure could become entirely a global fishwife quarrel, with the Voice of America losing some of the confidence it has steadily built up.

HOW TO make such an offensive of words convincing is the big question. Charges and name calling are not enough in a world seasoned and cynical to propaganda.

One down to earth approach has recently been undertaken by Radio Free Europe, sponsored by the National Committee for a Free Europe. One of its techniques is to contrast real life behind the Iron Curtain with Soviet promises about it. Beamed to satellite countries, this radio program has many political exiles working with it. These can supply information with the authority of experience.

Some students of propaganda would have this country hammer into the ears of the world expose of Soviet slave camps, Soviet poverty, Soviet individuals' lack of freedom, state control of religion, art, science, family life.

Those politically-minded think our propagandists should base their big attack on Soviet imperialism. Some would have them substitute "Russian Imperialism" or "Red fascism" for "communism," especially in places where this word has neutral or even favorable connotations.

Those who take the long view regard our propaganda's greatest need is something to be for, rather than against. It should have a cause, a hope, an inspiration to hold out to those we are trying to influence, they say. Even Soviet propaganda, they point out, is constructive—and clever—enough to repeat endlessly that the Kremlin is for peace.

THIS COUNTRY has repeatedly made proposals for peace in the United Nations. Other peace proposals have been made in Congress. Surely out of these could be developed some new simple and reasonable-sounding peace plan—for operation under the United Nations—with which the listening and reading world could be bombarded. Surely such a proposal could be coupled with reconstruction offers that would appeal to the imagination and hopes of the masses reaching for less oppressed lives. Why should the Communists have a copyright on a "peace" petition?

Widely forgotten today is what the weapon of words did to win the first World War. They were the words of Woodrow Wilson. And 32 years ago Americans were alert enough on the psychological front to spread these words, by means of a vast propaganda machine, throughout the world.

The Fourteen Points were developed early in 1918 as a result of a newspaperman's suggestion that President Wilson boil the peace terms of his speeches and statements down to "placard paragraphs" to be fed into enemy countries. These terms, called the greatest diplomatic victory of the war, were not negative. They embodied concrete proposals for a "peace without revenge," as well as inspiring ideals for the "self-determination of nations," and the building of an orderly governed world.

True these ideals have not been realized—as yet. But the words of the Fourteen Points sparked men's ideas and aspirations. Above all, they hastened the Armistice of November 11.

Deportation

I was greatly surprised at the amount of news your paper gave to the court hearing of an unimportant person like myself (story published August 10.) I feel that when newspapers give so much attention to what happens in the court, people will get justice.

To establish my honor, I spent years with the Greek underground and the Greek army fighting against our enemies, especially the Communists who killed my mother. I came to this civilized country to improve my education so I could better help the people of Greece when I return there. I hope that American justice will give a chance to present my case and clear my name before I return to my wife and child.

The Battle: Second Phase

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN KOREA—As these words are written, the enemy is plainly massing for a great attack which may force another general withdrawal or even break for good the thin, almost unsupported line guarding our Korean beachhead. Measured by this threat, the American success in the fighting on the Chinju approaches has no great immediate importance; and if withdrawal comes, we may even have to give up again the ground our men fought so hard to gain.

Nonetheless, it seems worthwhile to complete the report of this first offensive action by our forces in Korea, which was begun earlier in this space. It has already been told how the first two days of our drive in the southeast were days of bitter frustration, with the enemy pinning down our main forces, our supply cut by roadblocks and sniper fire, and a heavy toll being taken of our men by the cruel mountain warfare.

On the evening of the offensive's second day, August 8, the whole effort was still halted by the failure of their spearhead unit, the Fifth Regimental Combat Team, to move down the coastal road that is the main approach to Chinju. The stalled Fifth Regimental Combat Team blocked the First Marine Brigade from going. And on the inland road that was the second attack route, the Thirty-fifth Regimental Combat Team had also been forced to halt after reaching its initial objectives, for fear of getting too far ahead of the other units. Moreover, the Fifth Regimental Combat Team, which had been thrown into this offensive without any previous experience of combat, had already made two attacks that day without gaining much ground.

IN THESE unpromising circumstances, the commander of the American task force, Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, had no alternative but to drive his men. When the failure of the Fifth Regimental Combat Team's afternoon attack was reported to him, he grimly ordered still a third attack to begin at 9 p. m., and stringently required the Fifth's commander, Col. Godwin Ordway, jr., to reach his main objective—high ground where the Chinju road traverses a pass—at all costs.

Thus in the last moment of dusk, when forms along the roadside were mere gray shapes, the weary men entered their vehicles and began the move forward. Artillery and tanks (which in this unfavorable countryside must be used almost wholly as mobile guns) began to soften up the enemy lodgements. While the big guns roared in the darkness, the men left their vehicles and toiled up the mountainside to dislodge the North Koreans from the crest. This time, the resistance collapsed in a rattle of firing. The Fifth Regimental Combat Team had broken through, and so rolled forward.

Such was the turning point. The whole enemy resistance on August 7 and 8 had in fact been carried on by isolated groups of North Korean soldiers holding commanding mountain peaks, assisted by other mobile groups carrying on harassing attacks upon the American positions, or infiltrating behind the lines to cut the vital road supply routes. When the key peaks had been taken, there was little enemy strength behind them. Moreover, the infiltrators, who are miscalled guerillas, were forced by their dependence on supply by runner to fall back hastily; and while sniper fire and attempts to form roadblocks rapidly began in the immediate rear of our new front, the section of road that had been formerly so troubled became as peaceful as a country lane.

DESPITE these improving prospects, there was anger and dismay at headquarters on the morning of August 9, for the Fifth Regimental Combat Team, having reported full success, had really halted by mistake only halfway to its goal. Yet the way was now open for the first Marine Brigade to go through, down its destined track among the sea cliffs. And while the Marines prepared to move, General Kean hurried to the front to take personal command of the continuing drive of the Fifth Regimental Combat Team.

Most of that day's gains were in fact made, against slight resistance, by the Fifth and Thirty-fifth Regimental Combat Teams, the latter pushing down its upper road to meet its comrade unit. Yet the memorable sight was the take-off of the Marines. It was afternoon when the First Marine Battalion led off with three heavy tanks lumbering in the forefront. As the first tank rounded a shoulder of the curving sea cliff and was silhouetted against the blue bay beyond, the late, deep golden sun struck all the long, quickly marching files of men wending along the mountain track for a full mile behind.

And even more moving than this unreal beauty was to see the Marines' Third Battalion get ready in its turn. Here there was no picture—a huddle of men in the lee of a hill were merely clustering around the water trucks or cleaning their weapons or sleeping in the ditch. But these same men had only just been relieved on two mountain peaks above by fresh companies of the Twenty-fourth Regimental Combat Team.

For 48 hours, the Marines had been under continuous heavy fire from the enemy who tried here to break through our flank. In the positions on the naked, rocky crests, there had been no sleep for two days. Many casualties had been carried down the steep slopes by the South Korean bearers. Water and even ammunition had been precious things, to be carefully doled out. Yet these men were now preparing for a 10-mile march in darkness without hesitation and with little more complaint than the remark of a young sergeant, "They say war is hell, and I guess they're right".

SO ENDED August 9. August 10 also had its incidents—for the Marines, the collapse of a bridge under a tank, the foot-soldiers going forward alone in the night, while Engineers and South Korean workmen improvised a passage for the guns and transport, and a sharp fight in the afternoon in the little fishing village of Kosong—and for the Fifth Regimental Combat Team, a heavy dawn attack by infiltrators, a hard, ugly fight for the peaks above the pass where they had stopped, and then a hold patrol forward to establish contact with the Thirty-fifth Regimental Combat Team on its upper road and thus to make a solid front at last.

With much toil, with heavy American loss both in killed and wounded, the Sixth North Korean Division had now been decimated and destroyed as a fighting organization. On August 11, the offensive's final objective, the high ground above Chinju, was successfully attained. The battle was over except for the weary task of mopping up the rear. It now only remained to be seen whether the general situation would permit these hard-won positions to be permanently held.

Friendship Of Asia

By Marquis Childs

Unni Nayar's Understanding

IF THERE is one lesson that we in this country find it harder to learn than any other, it is that the struggle with communism cannot be won without winning and holding friends on our side. The immediate and dramatic case in point at this moment is India.

Childs

Prime Minister Nehru of India led his government in support of the United Nations action in South Korea. Without that support the position of the United States would be very much more difficult. In Asia it might well be impossible.

For me, and I think for many people in Washington, in Lake Success and New Delhi, the stand that India has taken is pointed up by a deep sense of personal loss in the death of Col. Unni Nayar, who had been sent from the Indian Embassy in Washington to Korea as an observer for the United Nations. While driving a jeep toward the front line in company with two British newspaper correspondents and a South Korean officer, Colonel Nayar ran over a land mine and all in the jeep were killed.

Unni Nayar was a good citizen of his own country, but he was also a citizen of the world. As a soldier on the side of the Allies in World War II, Nayar endured many hardships and hazards with courage and resolution. A month ago when he was asked to go to Korea as an observer, he willingly accepted the assignment.

Reports from there tell of how he shuttled back and forth between United Nations headquarters and the fighting front. And these reports stressed the qualities which those of us who came to know him here quickly recognized—his goodness, his kindness, his desire to bring the United States and India closer together in understanding and friendship.

THESE ARE the qualities urgently needed in the relationship between the two countries today. There is evidence of a dangerous drift toward suspicion and hostility which must be countered.

The United States could not accept Nehru's proposal to seat the Chinese Communists in the U. N. Security Council. As Secretary of State Dean Acheson made clear, this would be yielding to the Communist blackmail of force. It would be an invitation to the same kind of blackmail everywhere.

There have been many in both countries who felt that Acheson shut the door on further peace negotiations as proposed by Nehru with unnecessary haste and firmness. For one thing, this gave Soviet Russia a fine propaganda opening. Russian Delegate Jacob Malik has been using it at Lake Success to try to prove that the United States is not interested in peace while Stalin welcomed the opportunity to settle the Korean dispute. Here is still another example of the way in which Russia has grabbed the peace issue.

The able correspondent of the New York Times in India, Robert Trumbull, reports that anti-American feeling has never been so widespread as it is now. Partly, as Trumbull explains it in a dispatch from New Delhi, this is a reaction to reports from the Korean war that tell of the bombing and destruction of town after town as the United States Air Force, aided by British and Australian planes, carries out its mission of destroying the war-making potential of the North Koreans.

THIS IS an emotional and, in a sense, an irrational reaction since the bombing is merely one of the realities of modern warfare. And India has underwritten the effort to put down the Communist invasion of the republic of South Korea.

But it is clear that behind this reaction is a deep and instinctive feeling that we in the West will ignore at our peril, that we are a small island of whites in a world of color. It is a feeling centering on the fact that Americans and Europeans, who have been traditionally the powers exerting colonial superiority, are now with superior weapons killing Asians. It is a feeling that, in the Western attitude, Asians are considered expendable.

This points up the monstrous folly of any contemplated or proposed use of the atomic bomb in the Korean war. Fortunately responsible officials, both military and civilian, have never at any time considered its use in a limited war. Asians will never forget Hiroshima and Nagasaki where the bomb was used for the first and only time against civilians in two Asian cities.

We have friends in India like Colonel Nayar who want to build on the understanding that already exists. America must do everything possible to further that understanding and to avoid unnecessarily slamming any doors that can be left even a little way open.

Stassen Asks Blunt Warning To Kremlin on Aggressions

point in the world by these Communist imperialist forces, we shall hold the Kremlin strictly responsible?

"Must it not be our policy to ask the United Nations Assembly to fix that responsibility upon the Kremlin? Should we not make it clear that an attack on Indo-China, or Burma, or Greece, or Turkey, or Germany, or Austria, will not simply mean that war comes to (those countries), but will mean that war will come to Moscow, to the Urals, and to the Ukraine?"

This should be done in advance, he continued, by congressional resolution and then laid before the U.N. for approval.

"Under this vital policy," he said, "America must be prepared to bring war directly to the centers of Communist power if they persist in starting World War III through satellite aggression."

President Truman, in a message to Congress July 19, indirectly warned Russia that new Communist aggression outside Korea would bring on World War III.

He said he was sure that "those who have it in their power to unleash or withhold acts of armed aggression must realize that new recourse to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

Stassen urged an expenditure of 35 billion dollars a year for arming the United States and friendly nations.

And, to prevent this from damaging the domestic economy, he called for a tax increase of 10 billion dollars a year and cuts in Federal, State and local government nondefense spending of at least 7 billion dollars a year.

Stassen began his address with an attack on the Truman Administration. He said it has "sown so many pink seeds that now the American people must reap a Red whirlwind."

History, he added, will "adjudge our country's Administration in these five years to be one of the most incompetent in our Nation's lifetime."

But he said that while it is late it is not too late, and he is completely confident the United States can and will win through.

He looked to Congress for the new leadership because, he said, it as a whole "has been more right these last five years than the executive Administrative." He therefore urged that public opinion and the press encourage Congress to exercise increasing leadership.

Stassen said he is not proposing that the United States start a "preventive war."

"But I am saying," he went on, "that we should set forth with unmistakable clarity that if the Communist leaders do in fact start World War III by aggression through their satellites and puppets, we and our associates in the United Nations intend to finish it, in due time, against the Kremlin itself."

Mediators Seeking to End Strike of 8000 at Packard

Detroit, Aug. 15 (AP). — Federal and State mediators stepped in today to attempt settlement of a strike of 8000 CIO United Auto Workers against the Packard Motor Car Co.

Company and union officials were called to the conference table, and State mediator Robert Lomasney said "we hope to keep them here all night if necessary."

Packard's workers walked out last midnight in a dispute over a new contract to include wage boosts and old-age pensions. It was the first major walkout in the auto industry since a 100-day strike against Chrysler Corp. was settled May 4.

All Packard operations were shut down by the walkout.

The Briggs Manufacturing Co., a major Packard supplier of bodies and parts, said that if the strike continues four days it will be forced to lay off an estimated 4000 employes.

The UAW claims Packard is offering "inadequate" wage increases and union security clauses in a new contract. Packard insists this is not the case, and says the strike is a "pressure move" applied just as it is beginning production of 1951 models due in dealer showrooms August 24.

Chemical Strikers Urged To 'Carry on' by Chief

By the United Press

Some 7000 striking chemical workers who process 60 percent of the Nation's war-essential soda ash were urged by their union district leader yesterday to "carry on" their 10-week walkout.

A. Denny Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers District 50 and brother of UMW Chieftain John L. Lewis, sent congratulatory telegrams to the three striking local union presidents and urged them to carry on.

Syracuse Steel Plant Closed by Dispute

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The Sanderson-Halcomb works of Crucible Steel Co. of America was shut down today by a strike of 2080 production workers.

The walkout stemmed from a dispute over job classifications and a work-week schedule in the plant's melting department. The steel workers are said to be demanding a six-day week, with time and one-half for working a seventh day. The company has maintained its production demands necessitate contracting with the union on a seven-day-week basis.

World-Telegram Strike Parleys Stepped Up

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Negotiators in the 9-week-old New York World-Telegram and Sun strike met for five and a half hours today, but neither side would comment on results.

New meetings were scheduled Wednesday as Federal mediators intensified efforts to bring about a settlement in the strike, which has kept the big afternoon daily shut down since June 13.

Representatives of management and the striking CIO American Newspaper Guild have agreed to continue sessions indefinitely, with time out for eating and sleeping, until there is either agreement or an absolute deadlock.

Remington Rand, CBS in Joint TV Color Project

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—A cooperative agreement for manufacture of color television equipment for commercial use was concluded today by the Columbia Broadcasting System and Remington Rand, Inc.

The equipment is to be designed for use over closed circuits, and hence its application does not have to wait approval by the Federal Communications Commission of standards for color television for broadcast to the public.

However, the equipment makes use of the CBS color television system developed by the network and recommended to the FCC for broadcast use.

Remington Rand, manufacturer of office machines and business equipment, has been producing black and white television equipment for industrial use under the name "Vericon." The new color equipment will be called "Vericolor." It will consist of a compact, lightweight camera, a control unit with its own monitor or viewing screen, and as many additional color monitors or viewers as may be required.

fice did not answer last night. The Westchester said there was no answer from the apartment.

Grunewald was said to be an ex-FBI man. A Pan-American Airways official said Grunewald had been a consultant and investigator for the firm for two or three years, but not a regular employe. Grunewald was said to have cottages in New Jersey and Florida.

Pepper said Nolan's testimony also attributed to Shimon an indication to Nolan that the police officer had tapped the phone of the late Senator Josiah W. Bailey (D., N. C.) This was in 1945, said Pepper, when the North Carolinian, as chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, was opposing a bill supported by Brewster aimed at giving a single air line the monopoly on overseas routes.

The so-called "chosen instrument" airlines bill also turned up in the Hughes inquiry when Hughes charged and Brewster denied the Maine Senator told Hughes the problem of war contracts would be dropped if Hughes agreed to merge his TWA (Trans World Airline) with Pan-American Airways.

The alleged Bailey wire tapping took place in the 2500 block of Q st., according to Pepper's description of Nolan's testimony.

The Pepper committee, in its afternoon meeting, heard two witnesses besides Nolan. They were: John M. Howard, general commercial manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., and Robert E. Corish, credit manager of the Mayflower Hotel.

Howard, waiting to go into the hearing room, told reporters that as far as the telephone company is concerned "we do not tap wires and we do not condone it; we do everything possible to preserve the privacy of communications."

Corish, before going into the committee room, said: "As far as I know there has never been any wire tapping done at the Mayflower Hotel; a hotel certainly would not condone it."

Lieutenant Shimon may make his first appearance in closed meetings tentatively set for Friday and Monday, Pepper said.

This would come after the first public hearing, set for 10 a.m. Thursday in the Senate Caucus Room. Thursday witnesses are to be Police Pvt. John McHale, who told Shimon's chief, Barret, about the wire-tapping activities in which, he told the Pepper group, he took part with Shimon, Joseph Tait, head of the United States Recording Co., who testified he loaned recording equipment to Shimon at various times; and Private Detective James G. Bryant, quoted by Pepper as testifying he listened through a wire tap to Hughes' conversations with Hughes' aides at the Mayflower in 1947 and gave his notes to Shimon.

Any Action on Shimon Awaits End of Hearing

No disciplinary action against Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon is planned while the Senate wire-tapping investigating continues.

This was made clear yesterday by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent.

Barrett told a reporter that if disciplinary action were decided on, it would not occur until after the hearings were over and until after Barrett has conferred with the Commissioners.

Shimon was called off his assignment as investigator for the United States Attorney's office last year after Barrett ordered the department investigation of Shimon's alleged wire-tapping. Since then, Shimon has been on precinct duty.

D. C. Civil Defense Request Hit

tion gathered in the past war couldn't be used.

Hayes explained that the civil defense organization is predicated on an entirely different thesis because of the A-bomb.

Hayes said money was needed to draw up lists of materials and specialists who would be needed in case of disaster. Representative Sidney R. Yates (D., Ill.), suggested he use "your yellow telephone book."

Hayes politely said "the yellow book will be a big help, but it will not tell us where we can get men who can operate bulldozers or power shovels or things like that or where we can get them quickly; or where we can pick up in a hurry men who are skilled in demolishing structures. . . ."

Radio Needs Cited

At another point, Hayes was testifying on the need for a radio technician and a radio operator to install, operate and maintain the civil defense system's own independent radio equipment, to be operated on a special FCC disaster frequency.

Representative Earl Wilson (R., Ind.) observed:

"What is the radio operator going to do during the next 18 or 20 years of peace when we may not have any emergency? What will he be doing then except be a radio operator at leisure?"

Stockman also was critical of a $5000 item to begin microfilming city records. He said it appeared that "any bureau, board or commission, or department, if they wanted to get their records microfilmed, if they could sell the Commissioners or whoever was in power on this civil defense program, on the idea, they could get a free job of microfilming."

Hayes explaind the money would barely cover the documents showing who owns the city's real estate and the location of its underground utilities. He noted that the loss of these irreplaceable papers would result in municipal chaos.

The full Appropriations Committee has yet to act on the $290,000 civil defense item but generally follows the recommendations of its subcommittees. The money actually is already in the District treasury. But because Congress acts as Washington's city council, not a cent can be spent without congressional sanction.

Russia Returns Iran Prisoners; Talks Resumed

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The Soviet Union, bowing in part to Iranian demands, returned an army officer and three enlisted men today after holding them prisoner for 7 months.

Premier Gen. Ali Razmara said the four soldiers were surrendered at the border town of Charchahe, where they had been captured in a clash between frontier guards.

Razmara said their return was one of three conditions he had set to resumption of Iranian-Soviet trade talks. He said he believed the Russians will comply with his others—return of five other Iranian soldiers and unfreezing of the 11 tons of gold held in Soviet banks since the war.

Razmara said trade talks with the Russians took place yesterday, despite official denials from the Foreign Office and the Soviet Ambassador. But he said the meeting was aimed only at amending the trade treaty ratified three years ago, which the Soviets never have carried out.

Railroad Car Lack Put at 30,000 a Day

With the exception of stock and refrigerator cars, there is a current car shortage of 30,000 a day, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

The association attributes this condition to the following seven factors; increased military movements; increased production for national defense; a widespread rush to stock up against the uncertainties of the future; effects of recent strikes in disrupting the normal pattern of distribution and return of cars; the prevalence of the 5-day week causing a reduction in car utilization; in some regions the movement of both old crop and new crop grain simultaneously; and a reduction of some 50,000 in the number of serviceable cars compared with a year ago.

To alleviate the situation the railroads are expediting their car repairs and are reviewing their operating practices with a view to handling cars more efficiently. They are also diverting refrigerator and stock cars to haul other commodities, where practicable.

The railroads are committed to a program to increase the supply of cars by 122,000, 100,000 of which have been ordered.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Cotton futures moved lower today under presistent pressure by dealers who have purchased cotton from the CCC 1948 pooled stocks. Losses at one time extended to almost $2 a bale, but the market staged a good comeback on short covering and late mill buying. Final prices were 5 to 85 cents a bale lower.

Reaction of Stocks to Events Often Surprises Many People

By J. A. Livingston

The stock market, especially when it reacts to powerful events like the invasion of South Korea, surprises a lot of people. Yet nothing that the stock market ever does can really be said to be "surprising." There has to be a buyer for every seller, an optimist for every pessimist.

Livingston

The bulls are surprised and discomfited when the market goes down. The bears are surprised and equally discomfited when the market goes up. So, when a man says the market acted in a surprising fashion, he's merely using double talk to say he guessed wrong.

There are two great sufferers from stock market surprises. The belongers to the history-will-repeat school are taken aback whenever the market doesn't perform as in the past. Ever since Korea, this group has been upset because history hasn't repeated. Korea hasn't sent stocks down. After the initial panic, common stock prices have advanced and now in many cases are back to where they started from.

Then there are the follow-the-headlines stock traders. They explain the antics of Wall Street by day-to-day events. They, too, are upset by Korea. The market has paid little heed to the bad news, to the successes of the North Koreans against American troops.

Apparently, investors and speculators of July-August, 1950, don't scare easily. They're accustomed to wars and to initial disappointments of wars, having—in many cases—lived through World Wars I and II. You might say today's common stock enthusiast is sophisticated. He assembles four main arguments to justify buying and holding common stocks:

1. Wars are invariably inflationary. The cost of living and wages are pushed up by wars. And since common stocks represent property-land, machines, buildings, raw materials—they're a hedge against inflation. They afford protection against declines in the purchasing power of the dollar.

2. Corporation dividend payments are liberal and earnings are high. General Motors has just declared an extra of $2.50 in addition to the quarterly dividend of $1.50. Net income in the first six months amounted to $10.91 a share. In the case of U. S. Steel, first-half net was $4.08 a share. So, Motors around $90 and Steel at $37 hardly seem overpriced. Even supposing we do have an excess profits tax, they'll still earn enough to pay dividends.

3. What else can you do with money? These times are not like 1914. Then, Americans who were worried about inflation might convert dollars into pounds, or francs. You could flee the dollar. But today the dolllar is the strongest currency in the world. You can't get gold. And if you're going to hold dollars, well, you might as well have the dollars in common stocks.

4. The invigorated defense effort means large-scale orders to the heavy-goods industrits. This puts off indefinitely a recession or depression. Furthermore whenever defense production abates, additional demands for public works and all kinds of goods and services will have been up, assuring another "postwar boom."

That' the wave of logic—the rationalization of the market—at the moment. And it has been aided by the recent New York State law authorizing the investment of 35 percent of trust funds in common stocks. Undoubtedly, some trustees have been using their new authority—cautionusly. That has given the market a new source of buying power, and reinforced the reasoning, the logic. In Wall Street, the best reason for a trend is the trend itself!

Nevertheless, logic could swing the other way. The swing might even occur just when United States troops were doing better—to the dismay of the followers-of-the-headlines. At a moment's notice, investors and speculators could start brooding about the consequences of a stepped-up defense program, about higher corporation taxes, about economic controls, about the possibility of a stiff increase in personal taxes which would cut down investor buying power in the market.

Who can tell? The market, itself, of course. And in its own sweet time and way.

Cotton Board Considers Saturday Hours Change

New York, Aug. 15.—At a recent meeting of the Board of Managers of the New York Cotton Exchange, a proposal to increase the trading session to two hours, during the three Saturdays in September when the Exchange opens at 10:30 a. m., was adopted. Although the proposed amendment will have to be voted on by the Exchange membership, there is a strong indication that the new hours will be adopted.

On September 9, 16, and 23, the Exchange will open at 10:30 a. m. and close at 12:30 p. m. The trading hours during the remainder of the week to continue without change. With the ending of Daylight Saving Time on September 24, the trading hours revert to the 10 a. m. opening and 3 p. m. closing week days, and 12 noon closing on Saturdays.

Food Fair Stores Votes 10 Pct. Stock Dividend

Directors of Food Fair Stores, Inc. yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents on common shares, plus a 10 percent stock dividend. The stock distribution will be made October 31 to holders of record September 29; the cash dividend is payable September 15 to stockholders of record September 1.

Six-Pound Daughter Is Born To Britain's Princess Elizabeth

Ireland, and in Canada and the British bases overseas church bells pealed and 21-gun salutes rang out.

In the chill drizzle outside Clarence House, Elizabeth's stately town mansion, the thousands who have kept watch for days let loose a mighty roar when this brief announcement was posted at the gates:

"Her Royal Highness, the Princess Elizabeth, Dutchess of Edinburgh, was safely delivered of a Princess at 11:50 today.

Doctors Attended

It was signed by Sir William and three other specialists, Sir Gilliatt, the Royal obstetrician, John Weir and Drs. John Peel and V. F. Hall.

By radio a signal flashed to Philip's ship, the frigate Magpie. And tots of rum were issued to the crew "to wet the baby's head." Philip, granted special leave, had flown home from Malta.

Elizabeth and Philip, their friends said, want to call the baby Anne. Her name probably will not be announced until the time of the christening, a month hence, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England. Whatever it is, it will set the style for hundreds of babies born in Britain this summer and fall.

Elizabeth and Philip were married in Westminister Abbey November 20, 1947.

Queen Elizabeth, who apparently was notified that her daughter was in labor, arrived at Clarence House at 11:45 a.m., five minutes before the baby was born.

The Duke of Edinburgh, waiting in an anteroom, head in hands, was the first to be notified. He nervously told friends last Wednesday that the baby was expected "at any minute."

When Prince Charles was born he was delivered by instruments and Elizabeth had to spend three weeks in bed. During the past two weeks the most modern medical and surgical equipment, as well as X-ray machines, were installed in a huge salon on the second floor, near Elizabeth's bedroom.

Philip rushed to the telephone to notify King George, who left Sunday for the grouse-shooting in Scotland, after waiting three days for the event.

Net he called his mother, the former Princess Andrew of Greece, who is now a nun, and his grandmother, the Dowager Marchioness of Milford Haven, who were waiting at Kensington Palace.

Then he put in a call on the private line to Sandringham to inform 83-year-old Queen Mother Mary, who has promised to start the little princess off with the nucleus of a jewel collection.

Then the ebullient Duke called Princess Margaret, who is now fourth in line for the throne. She is visiting the Earl of Dalkeith her unofficial fiance, and his parents, the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, at Drumlanrig Castle in Scotland.

Margaret missed the birth of both her nephew and niece, apparently in conformance with the rule laid down by Queen Victoria that unmarried members of the Royal Family must not be at Court during a Royal birth.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent and the Princess Royal also were notified—all but the Duke of Windsor, emphasizing the gulf that still divides him from the royal family.

The Duke, whose abdication in 1936 to marry the divorced Mrs. Wallis Simpson cleared the way to the throne for Elizabeth and her children, is not on good terms with Queen Elizabeth.

(Notified by newsmen in Biarritz, France, the Duke said: "I am delighted—and more especially since it was the express desire of the Duke of Edinburgh that this should be a girl.")

The baby Princess weighed one pound six ounces less than her 21-month-old brother, Prince Charles, when he was born.

Police kept the throng before the house moving along and allowed no more than 200 in front of the gates at any one time. When Queen Elizabeth returned to Clarence House at 5 p. m. the crowd was estimated—despite the steady rain—at 3000.

India Observes 3d Anniversary Of Her Freedom

New Delhi, Aug. 15 (NYHT).—In an atmosphere of sober self-analysis and a consciousness of deepening world gloom, India today observed the third anniversary of her freedom from British rule.

While the spirit of celebration was present in the thousands of processions and meetings held throughout India, so, too was the admission, voiced more clearly than ever before, that independence in itself had not solved all of India's difficulties and that much hard work still lay ahead both for the Indian people and their leaders.

New Delhi's day-long celebrations began at dawn, when many "prayerful processions" wound through the bazaars and along the avenues, converging on Rajghat, the park where Mahatma Gandhi's remains were cremated, where wreaths were placed on the memorial.

Many more homes are heated with FUEL OIL than with any other fuel in the Greater Washington area. Why? Because actual comparisons on heating medium-sized homes in the area show OIL FIRED UNITS can save an average of $47.26 over gas each season.

And that's not all! FUEL OIL BURNERS can save $68.28 over the use of gas on conversions. (A conversion is an OIL BURNER installed in present furnace.)

Above figures are arrived at by using the F.H.A. formula method to estimate the annual fuel costs for heating dwellings.

McCormack, Short Praise Ex-Rep. May

By The Associated Press

The House yesterday applauded tributes to former Representative Andrew J. May of Kentucky, now in Federal prison on a bribery charge.

May's name came up during discussion of a bill to launch the Government on a 400-million-dollar armory-construction program. May, a Democrat, was chairman of the House Military Committee during World War II. He was convicted in 1947 on a charge of accepting $53,000 in brides for his influence in having war contracts awarded. He was sentenced to serve from 8 to 24 months. His application for parole was rejected last week after he had served his minimum sentence.

Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) told the House he would not resist the opportunity to pay a tribute to "Andy May." He called May "a great American" and said the people of his district "are justified in being proud of him."

McCormack said a man should not be judged by a single incident.

Representative Short (Mo.), ranking Republican member of the Armed Services Committee and a former colleague on the military committee, also praised May. Short said May rendered "a great and honorable service to his Nation during World War II."

Skeeter Had Courage

Beaning Talk Brings Up Newsome Story

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, AUG. 15 (NYHT).—There was a piece about Bob Porterfield, the young Yankee chattel who was hit on the head by a pitched ball last June 10 and, almost two months later, had to be taken back to a hospital because dizziness overtook him when he tried to pitch. It recalled a story which may have been told here before but, if so, can bear retelling because it illustrates the sort of nerve you encounter once in a while on the playing fields.

Red Smith

The story concerns Lamar Newsome, a husky, hot-tempered little guy whom they called Skeeter when he was tending shortstop in the American League. He was one of those guys who stick around the majors for years and years and when at last they are finished you wonder how they ever managed to get up in the first place, with their relatively scanty natural equipment.

The answer, of course, is that they got up, and stayed up, simply by trying twice as hard as the more gifted guys. And it's that quality which makes you like and respect them more than you like and respect the fellow who was born to be a big leaguer.

Skeeter, then, was like that, too small to catch the eye of the average big league scout, and never much of a hitter, but a fine defensive player and a marvelous hustler, a scampering, tireless competitor who clawed up to the majors and stayed for a full career, always trying, always scrapping.

He was hit in the head twice by pitched balls, both times—if memory is accurate—in exhibition games for which he wasn't being paid. He recovered rapidly enough the first time and showed no effects, but the second accident was something else.

IT HAPPENED IN Norfolk, Va., on the exhibition tour North from training camp. It was a dark, windy day and Skeeter never saw the pitch that hit him until it came whistling out of the clouds and was on him. He couldn't duck; just turned his head slightly, and the blow caught him on the left temple.

He hit the ground before he lost consciousness. He was aware of falling, and of great pain. "It felt," he said afterward, "like the ball was stuck in my head." Then he knew nothing for days.

For a while there were grave doubts that he'd ever wake up. He made it, though, and after a stretch in a hospital he was sent home to Georgia with his broken head. He gained very slowly. One day when he thought his health was sound again, he tried to play tennis in the hot Georgia sun. He passed out on the court.

His doctor in Atlanta gave him a good going over for that foolishness of course. Skeeter said, well, idleness had been driving him screwy. He'd better keep still temporarily, the doctor told him, or he'd be still permanently. The doctor told him he'd had two narrow escapes and never would have another; if he ever got hit on the head again, there'd be no use calling a doctor.

So a little after that, Skeeter came up North to rejoin the Athletics. He wasn't able to play, but he could watch the games from the press box and that, he said, was better than sitting around doing nothing down home. Pretty soon he was getting into uniform and taking batting practice and before the summer was out he was back in the lineup.

CONNIE MACK INSISTED that he wear a protective helmet at the plate. The shields which are common now were not standard equipment then, and Skeeter looked over an assortment, picking out the lightest fiber skull cap he could find. It was so flimsy that one day during practice a foul ball dropping a few feet from the top of the batting cage split the helmet in two.

Skeeter didn't tell Connie about that. He didn't repeat what the doctor in Atlanta had told him either. He was playing fine ball in the field, and for the first time in his major league life, he was hitting .300. He was a guy with every good reason to be plate-shy, and you never saw a more unshy guy in your life.

It was at least a year later when he was asked whether the Atlanta doctor's warning hadn't recurred to him once in a while when he went to bat. He said it had, just once.

"On the last day of the season," he said, "we played a doubleheader in Washington. It was a dark windy day, just like the day I got hit in Norfolk. I got one-for-three in the first game, which kept my average up to .300, and the first time up in the second game I got another.

"Like I say, it was a dark, gloomy day. That big Krakauskas was pitching for Washington, as fast and wild as they get. All of a sudden I thought of what that doctor had told me and—well, somehow I didn't care if I didn't get any more hits that day."

Redskins 14-Point Underdogs In Game With Rams Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—Despite help from the Marines, the Washington Redskins apparently still do not have the situation well in hand.

They've been made 14-point underdogs for their professional football exhibition opener against the Los Angeles Rams tomorrow night in the huge Coliseum.

Kickoff is 11:30 p. m. (Washington time) and a crowd of 85,000, largest in the five-year history of the Los Angeles Times charities promotion, is expected.

Eddie LeBaron, spectacular little T-formation quarterback, has been loaned to the Redskins by the Marines for tomorrow night's scrap. In the opinion of those who have observed both squads for the last month, however, the Redskins will have to have more than LeBaron, Sammy Baugh and Bill Dudley to cope with Bob Waterfield, Tom Fears, former Army star Glenn Davis & Co.

It's the formal debut as head coaches for both Herman Ball, of the Redskins, and Joe Stydahar, of the Rams. Ball took over on a temporary basis late last year after Admiral Billick Whelchel was dry

Gene "Mr. America" Stanlee and the midgets take the wrestling spotlight at Turner's Arena tonight. Stanlee is matched with George Macricostas, "The Golden Greek," in the 60-minute time limite feature.

Four midgets are involved in a two-man team bout featuring the the debut of Little Beaver, a full-blooded pint-sized Indian from the northern woods of Canada, and Irish Jackie, of Ireland.

Ez Charles Scores TKO Over Beshore In Round 14

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—Ezard Charles, bullied by mauling Freddie Beshore during the early rounds, technically kayoed the Harrisburg challenger in 2:53 of the 14th round tonight in the third successful defense of his NBA heavyweight title.

A disappointing crowd of 6298 paid only $28,666.36 gross to watch the bout. It was the smallest crowd and gate in modern heavyweight title history. The previous low was $48,192 for Joe Louis-Harry Thomas at Chicago stadium, April 1, 1938.

The lean Negro champion from Cincinnati never dropped the swarming Pennsylvania Dutchman although he had him in trouble several times. Charles appeared ring rusty and off in his timing after a 10-months layoff.

Charles Rather Uncertain

Beshore's onrushing style of infighting bothered the champion no end. He fought in spurts, apparently not sure of himself. Gathering steam in the late rounds, he bombed Beshore with withering body and head punches.

Referee Felix had Charles out front 12-2 when he stepped between the blood-drenched battlers. Judge Anse Carroll saw it 12-1 with one even. Judge Leo Stachowiak had Charles out front 9-3 with two even. The AP card saw 10-2 with two even.

The end came suddenly, just when it appeared that the 5 to 1 underdog challenger was going to last the route. A smashing right staggered Beshore as he came out of a clinch. Another right to the head, followed by six straight punches without return, left Beshore wobbling in midring with his hands down. Noticing the blood streaming from the ear cut, Felix intervened.

Didn't Know About Crouch

With a Joe Louis match, practically set for Yankee Stadium September 27, Charles took few risks. He said later he had Beshore figured out in the first round. Still the champion wound up with a cut left eye that also dripped blood.

"My timing was off," said Charles in his dressing room, "I couldn't get a good right hand shot at him. The guys I trained with were more or less standup guys. I didn't know he was going to fight that way."

Phils Win, 9-1, Lead by Six

Philadelphia, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies increased their National League lead to six games over the runnerup Boston Braves tonight, winning 9 to 1 before 32,215. Army-bound Curt Simmons received credit for his 15th pitching victory but needed help from the ever reliable fireman Jim Konstanty, making his 53d appearance of the year.

Simmons, who has lost seven games, held the Braves in check with four hits until the eighth. Then they loaded the bases on three singles with only one out. Konstanty came on the scene and promptly put out the fire, forcing pinch-hitter Tommy Holmes to hit into a double play.

Dropo Hurt As Pitch Hits Him in Head

Boston, Aug. 15 (AP).—Walt Dropo, flashy rookie Red Sox first baseman, suffered a cerebral concussion tonight when "beaned" by Philadelphia Pitcher Hank Wyse in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader which the Boston American Leaguers won by scores of 8-3 and 9-4.

At Sancta Maria Hospital, doctors reported inspection of wet X-ray plates showed no fracture but the husky Moosup, Conn., athlete was ordered held for "at least a couple of days."

Just an inning before the accident, Dropo had clouted his twenty-seventh home run of the season.

Houtteman Bests Lemon

Tigers Beat Tribe, 4-1 On Groth's 4-Run Homer

Cleveland, Aug. 15 (AP).—With Johnny Groth smashing a grand slam home run in the first, Detroit evened a critical two-game series with the Cleveland Indians today by winning 4 to 1.

The victory, Art Houtteman's fifteenth, shoved the Indians back to 3½ games behind league-leading Detroit. Bob Lemon, seeking to make it two in a row for Cleveland, suffered his sixth defeat. He has won 18.

Houtteman needed some cool relief twirling from Marlin Stuart, righthander with a sinking fast ball, recalled only several weeks ago from the Toledo Mud Hens.

Stuart saved Houtteman's triumph in the seventh inning, which Houtteman opened by walking the first two men.

In came Stuart and the first man he pitched to, Thurman Tucker, walked, too, filling the bases. But he then fanned Larry Doby and forced Luke Easter to roll into a double play.

Dodgers Edge Giants, 1 to 0

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Roy Campanella's second-inning single scoring Carl Furillo from second base, gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 1-0 victory over the New York Giants tonight. A crowd of 49,021 saw Preacher Roe edge Larry Jansen.

Jansen gave up only four hits to Roe's five.

Pirates Give Up 6 Runs in 9th, Then Score Six to Win, 10-9

Pittsburgh, Aug. 15 (AP).—It was a story book finish for the Pirates in their 10-9 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today.

The Bucs gave up six runs in the top of the ninth, then stormed back with six runs of their own to win.

It made the day perfect for 5495 paying Bucs fans and 8004 children who also saw Ralph Kiner slam his 33d home run. Johnny Hopp was aboard for Kiner's fifth inning blow.

Bill Werle took a 4-3 lead into the ninth when the Reds opened up on him, Mel Queen and Bill MacDonald to acquire a 9-4 lead.

Then in the final half of the ninth Cincinnati's Howie Fox and John Hetki were unable to stem the Buc tide. Clyde McCullough drove in the winning run with his fourth hit.

Mrs. Frank Huseman Winner at Bethesda

Mrs. Frank Huseman won the ladies' day tournament at Bethesda Country Club yesterday, an 18-hole handicap affair in which the total number of putts was subtracted from the net score. She had 103-25-45-33. Mrs. Joe La Salle and Mrs. John Burchard tied for second with net 36s.

16,811 See Two Games

Bearden Wins, 10-5, Kuzava Loses, 9-0

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Things were pretty well split up at Griffith Stadium yesterday. The Nats split two games (but not a double-header) with the New York Yankees, winning the first, 10-5, and losing the second, 9-0.

The games were split up on an afternoon (2:30) and night (8:30) basis as separate contests. The fans had to pay the full price to each game. This was Owner Clark Griffith's first experiment in charging separate admissions to two games on the same day. The day game drew 4288 and the night game 12,523.

Ford Gives Only 3 Hits in Nightcap; Bauer Has Homer

Rookie Whitey Ford hurled a three-hitter as the Yankees blanked the Nats, 9-0 in the night game. Bob Kuzava and Elmer Singleton, Washington's pitchers, took a 12-hit shellacking, and got scant help from a porous defense which committed three untimely errors.

One of the Yankee blows was Hank Bauer's 10th homer of the year, a liner which sailed into the leftfield bleachers in the ninth inning.

Ford pitched a magnificient game, and might have come up with a no-hitter with any kind of luck. Sam Mele made the first two Nat singles and Ed Stewart the last.

Nats Hits are Puny

Mele broke his bat on a soft single to center in the second inning, and he dropped a Texas Leaguer just out of Woodling's reach in the fourth. Stewart's drooping liner barely escaped rightfielder Bauer's outstretched glove with two outs in the ninth.

Singles by Joe Collins, Phil Rizzuto and Yogi Berra, wrapped around walks to Woodling and Bauer, gave the Yanks two in the fifth inning.

Errors Aid Yankees

With the help of two errors, the Yanks boosted it to 6-0 in the eighth. Johnson singled, was sacrificed to second and moved to third as Dente misplayed Jerry Coleman's grounder. Collins' squeeze bunt caught the Nats by surprise and Johnson scored. Ford sacrificed Coleman to third and Collins to second, and Coleman scored as Mickey Grasso made a wild pickoff throw. Woodling's double scored Collins.

In the ninth off Singleton, Bauer's homer, singles by Jackie Jensen and Coleman, and error by Ostrowski and Collins' double were good for three more and wound up the scoring.

Kuzava's loss was his eighth against seven wins. Ford's triumph was his third against no setbacks since coming up from the Yanks' Kansas City farm six weeks ago. Counting 8 2/3 innings of relief, Ford has allowed no runs and eight hits in his last 17 2/3 innings.

Bel Air Opens Today Featuring Inaugural and Leith Purses

Bill Bennings . . .

Dear folks: At Bel Air.

Track officials, both major and minor, in this section will keep half an eye on the mutuel play during the session here. Coming on the heels of the Baltimore trots, Bel Air should answer some of the questions as to how much the harness ovals are hurting the flat tracks. Time was when Bel Air, following the distant Hagerstown and Cumberland meetings, had a crack at fresh bankrolls. This time it comes in the wake of the big daily average of the trots. Many contend there are two sets of racegoers—one for each brand of the sport. Local officials point to the fact that the final Charles Town session, partly conflicting with the Laurel Raceway, was the best of the three meetings at that track. We shall see what we shall see.—BILL.

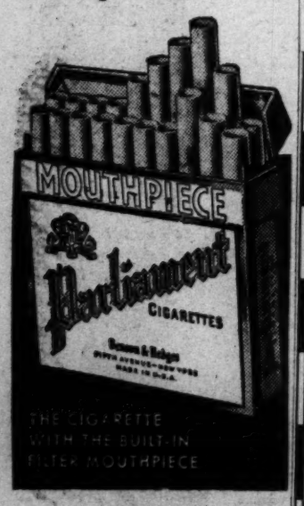
Parliament
CIGARETTES

A tip to Smart Smokers

Parliament's built-in Filter Mouthpiece

It removes much of the tar—keeps all loose bits of tobacco from reaching your lips. This gives you the protection of a fresh, clean, individual filter with each cigarette, plus the utmost enjoyment of Parliament's superb tobaccos. This means filtered smoking at its best.



Miss Prime, Lock Control Seen Choices

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 15.—Thoroughbred racing returns to Maryland tomorrow after an absence of seven weeks, with the opening of the Bel Air track for a 10-day meeting. Retaining its midsummer dates, despite the shifting of the Hagerstown and Cumberland meetings to the spring, this oval, located on Route No. 1, 18 miles north of Baltimore, promises to hold its popularity on the Free State minor circuit.

Racing Secretary M. C. (Ty) Shea found a generous response to his entry call this morning and over-the-limit fields were named for six of the eight events.

The opening program offers twin features in the Bel Air Inaugural, a sprint of 5 furlongs, and the Louis C. Leith Memorial, a distance test of a mile and one sixteenth. Both events carry $1200 in purse money.

The Inaugural should be productive of plenty of speed, numbering in the lineup some of the fastest horses to compete at Hagerstown, Cumberland and Charles Town.

Favoritism is likely to settle upon the entry of Saggy Farm's Sagagal and J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime, with the latter the chief reliance. Both are speed endowed and get in action light if they retain their apprentice allowances.

H. L. Townsend's Simite will attract support, having whipped Sagagal when last they met. The entry of R. Chance Farm's Easy Al and F. Corvi's Woodford Lass will be a formidable contender.

Ball, Bolster, Wolfe Qualify in U. S. Junior Tourney

Kay Fletcher, Joe O'Brien Are Ousted

Ames, Iowa, Aug 15.—Billy Ball and Billy Wolfe, two young Washington, D. C. stars, qualified for match play today in the National Junior Golf tournament.

But Joe O'Brien and Kay Fletcher of the D. C. contingent didn't make it.

Ball shot a second round 78 to go with an opening 77 for 155 total. He was four strokes in front of Wolfe who had 80-79—159.

Denny Bolster, Silver Spring, Md., was in with 77-78—155.

Billy Sparks, the 17-year-old from Atlanta, Ga., posted a 143 total to set the pace today.

Sparks, a cross-handed player using borrowed clubs, turned in a second round par 71 to go with his opening 72. He had a two-stroke lead in the race for medalist honors with a little over half of the starting field reported.

Heurich Ties Cameo Again

Second-place Cameo played a tie with league-leading Heurich yesterday for the second straight time in a Post Industrial League game on the South Ellipse. It ended 3-3, called on account of darkness.

Heurich, with an 8-1 record, tied the game in the seventh on Bernie Good's double. Cameo has a 7-2 record. Last Saturday the two played an 8-8 tie.

bleachers. Ostrowski had two other hits, and three runs batted in.

Ostrowski started Washington's scoring with his homer in the second off Ed Lopat, and the Nats added another before the inning was over on Dente's single, a sacrifice and Len Okrie's infield out.

Gerry Coleman beat out an infield hit, the first off Bearden, in the fifth, and it developed into a run on a walk and Phil Rizzuto's single.

The Yanks tied it at 2-all in the seventh on Lopat's triple and Gene Woodling's single.

Ostrowski put the Nats in front in the seventh, 4-2, with a bases loaded single, but the Yanks grabbed the lead back with three in the eighth.

Hank Bauer doubled, and with one out, Yogi Berra singled a run in. That's all the Yanks should have had.

Billy Johnson rapped a double play ball at Michaels, but the second baseman let it get away, and everybody was safe. Coleman grounded one to Dente, he bobbled, and Berra scored the run that made it 4-4.

Silver Spring Angler Catches Two Hefty Marlin in One Day

By Ralph Murdock

SINCE LIEUT. FRANK R. Loyd, jr., of Arlington, Va., started the ball rolling at Ocean City, Md., with the first marlin of the season, Lady Luck has played an important part as far as our local marlin fishermen are concerned. Each week the locals are setting up new targets for the other anglers to shoot at.

Murdock

To catch two marlin in a single season is quite a stunt, but Edward F. Plant of Hyattsville, Md., nabbed his second last Wednesday at the famous Maryland resort.

On Friday, Charles (Chuck) Huseman topped 'em all when he hoked and landed a pair of marlin on the same trip. (Not on one hook).

The first fish weighed 64 pounds (no midget) and the second was an 85-pounder that measured eight feet in length. It took 55 minutes to subdue the latter hefty.

Chuck is the youngest son of Frank Huseman, manager of the Berwyn Rod and Gun Club, and lives at 9206 Woodland Road, in Silver Spring. He fished from the cruiser, "Joy Belle," piloted by Capt. Frank Edwards.

IN OUR BOOK Lady Luck isn't a bad gal to have aboard—even if it's a stag affair. We present further evidence that Ocean City, Md., is not the only spot where our fisherman shine. We now take you to Oregon Inlet.

Two Washington anglers were among those who enjoyed the return of the red channel bass at the Inlet. Fishing with Capt. Will Ethridge of Wanchese, Warren Francis and his wife, Lorania, who make up the Washington bureau of the Los Angeles Times, each brought a red drum to gaff.

Mrs. Francis' fish, her first channel bass, ran 22 pounds, which topped her husband's catch by 6 pounds.

WDGA Team Tops Richmond

An all-Washington team representing the Women's District Golf Association avenged a defeat of a year ago at the hands of Richmond's women golfers yesterday at Congressional Country Club, sweeping all except one of eight matches of an intercity meet to win, 18¼ to 5¼.

Mrs. J. P. Trouchaud of Kenwood Country Club shot a two-over-par 75 for the best round of the day. Manor's Mrs. A. B. Bower, Women's District Amateur champion, shot a 77, the second lowest score.

WASHINGTON 18¼, RICHMOND 5¼

Mrs. A. B. Bower (Manor) and Mrs. Hugh Nicholson (Chevy Chase) defeated Miss Sidney Elliott and Mrs. L. R. Hall, 3-0. Mrs. Betty Meckley (Kenwood) and Mrs. Edward Farriday (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. William Pollard and Mrs. R. B. Moore, 3-0. Mrs. J. P. Trouchaud (Kenwood) and Mrs. Charles Egenroad (Washington) defeated Mrs. Glenn Knox and Miss Mary Janssen, 2-1. Mrs. D. H. Henderson (Congressional) and Mrs. J. R. Kullman (Army-Navy) defeated Mrs. G. C. Quisenberry and Mrs. Warren Pollard, 2½-½. Mrs. George Martin (Manor) and Mrs. Richard Kreuzberg (Kenwood) beat Mrs. L. Miller and Mrs. Robert Dryden, 2½-½. Mrs. R. G. Watson (Manor) and Mrs. S. B. Crocker (Kenwood) beat Mrs. Thomas Gemmill and Mrs. M. S. Taylor, 2-1. Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith (Woodmont) and Mrs. Irving Swanson (Army-Navy) defeated Mrs. Gilmer Minor and Miss Frances Rand, 2½-½. Mrs. Rex Howard (Kenwood) and Mrs. Carl Matthews (Congressional) lost to Mrs. Hunter Fox and Mrs. W. G. Harris, 2-1.

Lafayette Takes Tennis Title in Special Match

Lafayette defeated Turkey Thicket, 4-3, to win the District of Columbia Recreation Department Youth Tennis League championship playoffs at Turkey Thicket Playground yesterday.

Tied, 3-3, at the end of the regulation match, a special mixed doubles contest was played to decide the title. Jean Mortimer and Bill Wilson of Lafayette teamed in the 6-3, 6-3 win over Agnes Green and Billy Hipps.

The District of Columbia Tennis Association, whose member clubs donated over 100 dozen balls to the 19-team league, presented trophies to the 16 pleyers in the finals and a team trophy to Lafayette.

Georgetown Lions Win

The Georgetown Lions Club baseball team won the first game of a best two-out-of-three playoff for the Boys Club Senior League title from Police Boys Club No. 4, 8-3, yesterday on the East Ellipse.

Miss Lindsay Wins on 23d

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—Marjorie Lindsay outlasted Grace Lenczyk, in the marathon 23-hole battle featuring the opening match-play round of the women's Western Amateur golf tourney today.

Defending Champion Helen Sigel of Philadelphia and Medalist Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., advanced with other favorites.

Miss Sigel sidelined 15-year-old Barbara McIntire of Toledo, Ohio, 3 and 2, and Miss Riley disposed of Bonnie Randolph, Columbus, Ohio, 7 and 6.

Peggy Kirk, Findlay, Ohio, 1949 runner-up, squeezed past Mrs. John Clauder, Milwaukee, Wis., 2 and 1. The meet's 1948 champion, Dot Kielty of Long Beach, Calif., also advanced on a 2 and 1 verdict over Betty Bush, Hammond, Ind.

Sosie Girgosian Wins Title In Federal Employes Tennis

Darkness Halts Recreation Finals

Continuing to smash the top-ranking players, unseeded Dr. Aris Carpousis assumed a commanding lead over third-seeded Richard Funk in the finals of the Arlington Recreation Department tennis tournament at Four-Mile Run playground yesterday before the match was called because of darkness.

Carousis, winner over second-seeded Russell Fenenden and fourth-ranking Harry Green in earlier matches, took the first set, 7—5, dropped the second, 1—6, then rallied to take the third, 6—1, and a 2-1 lead in the fourth when play was halted.

The title match will be continued Thursday at 6 p. m.

Langdon Lions Meet

Langdon Lions, 160-pound Metro champ last season, hold an organization meeting at 8 p. m. tonight at Langdon Park. New candidates must report at this meeting.

Clara Bias Beaten Out, 8-6, 6-4

Sosie Girgosian, seeded No. 1, captured the women's singles title in the Government Employes' Tennis Tournament at 16th and Kennedy sts. nw. yesterday, downing second-ranked Clara Bias, 8—6, 6—4.

Miss Bias led three times in the opening set, which produced seven service breaks, but each time Miss Girgosian rallied to even the score.

After falling behind again early in the second set, 1—3, Miss Girgosian took the next three games to go ahead.

The two opponents are teamed together in the Women's Doubles finals today, facing Betty Zimmerman and Helen Ingraham at 6 p. m.

WOMEN'S SINGLES (Finals)—Sosie Girgosian defeated Clara Bias, 8—6, 6—4.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Agriculture Rows With Interior on Fishery Control

POOR FISH: There's an interagency squabble over him. It boils down to which agency is to be given authority to organize the fishing industry for defense purposes.

The Agriculture Department wants the job under the broad authority it will get to mobilize food for defense. It has been challenged by Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service, which is putting up a battle for the chore.

The proposed executive order would give Agriculture power over wool, cotton, fats, oils and food generally.

It would give Interior authority over private as well as public power, oil, gas, solid fuels, and natural resources such as copper, lead, etc. The private power companies are opposed to being placed under Interior; they'd prefer either Commerce or Federal Power.

CAB: North Carolina politicos are reported to have stopped the nomination of James F. Pinkney to be chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. A political science professor at Davidson College, Pinkney is said to have backed the wrong candidate for the Senate as far as the politicians are concerned. Pinkney formerly was employed in the motor carrier division of Interstate Commerce here.

JUSTICE: S. A. Andretta, Assistant Attorney General for Administration, also is a definite possibility for the appointment as commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization Service.

CAA: The question of whether Civil Aeronautics Administration is to be transferred to Defense for the duration and part of its civilian staff militarized is getting hot.

A Budget Bureau team of four experts visited CAA officials yesterday to discuss how the agency could operate best, either in Commerce or in Defense. It won't make a recommendation on the future of the agency until the study is complete.

The day before, a group of representatives from civil aviation organizations met with CAA top officials to debate the proposed transfer. In general, the industry spokesmen were unalterably opposed to any transfer of CAA at this time.

At that session, the Air Force showed its hand for the first time. Several of its officials were present to argue for the proposed switch of CAA to AF for the duration.

CAA employe reaction to the transfer is mixed.

PAY BOOST? The 25,000 per diem employes in the Army, Navy and Air Force here and nearby may be in line for another pay boost.

The Defense Department has ordered wage surveys conducted in all major labor areas. The study of wages in the Washington area is slated to begin September 15. It will take up to six weeks to complete, and any boosts in pay rates will be announced shortly afterwards.

The Defense wage board will make a study of prevailing wages paid by private employers in this area. The law requires Defense to pay similar salaries. The largest bloc of employes here who stand to benefit are the 8000 at the Naval Gun Factory.

Navy, Army, and Air Force will cooperate in the survey to be made here. Navy uses a slightly different wage system than Army and Air Force. It has five steps in each of its grades; Army and Air Force has three steps. Navy's beginning step is slightly lower than Army and Air Force's.

The Defense Department is working on an uniform wage plan for wage board employes.

PERSONALS: Jim Aswell is the new director of public relations at the National Security Resources Board . . . Robert M. Macy has transferred from ECA to Budget Bureau to be chief of the national defense branch of the fiscal division . . . At Interior, James P. Davis is director of the reorganized Office of Territories. Dan H. Wheeler is assistant director; Theodore W. Taylor, administrative officer; Joseph T. Flakne, Mason Barr, and Emil Sady are chiefs of the Alaska, Caribbean, and Pacific divisions respectively.

5 Men Hurt When Auto Overturns After Crash

Woman Driver Escapes Injury; Bus, 2 Cars Figure in Virginia Collision

Five men were injured in a spectacular traffic accident at 4:30 p. m. yesterday at 13th and Tuckerman sts. nw.

Police said the accident involved automobiles driven by Mrs. Toula Evrepias, 32, of 6341 16th st. nw., and Chester P. Nicholson, 22, of 1425 Chapin st. nw.

Nicholson's convertible coupe was overturned and skidded and rolled about 80 feet before it came to rest on its top. Nicholson and four passengers, all workmen, were hurt.

Most seriously hurt was Louis D. Gordon, 57, of 3731 D st. se., who suffered a possible fractured spine. Gordon and Albert Walters, 31, of 4300 Georgia ave. nw., whose left shoulder was broken, were treated at Emergency Hospital, then transferred to Garfield Hospital.

Treated and Released

Martin Brosnahan, 48, of 1105 Holbrook ter. ne., and Martin Smith, 17, of 4303 1st st. se., were treated at Emergency Hospital and released. Nicholson was treated for minor injuries at the scene.

Marshall J. Broyhill, 52, of 4914 Tuckerman st., Riverdale, Md., was seriously injured early today when struck by an auto as he crossed Baltimore blvd. in Hyattsville.

At Leland Memorial Hospital doctors said he suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and severe cuts. Police identified the driver of the other car as Robert Barnhill, 51, of New York City.

Ten persons were hurt shortly after 8 a.m. when a crowded Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington bus and two automobiles figured in a crash at 23d st. and S. Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington.

Eight persons were taken to Arlington Hospital and one to Alexandria Hospital. Rupert M. Stewart, 38, of 709 W. Glebe rd., Alexandria, driver of the bus, was treated at the scene.

Mrs. Ruth Parr, 52, of 306 Duncan ave., Alexandria, who suffered back injuries, was the only one admitted to a hospital. She is at Arlington Hospital.

Most Were Passengers

Robert E. Ingram, 43, of 3906 Old Dominion blvd., Alexandria; Miss Margaret Dickerson, 20, of 3911 Old Dominion blvd.; Mrs. Lois Hoover, 25, of 3802 Florence dr., Alexandria; Miss Elizabeth Arass, 24, of 208 E. Oxford ave., Alexandria; Miss Mary Louise Panigal, 27, of 5 E. Clifford ave., Alexandria; Mrs. Lucille Adams, 31, of 1801 De Witt ave., Alexandria; Julius Persiani, 29, of 508 S. 20th st., Arlington.

Treated and released at Alexandria Hospital was Miss Antoinette Fischman, 24, of 201 E. Glendale st., Alexandria.

All but Persiani were passengers on the northbound bus. He was driver of a car, police said, which was in collision with the bus, which in turn, was thrown against a car driven by Mrs. Monroe B. Duffill, 39, of 2605 S. Joyce st., Arlington. Mrs. Duffill was not injured.

Three persons were injured in a headon collison shortly after 2 p. m. on Jefferson Davis hwy. at S. 20th st., Arlington.

Police said a panel truck driven by Edmund B. Roland, 44, of Haymarket, Va., was in collision with a car operated by Thomas P. Coombs of 2810 S. 12th st., Arlington.

Roland and his wife, Irma, 43, were admitted to Arlington Hospital. Mrs. Roland suffered from a fractured jaw and a severe injury to her right eye. Roland received face and head cuts.

Colonel's Wife Is Victim of Fall at Home

Mrs. Lorraine M. Morrow, 35, wife of a lieutenant colonel stationed at Bolling Air Force Base, died last night of injuries suffered in a fall Saturday night at her new home, 150 E. Rosemary lane, Falls Church.

According to a Bolling Base spokesman, the Marrows had moved into their home Friday from the base, where they had lived during the year her husband, Lieut. Col. James S. Marrow, was stationed there.

Mrs. Marrow, according to the spokesman, fell about 10 feet down the cellar steps after mistaking the cellar door for the adjoining kitchen door.

Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner, withheld a certificate of accidental death pending further investigation.

Lieutenant Colonel Marrow is a member of the Joint Armed Forces Patrol Purchasing Commission.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Marrow is survived by their 7-month-old son.

Funeral services will be held in St. Paul, Minn.

Montgomery Adopts New Pavement Code

Compromise Between Previous Requirements And Engineers' Plan

Montgomery County's new road construction code—a compromise between the ordinance proposed by county engineers and the old road code—was adopted yesterday by the county council.

Among changes made in the proposed code were several urged by county builders at a public hearing last March when it was first proposed.

The proposal then required square curbs and gutters, 5-foot sidewalks, a minimum of 28 feet paved width and grading for the full 60-foot right-of-way on secondary streets and planting of trees in all subdivisions.

Builders claimed these requirements would result in "a tiny hut on a gold-plated street."

As adopted, the code permits rolled curbs on residential streets but requires square curbs at intersections, demands 5-foot sidewalks, reduces minimum road width to 26 feet, and eliminates tree planting.

New roads still must be graded to the full width of the right of way, 60 feet for secondary residential streets and 70 feet for primary streets. The latter must be paved to a width of 36 feet.

Sidewalks are not required on secondary streets in the suburban area if the majority of the lots have a frontage of 70 feet or more. Curbs and gutters and sidewalks are not required outside the suburban area if the lots have a 70-foot width.

In the old county road code, builders developing subdivisions were required to make new streets at least 26 feet wide, with a rolled curb, 50-foot right of way and grading of the right of way beyond the street. They were not required to build sidewalks and driveways.

The new code provides that the county council may waive, after advertising and the holding of a public hearing, the provisions requiring sidewalks, curbs and gutters outside the suburban area.

The council said the code is expected to correct abuses and guarantee to the taxpayer "the utmost for his road maintenance dollar and to the homeowner, freedom from early breakdown of the road in front of his home." The council said that it has authorized employment of 18 inspectors to carry out the provisions of the law. Builders had objected that they paid for inspection and did not get it.

"The county's population growth during the past decade, coupled with the postwar building boom, reflect an imperative and ever-increasing need for sensible and progressive subdivision road planning and the adoption of adequate regulations to control road construction," the statement declared.

6 New Polio Cases Listed In D. C. Area

Six new polio cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, bringing the area total so far this year to 152.

In Washington, the District's seventieth polio case for 1950 was reported at Gallinger Hospital. At this time last year Washington had only 28 cases. The newly reported case is that of a 26-year-old man who has been hospitalized since August 10.

Montgomery County reported three new cases to bring its total to 20. They are an 8-year-old boy from the 6500 block of Brennon lane, Chevy Chase, ill since August 2 but not hospitalized; a 3-year-old boy from the 1200 block of Linden lane, Silver Spring, in Children's Hospital since August 10, and a 6-year-old boy from the 8200 block of New Hampshire ave., Silver Spring, in Children's Hospital since August 13.

In Prince Georges County, the twenty-second case was reported, that of a 32-year-old woman from the 300 block of Ottawa st., Forest Hills. She has been in Gallinger Hospital since Monday.

Fairfax County reported its twenty-third case, that of a 9-year-old boy from the 100 block of Crest dr., Fairhaven, who is in Children's Hospital.

House Crime Unit to War On Repeaters

The House District crime investigating committee yesterday began trying to perfect a formula to discourage habitual criminals in Washington.

Committee Chairman James C. Davis (D., Ga.) said the group in a morning executive session discussed proposed legislation to deter the criminal "repeater."

The group also began work on legislation to promote a more careful selection of jurors in the courts.

Both proposals are included in a draft of legislation, totaling around 25 pages, which the Davis committee is preparing for introduction in the House.

General aim of the legislation is to tighten loopholes and sharpen penalties in Washington law enforcement.

Three of the five members attending the meeting: Davis and Representatives Sid Simpson (R., Ill.) and James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.). The other members were at a House Rules Committee meeting. Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) as a member and Representative Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.) as a witness.

Davis said the group began a detailed comparison of proposed changes in the District law with the existing sections of the District criminal code.

After the legislative program is prepared, he said, the committee will introduce it as a House bill—at this session if it appears there is time to pass part or all of it. If the program is completed too late for this Congress, he said, it will be outlined in a report and made the subject of legislation next year.

Falls Church Lions Map Program to Help Blind

A program and budget to raise funds for sight conservation and aid for the blind has been adopted by the Falls Church Lions Club.

A number of fund raising campaigns will be undertaken during the year, president Francis A. Wagner announced yesterday. Among these will be a county-wide sale of brooms and other articles made by the State Institution for the Blind at Charlottesville, Va.

Newest 'Miss Washington' Finds It All Very Exciting

At least one Pentagon employe didn't get much work done yesterday. Between congratulations, jokes, teasing and advice, "mostly about my income tax," Sandra Stahl, newly elected "Miss Washington," had scarcely a free minute at her typewriter in the offices of Air Intelligence.

"And I'm so excited I couldn't have gotten much done anyway," laughed Sandra, who won the coveted title Monday night.

Back home in Lynnwood, Calif., Mrs. Earl D. Stahl had been sitting by the phone all evening waiting for the call telling her "Sandy" was a winner. Ever since her daughter came East a year ago, Mrs. Stahl was sure she'd be a success, but she expected it to be more in the line of music than glamour and beauty.

It was Sandra's coloratura soprano rendition of the Bell Song from Lakme, along with her radiant smile, shapely figure and lively personality which won the judges' applause — and the $5000 worth of prizes in the contest. The $500 scholarship will go toward her voice training, with opera as the ultimate goal.

Ever since she first started studying singing at the age of 11, Sandra has aspired toward an operatic career.

In Lynnwood she was soprano soloist for the Long Beach Methodist Church, and was offered a chance to sing the soprano solos in a presentation of "The Messiah" by the combined churches of Los Angeles.

But Sandra had to turn that one down in favor of a trip East and a chance to work at the Pentagon. Since coming here she's sung in the choir of the Foundry Methodist Church and appeared in two presentations of the Foundry Players.

In addition to the scholarship, Sandra is looking forward to the new Nash she'll be awarded next Thursday at Griffith Stadium. Can she drive? "You bet! And first trip I'd like to make would be to California for Christmas."

But before she can make that trip she's got a certain date in Atlantic City, September 4 to 9, when the Miss America finals are held.

A blonde with sparkling green eyes and a most engaging smile, Sandra weighs 130 pounds for her 5' 6" frame. What does she herself think of her chances in the contest? "Well, I'd really rather not say!" But that looks a lot like a smile of confidence.

Crowded Buckingham Families Receiving Eviction Notices

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Buckingham — 1822-unit apartment development in Arlington County—has taken steps to remove families "with too many children" to "avoid overcrowding."

Starting this month, tenants with children in one-bedroom units are being asked to move into two-bedroom apartments, if they are available, or to find accommodations elsewhere.

Tenants of two-bedroom units with two or more children past the 4- and 5-year stage—whether the same sex or not—are receiving letters giving them two to three months to find housing elsewhere.

Lawrence F. Kettell, manager of the 13-year-old brick development along Glebe rd., said these steps are in line with a prewar policy on children and are necessary because "Buckingham is bursting at the seams." He declined to tell how many notices were sent.

"We have entrances with eight to ten youngsters. This is not good. Not good for the children, the mothers or the fathers—some are fighting all the time," he said.

Slums Threatened

"Housing is easing up and these families are getting too big for the apartments. If we don't do something about it, these would become slums," he explained.

Buckingham also owns another Arlington development, Claremont, parts of which are still under construction. Kettell said tenants asked to leave Buckingham have been offered apartments there. Rent is $89.50 for two-bedroom units, while Buckingham two-bedroom units range from $75 to $105 a month, Kettell said.

In other Virginia developments—where rent control was ended last June 25—the policy on children is:

Fairlington—3349 units—no children in one-bedroom and only one in a two-bedroom unit. No attempt other than verbal encouragement to force moves, however, if this is exceeded.

Parkfairfax—1681 units—A child over a year old should have a separate room for its own well-being. "We are not pressing this, though."

Single Bedroom Restricted

Colonial Village—1100 units—Informal policy of no children in one-bedroom units and a limit of two in two-bedroom apartments. But this is not enforced except that "we try to move people from over-occupied apartments" into larger facilities, when available.

Arlington Village—665 units—One child not over 2 years old in dren in a two-bedroom if they a one-bedroom unit, and two children are the same sex and not above 8 to 10 years. Not strictly enforced.

Arna Valley—664 units—No policy on limitation of child occupancy.

Barcroft—1280 units—two children in two-bedroom units and none in a one-bedroom. "We don't force people to move, although they always want to transfer to larger quarters on their own.

Fillmore Gardens—555 units—Two in two-bedroom units and a small child in a one-bedroom apartment. "We try to put all families with children on the first floor. We are not forcing anyone to move because of children."

Allotments Made for '51 Area Chest Funds Drive

Members to Receive Greater Shares of $4,100,000 Set as Campaign Goal

Community Chest Federation officials agreed yesterday on how they will apportion the $4,100,000 they hope to get in their fall fund-raising campaign.

Announcement of the division agreed up by the federation's executive committee was made yesterday by Chauncey G. Parker, federation president.

All six member chests, including the United Community Services of Washington, will receive about 3½ percent more than in 1947 or 1950, whichever was greater.

The same ratio of increase was applied to the $480,965.75 allotted for the Federation Hospitalization Fund and the Montgomery County Hospitalization Fund of $21,564.82.

A "contingency fund" of $100,000 was agreed upon for emergency requests.

List of Allocations

The 1951 allocations, as released following yesterday's meeting at 1818 H st. nw., include:

Member Chests: Alexandria, $122,238.56; Arlington, $113,978.95; Fairfax, $71,649.20; Montgomery, $161,158.70; Prince Georges, $121,384.87, and United Community Services of Washington, $2,189,429.65. Total allocation: $2,779,839.93.

Other allocations include:

Associated Services for the Armed Forces (partial successor to the USO of World War II), $71,727; Contingency fund, $100,000; Retirement reserve, $91,500; Year-round administration and collections, $114,880; Campaign expenses, $208,862.50; Community Chests and Councils of America, $13,660, and Shrinkage reserve, $217,000.

Regarding the allocation to the Associated Services for the Armed Forces, President Parker said the amount represents 2 percent of that organization's national budget, less a $9000 credit in UCS funds made available for the program this year.

No adjustments could be made in the several central service items such as retirement reserves for Chest Federation staff employes, campaign expense budget, and the year-round cost of administration and collection of some 75,000 installment pledge accounts, the president said.

Annual National Dues

The $13,660 item for Community Chests and Councils, Inc., in New York, it was explained, refers to annual dues to the national organization. It is paid for advisory services in campaign promotion, administration procedures, personnel practices, and other services.

The shrinkage reserve, $217,000, an estimate on possible default in payment on pledges, was based on the average experience over the war years, it was explained.

Parker said the allocations were recommended unanimously by the Federation Budget Committee, headed by Charles E. Smoot.

It was noted by Parker and Hugh K. Duffield, general campaign chairman for the drive, that the $4,100,000 goal for 1951 represents an increase of $524,000 over the amount raised last year.

Greenbelt Sale Negotiations Continue Despite 'Freeze' Order

Despite a Government order freezing the sale of Federally owned war-housing and postwar-housing projects, negotiations for the sale of Greenbelt, Md., will continue, a Public Housing Administration spokesman said yesterday.

Earlier, Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, issued the freeze order "to help further the national defense effort."

The Government development in Prince Georges County was put up for sale June 7 for a price of $8,522,350. The only bidder was the cooperative Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corporation.

The spokesman of the Public Housing Administration, a component of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, said the negotiations with the veterans group "certainly would be conducted with a view toward disposition of the property."

He pointed out that the Government's offer to sell Greenbelt contains a clause that reserves PHA's right to withdraw any of the facilities put up for disposition.

Greenbelt, he said, contains about 1600 units.

The freeze order itself involves some 354,000 units of housing provided by the Government for wartime use or emergency occupancy by veterans.

Falls Church Bonds Ready for Signing

Falls Church officials said yesterday the city's $700,000 school bonds probably will be signed today or Thursday, and should be ready for delivery "some time this week."

A snag preventing delivery of the bonds, sold last July, was removed Monday night when the City Council accepted the resignation of City Manager Harry Wells and appointed Roy S. Braden to the job.

Wells was given the city manager job August 2 after the ouster of Acting City Manager Roy S. Dunn by the council. He was forbidden to perform any functions of his office, however, including signing of the school bonds, by a Fairfax Circuit Court injunction issued the day after his appointment.

The temporary injunction was granted, pending a September 8 hearing on a permanent injunction, at the request of Councilman Samuel E. McCrary, who voted against removal of Dunn; Mrs. Merrill Lee Chanel, former councilwoman; Frank N. McElroy, 401 E. Broad st.; Alvin Tasker, S. Oak st. and Lytton H. Gibson, former assistant Fairfax County Commonwealth's attorney.

City Attorney LaRue Van Meter said yesterday he had filed a reply and "cross bill" to the injunction petition.

The city's reply to the injunction petition "reserves the right" to ask for an increase in a $2000 "suspension" bond, which the plaintiffs were required to post.

City officials asked the bond as a guarantee against financial loss due to the injunction should it later be dissolved.

The city's "cross bill" mentions higher costs of marketing the bonds, of city administration and of school construction as possible reasons for any request the suspension bond be raised.

Braden said yesterday he was spending the day "looking around —finding out something about the organization and the set-up." He plans a meeting with all staff members today.

From Estate

District Gets Coffer Boost Of $19,016

The District was richer by $19,016 yesterday because a Romanian immigrant decided to spend the last years of his life in Washington.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise said Adolf Lave came to this country as a boy of 15 in 1884 and spent most of his life working as a bookkeeper in New York City. In 1940 Lave came to Washington to live, but was committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital that same year and died there in 1948, according to Wise.

Because he left neither relatives nor a will, Lave's estate of $19,016 will go into the general fund of the District Government. District Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson said it was one of the largest amounts ever received from such a source.

M. F. Ruppert Estate Set At $772,414

M. Frank Ruppert, 76, a hardware dealer who became one of Washington's leading real estate men, left an estate of $772,414.97, it was reported yesterday.

Of this sum, $676,886 was the assessed value of various real estate holdings, mostly in Washington, but some in Maryland and New Jersey.

According to his will, filed for probate in District Court, half of the estate will go to his widow, Mrs. Rose B. Ruppert of 5721 Western ave. nw.

The rest is divided equally among his eight children. They are Milton F. Ruppert, 3814 Legation st. nw.; Raymond R. Ruppert, Ritchie, Md.; James J. Ruppert, 5406 Connecticut ave. nw.; Mrs. Paul May, 6101 Western ave. nw.; Mrs. William F. Hinchcliffe, Paterson, N. J.; Sister Frances Rose, C.S.C.; Mrs. John F. Donohoe, 3519 Quesada st. nw., and Mrs. Thomas R. Martin, Carbondale, Pa.

Mr. Ruppert, who was a native Washingtonian, died July 18 from a heart ailment.

Man's Body Recovered From River Unidentified

Harbor police recovered the body of a short, heavy white man from the Anacostia River at 6:30 last night, just below the Sousa Bridge.

The man was between 40 and 45 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, 185 pounds, wearing gray pants, white sport shirt and brown shoes, Homicide Squad detectives reported.

The only identification was the laundry mark "S O L X X" on the shirt collar. Police recovered $14 in cash in a pocket but found no wallet.

Arlington Hall, Clarendon to Be Chest X-Ray Sites

Employes of Arlington Hall Station at 4000 Lee blvd., Arlington, will get free chest X-rays on the post from August 22 through 24, the Arlington Tuberculosis Association announced yesterday.

On August 25, the X-ray unit will move to the J. C. Penney Co. store at N. Highland st. and Wilson blvd., Clarendon, to give free X-rays to the general public from 11 a. m to 6 p. m.

It will reopen from August 29 through September 1 at the same location to X-ray all Arlington County school employes, as well as the general public. Hours will be 11 a. m. to 6. p. m.

MONTH-OLD COMPLAINT—Parents find it difficult to keep their children away from the dangerous, stagnant pool of water in a vacant lot in the rear of 556 Lebaum st. se. Original complaint was made to the Health Department last July 18. Residents await action

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

A month ago Southeast Washington neighborhood complained to the District Health Department about a pool of water standing in a vacant lot in the rear of 556 Lebaum st. se.

The woman who called said it smelled badly, bred mosquitoes and was a hazard because of small children playing nearby. She said yesterday she had complained after her two-year-old niece ran out near the 15-by-20-foot pool to watch older children fire B-B guns at floating tin cans.

A neighbor whose apartment is less than 100 feet from the standing water said: "The smell and mosquitoes are so bad you can't sit out in the backyard at night."

Residents said the lot had been filled in and leveled a year or so ago. But the fill settled, leaving a depression that has been filled with water since the early summer rains.

Nothing Happened

They waited for the Health Department to clean up the nuisance or make the owner do it. Nothing happened. Under the rules and regulations governing Health Department procedure it is possible that the mosquitoes will die and the water freeze before anything is done.

Health Department records show the complaint was made July 18. An immediate inspection was made and "standing water"—a violation of regulations— was reported. The Bureau of Public Health Engineering went to work on it, but so far there have been no results.

Bureau Director William H. Cary, jr., explained why:

When an unsanitary condition is found on private property, the department must notify the owner of the violation and give a "reasonable time" in which to correct it. This is required by act of Congress and has been incorporated in the District code. If the owner lives in Washington, it's a relatively simple matter. He fixes it or the Health Department takes him to court.

Owners Not Residents

If the owner lives out of town, Cary said, it gets complicated. The two owners of the Lebaum st. property are nonresidents.

With out-of-towners, letters must be prepared, approved by the Commissioners and sent by registered mail notifying the owner that if he does not correct the condition the District will do so and add the cost to his tax bill.

The "reasonable time"—one to two weeks—starts after the receipt for the registered letter comes back. If the owner can't be found the notice must be advertised three times in a newspaper before the District can step in to eliminate the trouble. In the Lebaum st. case, one receipt has been received, the other has not.

It sometimes takes three months to go through this procedure, Cary said.

"If we had something we felt would be immediately dangerous we'd step in right away and do the work," Cary said. But with a condition that "may become" a health menace, the Health Department must be careful not to tread on the rights of a property owner, Cary said.

"It's like parking a car in front of a hydrant," he said. "If there's a fire they'll move your car in a hurry. Otherwise the policeman will just give you a ticket." The department doesn't consider the situation at Lebaum st. to be in the category of a fire.

E. Milton Dulin, Cary's assistant, said the regulation against standing water has been construed as being aimed specifically against mosquitoes.

A reinspection of the Lebaum st. property Monday showed someone had got after the mosquitoes by putting oil on the water, Dulin reported. But he said he will ask the corporation counsel if the District cannot proceed against the owners on the grounds that the stagnant water is polluted.

Basil Mobley Named to Post On Personnel Board in County

Basil Mobley, 54-year-old Derwood farmer, was named to the Montgomery County Personnel Board yesterday by the county council.

Mobley replaces Malcolm H. White of Brookeville, who resigned to enter the race for election as councilman from the first council district. His term will expire December 31.

Mobley is married, has four daughters, is a life-long resident of the county and has been a dairy farmer for the past 30 years. He was vice chairman of the commission which studied need for planning in the upper part of the county.

Members of the board are paid $10 per meeting, but may not collect more than $600 per annum.

The council also appointed Henry E. Deel, 41, 74 Knowles ave., Kensington, as manager of the county veterans housing units recently turned over to the county, with a salary of $2640 per annum.

9% Rent Increase Announced for Alexandria Project

A majority of the 388 tenants of Presidential Gardens, Alexandria, will begin paying an average 9 percent rent increase during the monthly rent period starting Sunday.

An official of the development said yesterday that one-bedroom apartments, previously $47 to $61.50 a month, will cost $53.25 to $67 under the new scales. One-and-a-half - bedroom apartments, previously $53 to $66.41, will now cost $60.95 to $70 monthly.

All persons who accepted a voluntary two-year rent increase under Federal rent control, will be given a flat $5 a month increase, plus the option of signing a two-year lease, the official said.

Inquest Set In Steamship Gunplay Death

An inquest will be held at the Morgue at 11 a. m. today into the death of Leroy Davis, 37, who was shot in the head Saturday night after he jumped from the excursion steamer Robert E. Lee into the water.

Two men were shot and several stabbed during a brawl aboard the boat, and police were waiting when it docked. Police were told that Davis was a suspect in the shooting.

When Davis jumped into the water and began swimming away, Detective Sergt. Lloyd B. Furr of the Homicide Squad said he shouted to him to halt. When he did not, Furr fired two shots at the man in the water.

The body of Davis, of no fixed address, was found floating in Washington Channel Monday. An autopsy showed he died from a bullet wound in the head. And a ballistics test by the FBI disclosed that the fatal bullet came from Furr's revolver.

Pending outcome of the autopsy, Furr has been relieved of his duties and placed in the custody of his superior, Capt. Jeremiah Flaherty.

Montgomery Fair Heads State Fetes

Maryland's county fair season is just around the corner.

The Montgomery County Fair, which opens August 22 at Gaithersburg Agricultural Center is a rejuvenated version of the old Rockville fair which was staged each year for three-quarters of a century.

The exhibit space will be approximately three times larger this year than last, and advance entries indicate that even these enlarged quarters will be well crowded.

The women's department will occupy a building constructed by volunteer labor. Boys and girls and homemakers clubs also will have exhibits.

The boys club department will include dairy, baby beef, swine and poultry exhibits. Individual and team demonstrations are planned in several classifications, including dairy, livestock, poultry, vegetables, and farm machinery.

A draft horse show will be held August 25, with a horse pulling contest in the evening. On Saturday, August 26, the light horse show will feature jumpers, saddle horses, and buggy horses.

A boxing show, baseball games and other athletic events are on the five-day program.

The list of fairs as announced by the Associated Press includes:

Aug. 21, Eastern Shore Fair at Cambridge and the Cumberland Fair, both to stay open a week; 26, Sparks High School Junior Farm Fair; 30-31, Howard County Fair.

September 9, Cecil County Breeders' Show; 13-15, Harford County Fair at Bel Air; 18-24, Hagerstown Fair; 22-24, St. Marys County Fair at Leonardtown; 27-30, Charles County Fair at La Plata; 30, Southern Maryland Horse Breeders' Draft Horse Show, Davidsonville.

October 5-6, Frederick Fair; 4-7, Wicomico County Farm and Home Show, Salisbury; 5-7, Calvert County Fair at Prince Frederick; 14, Princess Anne Livestock Show; 18-21, Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair, Upper Marlboro.

November 11-17, Eastern National Livestock Show, Timonium.

T. L. Evans, Noted Trainer, Dies at 72

Thomas Lee Evans, 72, prominent gentleman rider and trainer of Warrenton, Va., died Monday at Mount Alto Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks.

A native of Washington, he had spent most of his life in Fauquier County and was a master of fox hounds of the Warrenton hunt between 1907 and 1909. He was a member of the committee which organized the Gold Cup race meet in Warrenton in April, 1922.

In 1905, Mr. Evans was one of the outstanding riders in the steeplechase sponsored by the Washington Jockey Club at Chevy Chase. During his life he trained for Thomas Hitchcock, New York sportsman, and for outstanding stables in New York and Canada.

Surviving is his wife, the former Lucy Stone of Warrenton.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at St. James' Episcopal Church in Warrenton.

Sir Arthur Young Dies; Parliament Member

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 15 (AP). Sir Arthur S. L. Young, 61, international Yachtsman and Conservative member of Parliament, died at Benodes, France, while on vacation, his family announced.

Young's death temporarily restored the Labor government's over-all majority of five seats in Parliament. A by-election will be necessary to fill his seat, narrowly won over a Socialist opponent in the last election after a recount.

He retained the Seawanhaka Cup for Britain in 1931 when his Saskia defeated an American boat. His six meter yacht Saskia II was one of four British yachts to race against an American team in 1934 for the British-American Cup.

Colonial Beach Negro Ordered Held in Stabbing

At a brief hearing before Trial Justict George Walker, the defendant, Eugene oJhnson, 26, admitted he had a knife in his hand but denied he struck or hit anyone during the melee on August 5.

He is charged with felonious assault in the stabbing of Alvin Tate, 17, of Rollins Park, near Colonial Beach. Tate testified Johnson was the man who struck him but said he did not see a knife in Johnson's hand.

The case will go before the Westmoreland County Circuit Court grand jury on August 28.

Edward Hailer Dies; Retired P. O. Employe

Edward James Hailer, 50, former Arlington postoffice superintendent and active in the American Legion, died yesterday at Mount Alto Hospital. He lived at 1508 N. Wakefield st., Arlington.

Mr. Hailer

Mr. Hailer served about 25 years in the Washington and Arlington postoffices, retiring from the latter in 1945.

Born in Cumberland, Md., Mr. Hailer was brought to Washington at the age of 2 and moved to Arlington in 1935.

Mr. Hailer was past commander of Post 139, American Legion, in Arlington, and was once in charge of the post's honor guard.

He is survived by his wife, Rena; a son, James, and three daughters, Beverly, Mary Catherine and Billie Mae, all of the N. Wakefield address.

Funeral services will be held at St. Agnes Church, Cherrydale, at 9:30 a. m. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

An American Legion memorial service will be held tonight at 8 at the W. E. Fitzgerald funeral home in Arlington.

Speed amazing relief from misery of simple piles, with soothing Pazo*. Acts to relieve pain, itching instantly. Lubricates dry, hardened parts. Helps prevent cracking, reduce swelling. Don't suffer needless torture of simple piles. Get Pazo for comforting relief. Ask your doctor about it. Suppository form or tubes with perforated pipe. *Pazo Ointment and Suppositories®

Now She Shops "Cash and Carry"
Without Painful Backache
As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.
If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Board Receives Owens Resignation

Prince Georges County Commissioners were notified formally yesterday of the impending resignation of Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens, 72, who has presided over county courts for the last five years.

Magistrate Owens, who lives at 5712 39th ave., Hyattsville, sent the commissioners a copy of his resignation, submitted to Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., on August 7. It announced his intention to relinquish the job August 31.

Owens attributed his action to poor health, which has kept him from the bench for several weeks. Pending appointment of a successor by Governor Lane, his duties are being carried out by Substitute Magistrate Henry H. O'Neill, of Hyattsville.

ANGELO ANASTASI

The days that shone so brightly
Are dimmed now that you're gone;
And sights, once beauty for our eyes,
Have dulled, since you passed on.
The minutes move so heavily,
Time glides on leaden feet,
To the ancient door of Eternity
Where once more we shall meet.
ANNA ANASTASI.

Miss Childs Ready for Career

MISS MALLISSA CHILDS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs, is spending the summer relaxing at her parents' Chevy Chase home before starting a new career September 18 at the Department of State. Out of 700 entrants, Miss Childs, a graduate this year of Leland Stanford University, was chosen as one of 23 for State Department internship, and for the coming year she will do work in three different sections of the Department. At Stanford Miss Childs majored in the Russian field, and she can read, speak and write the language. She was presented to society at a reception on New Year's Day, 1949.

MISS CHILDS

Things Are Tough All Over

EVEN AT Newport this summer simplicity is the rule for entertainment. There are dances at the beach on Saturday night and the usual round of picnics and dinner parties, but no one is going all out to give a ball.

Miss Emma Perley Lincoln of Washington has just returned from a visit there as guest of Miss Rhoda Low. A luncheon party in her honor at Bailey's Beach last week included Mrs. Arthur Conely of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. George Hull, Henry Howard and Sven Lundgren of Georgetown.

Washingtonians seen around are Mrs. Clark McIlwaine and her son-in-law and daughter, the Marquess and Marchioness of Milford-Haven; Mrs. Henry Garnett, who makes her home at the Mayflower during winter months, and Miss Clare Fahnestock, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock.

Exchange Teachers Guests of University

SCHOOL TEACHERS from abroad, numbering 115, arrived in the United States last Sunday. They are now guests of the American University on the college campus till Thursday when they will be dispersed all over the United States to teach in public schools and junior colleges for a year. A similar number of American teachers will teach this winter in Europe under a British-American teachers exchange program.

Last evening the visitors were entertained by President Paul F. Douglass of the American University at a garden musicale at his residence. Among the teachers are 23 men and two married couples. British in the group number 104 and the remaining 11 are French. Today the British teachers will be honor guests at a party given by Paul Gore-Booth, British Counselor, at the Westmoreland Hills home of the British Minister and Lady Rowan.

Paul Green's new pageant "The Lost Colony," opening Friday evening at Manteo, N. C., is drawing visitors from all over. The Earl of Jellicoe, British First Secretary, and Capus Waynick, American Ambassador to Nicaragua, are among those who will attend opening night.

Mrs. O. Max Gardner, who has been at Blowing Rock, N. C., came in town for a couple of days, left last evening for Nag's Head, N. C., to visit Mrs. Fred Morrison, president of the Women's National Democratic Club. The two will be in the audience Friday evening at Manteo.

Jean Hamilton Becomes Bride In Arizona

Of interest to Washington is the marriage of Miss Jean Hamilton to James Collier Gifford which took place yesterday at St. Philip's in the Hills Episcopal Church in Tucson, Ariz. The Rev. Richard Sumner officiated at the quiet ceremony in the presence of members of the immediate families.

The bride, who is a sixth generation Washingtonian, is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frederick L. Hamilton of Tucson, formerly of this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. K. C. Gifford and the late Mr. Gifford of New Canaan, Conn., and New York City. He is now living in Redlands, Calif.

Mrs. Gifford attended San Luis School in Colorado Springs, Col., and was graduated from Holton-Arms in Washington, Ward-Belmont Junior College, Nashville, Tenn., and the Katharine Gibbs School in New York City. She is now a student at the University of Arizona where the bridegroom is also a student. Following their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford will return to Tucson to resume their studies.

Miss Price Entertains

Miss Mary-Stuart Montague Price entertained at luncheon on Saturday at Maximes for Mrs. Dale Collins, wife of Captain Collins, USN, who is leaving in a few weeks to join her husband on the West Coast. Among other guests were Mrs. William Mackenzie and her daughter, Bettejane; Mrs. Jackson Davis, Mrs. Williams Disque, Miss Clare Foster and Miss Alwilda Ferris.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 20, Who Is Planning to Be Married, Asks Whether to Share New Home With Her Divorced Mother? Father Shares Home With Married Son

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 20 years old and engaged to be married. Bill and I plan to get married this season and we want a formal wedding. Like all young couples, we would like to live by ourselves after marriage; but the problem is my mother, with whom I live now. I don't know what to do about her.

I have an older brother who is married and has three children. He lives with my father and they have a nice home. You see, my parents are divorced; but still they are very friendly. I don't think my father goes with any other women, but mother has a man friend who is very nice to everyone. They've been going together for some time, but I'm sure father doesn't know about this.

Mother has a job, but I know she can't work to the end of her life; and Bill and I have agreed we would ask her to live with us. I think this is the right thing to do, as she is my mother; but deep in my heart I wish she would refuse. I am uncertain whether she will say "yes" or "no." And I wonder if maybe, after I marry, she may marry again also. I know that she and my father never will re-marry each other.

Do you think mother will marry again? Am I being selfish in wanting Bill and myself to start a home of our own, apart from her? I want to do what is right. And if mother refuses to live with us, I must feel in my heart that it's better that way, and that I wasn't selfish about the whole matter. Even though my parents' marriage didn't work out just right, still I tell myself they've had most of their life. What do you think? E. B.

Mother Isn't a Limp Character

DEAR E. B.: The fact that your mother remains on good terms with your father, and also has a devoted man friend who is an agreeable soul, indicates that she is a wholesome character. This impression is further sustained by your voluntary loyal consideration of her, in the very midst of your twosome planning with Bill.

It seems obvious that your regard for her welfare is sparked by genuine affection and appreciation; that it is not the perfunctory expression of a dinned-in "sense of duty." If it were the latter, you would feel there was no escape from having her live with you and Bill after marriage. You would know in advance that her decision would be "yes," even in advance of being asked to join you. The parent who hammers on filial duty is looking far ahead to exploit the principle; and I gather this isn't true of your mother.

I mention these things as straws in the wind, having hopeful import for you. They indicate that your mother is the easy and self-reliant sort of woman who probably will marry again, reasonably soon after you get settled. In the present set-up, with a grown daughter on her hands, she isn't quite as "marriageable" from a man's viewpoint, at her age, as she would be if domestically free to give him her whole attention.

Girl's Attitude Is Nicely Normal

MOREOVER, while she has your company in the home, she isn't nearly so disposed to marry again as she would be if on her own. For one thing, she lacks the drive of loneliness that ordinarily precipitates later-life marriages. And for another thing, she probably knows from experience that marriage is easier for husband and wife when children (or indeed any other close kin) don't have to be dealt with, around the clock, as an integral part of the domestic situation.

It seems to me that your concept of your problem reflects a healthy loving nature. That is to say, it is quite normal for a bride to want a home with her husband, apart from parents. But also it is equally normal of her to feel a solicitous dismay at the prospect of leaving a good mother completely uncompanioned. She would be a heartless daughter not to reflect soberly on that prospect, wondering how to redistribute her love most fairly.

For advice, if your mother is physically and socially qualified to be self-supporting at this time, I don't feel you are obligated to share your bride's-home with her. What you should do is gently state your tentative plan to get a small place for two; and sympathetically offer to help her in any way you can, in adjusting herself to living alone. Later, if she needs total care, it would be right to shelter her. But that day may never come; let's hope it doesn't. M. H.

MRS. RICHARD LEE Gleazu FLETCHER is the former Miss Lorraine Frances Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Francis Jones of Washington. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fletcher. The wedding took place last evening at St. Anthony's Church, the Rev. Raymond Decker officiating. Miss Jeanne Mueller was maid of honor, and David Zimmerman was best man. Slumping Posture May Be Sign of Child's Sagging Spirit

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

YOU'VE all known children who from childhood have seemed to slump and slouch as if their muscles were made of water. No matter what the mother did, or how often she exhorted the child to walk like a soldier and pull back his shoulders, he continued to hang his head and let his shoulders slump.

The child with a poor posture may need more than parental pleas to help him to stand up straight. These children need medical examinations to determine what is causing the muscles to be so weak and the bones to bow.

If there is no obvious physical reason for the way the child slumps, then some study should be made of the home environment. This refusal to look the world in the eye, this literal timidity which keeps the child's head bowed and his shoulders slumped may be indicative of an emotional situation.

Exercise is not the one answer to such a situation. In fact it may be no answer at all, as children cannot be interested in mechanical exercises and being driven to them may increase their sense of unfitness, or timidity.

Fun and play are the combinations which can keep the child physically active and the smart parent will introduce play apparatus to which the child will respond with vigor and do the exercises his weakened muscles may demand. A turning pole, some rings, a climbing apparatus, a swing—these will all help the posture in nature's own way . . . the fun of using them.

If the slumping is a sympton only of sagging spirits, then the whole environment needs to be examined and changed. Then the posture will take care of itself.

Everybody Likes Ice Cream.

By Harriet Jean Anderson

We have yet to discover the boy or girl, man or woman, who doesn't like ice cream — any flavor and with any topping.

Frozen fruit ices may be combined with ice cream—packed in thick layers in a double mold and frozen solid—for party meals.

Coconut Ice Cream Pie

2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sifted granulated sugar
½ cup finely chopped nut meats
½ teaspoon vanilla
Chocolate coconut ice cream

Beat egg whites with rotary egg beater until foamy. Add salt and cream of tartar and continue beating until mixture stands in soft peaks. Add sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture is very stiff. Fold in nuts and vanilla. Turn into slightly greased 8-inch pie pan and make a nestlike shell, building sides up to ½ inch above edge of pan. Bake in slow oven (300°F.) 50 to 55 minutes. Cool. Just before serving, fill with chocolate coconut ice cream and sprinkle with shredded coconut. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Chocolate Coconut Ice Cream

2 teaspoons plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1½ squares unsweetened chocolate
1 1/3 cups milk
2/3 cup sugar
Dash of salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup toasted shredded coconut

Combine gelatin with cold water and let stand 5 minutes. Add chocolate to milk and heat in top of double boiler over hot water, stirring constantly. Dissolve gelatin, sugar and salt in hot liquid. Chill until thickened. Fold in cream and vanilla. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze until partially frozen. Remove to chilled bowl and beat until smooth with chilled beater. Fold in toasted coconut. Freeze until firm. Yield: 1 quart.

Frozen Eggnog Pie

1/3 cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ envelope plain gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
2 tablespoons dark rum
1¾ cups heavy cream, whipped
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup powdered sugar
Chocolate crumb crust

Beat eggs, sugar and salt until light and lemon-colored. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened, about 12 minutes. Remove from hot water and beat with rotary beater until cool. Soften gelatin in cold water; dissolve over hot water. Add alternately with the rum to egg mixture, beating constantly. Fold in combined whipped cream, nutmeg, lemon juice an dpowdered sugar. Pour into 9-inch pie pan lined with a chocolate wafer crumb crust. Place in freezing compartment of refrigerator. Freeze overnight.

Chocolate Crumb Crust

Crumble chocolate wafers to make 1 cup finely-crushed crumbs and combine with 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ cup butter and 1 tablespoon water. Press firmly ⅛ inch thick on bottom of 9-inch pie pan and fit whole wafers around edge in over-lapping design.

Folks With Bumper Crop Of Tomatoes Can Make Italian-Style Paste at Home

TOMATO paste is widely sold in cans these days and received with increasing favor, especially for making Italian dishes. Now comes D. S., of Mt. Rainier, Md., with plans for putting up tomato paste in her own kitchen from tomatoes grown in her own garden.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you give me a recipe for making and canning tomato paste? I anticipate a bumber crop of tomatoes and would like to can them in this manner.

D. S., Mt. Rainier, Md.

ITALIAN TOMATO PASTE

1½ pecks (6 quarts) ripe tomatoes
3 teaspoons salt
1 large stalk celery, cut up with some leaves
¾ cup onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced (optional)
3 tablespoons fresh herbs or
1 tablespoon dried herbs
¾ teaspoon peppercorns
12 cloves
1 two-inch stick cinnamon

Simmer these ingredients until tomatoes are soft, stirring frequently. Put vegetables through a fine sieve. Simmer pulp over hot water or over direct heat with some means of protecting the bottom so that it will not scorch—an asbestos plate or something of the kind. Stir it frequently as it burns easily. After several hours, when pulp is thick, remove from range. Pour hot into clean hot jars. Process at once in pressure canner or cooker at 5 pounds for 10 minutes, or in a hot water bath for 35 minutes.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me if any stores in Washington or nearby Maryland sell the "knock-down" furniture described in the July number of the American Home?

Melba Barnes, Arlington, Va.

I don't know who carries this. Perhaps another reader can tell us. You might also write the manufacturer—or the American Home—asking the nearest store selling the furniture or where you can order it.

DEAR ANNE:

Is there anything which will remove baby formula stains from infant's clothing? I have used household bleach in soaking suds, but it was ineffective.

E. Dixon, 1530 16th st., nw., Washington.

This is another type of stain that should be treated soon after it's inflicted. Washing and ironing set the spots and they're just about impossible to remove.

Place an absorbent pad under the stain and sponge with carbon tetrachloride. Let it dry. If any stain remains, sponge with cold or barely warm water.

If this doesn't get rid of the spot entirely, use powdered pepsin, sold at some drug stores. Dampen stain with water, sprinkle on pepsin, let stand 30 minutes. Then brush away and sponge with clean water.

DEAR ANNE:

My sister and I plan to take a Fall vacation sometime in October (latter part) or early November and are in doubt as to how to dress for that time of year in Miami, Fla. Some persons have informed us that summer frocks are featured for evening wear, and others state that suits and fall dresses are worn.

R. R. and M. R., Washington.

It's pretty hot in Florida in October and early November—one of the loveliest times of year, natives say, after the September hurricane season is over and done with. Summer resort clothing will be quite appropriate, though dark sheers would not be amiss. Take a light coat to wear when the wind blows from the sea. You'll probably leave Washington in a suit and topcoat at that time of year, so you'll have these if the weather in Florida should turn unexpectedly cold.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me how to get a large spot of rubber cement out of a dress without injuring the fabric? P. L. T., Washington.

Rub petroleum jelly into the dried stain to loosen it. Then apply carbon tetrachloride or other cleaning fluid.

Green Beans For Freezing Should Snap

Here are directions for preparing green beans for home freezing, recommended by the Department's Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics:

Wash the beans thoroughly, using several waters if needed. Snip off the ends of beans. If beans are not to be packaged whole, cut them into 1 or 2 inch length.

Heating vegetables before freezing is a necessary step which helps to retain the food's flavor and color. Heat beans in boiling water. To hold the beans, use a fine wire basket that fits into a large covered kettle. It takes 2/3 to 1 pound of beans to fill a pint size container for freezing. So, put about one pound of beans in the wire basket and lower it into rapidly boiling water—at least a gallon—in the kettle. Put the kettle lid on, keep the heat high, and count 3 minutes heating time.

When time is up, quickly stop the cooking by putting the wire basket containing the beans into very cold water. Either cold running water or iced water is especially good for this. It takes about as long to chill a food as to heat it, so chill the beans for about 3 minutes. Then drain well and package beans for freezing without adding liquid.

Leave ½ inch headspace to allow for the beans to expand a little during freezing. Seal package as the manufacturer directs. Label, then freeze and store at 0. degrees F. or lower. Plan to use home-frozen beans within a year, because foods gradually lose quality in freezer storage.

Average Woman a 'Half-Pint'

U. S. Shorties Inspire New Fashion Industry

By Sam Dawson

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—An industry is being built up around the discovery that the average American woman is what the dress trade calls "a half pint."

She is said to be only slightly over five feet three—certainly not the tall and willowy beanpole for which the Paris creations are dreamed up.

Sixty-five percent of American women are five feet five, or under, our Government tells us. And a sizable number of these aren't exactly toothpicks.

Neither are they stylish stouts—a term usually reserved for the woman who is large in all directions. Nor are most of them the schoolgirl types for which misses' styles were primarily designed.

They are simply the not-so-tall-as-they'd-like, and the well-rounded average American women who have to watch how they dress to avoid looking dumpy—to quote the dress trade.

A small but growing segment of the women's wear trade is saying that suits and dresses should be designed, scaled and styled for this average woman—instead of just being cut down to fit.

One of the leaders in this movement, Murray Sicese of New York, claims he got the idea in the Army when he was detailed to outfit Wacs. He says the amount and costs of alterations were stupendous, because the uniforms had been designed for the above-average sized girl.

Agriculture Department Surveys the Crop

THE Department of Agriculture (which sometimes gets into rather unexpected studies of figures) looks at women this way: 65 percent are between 4 feet 9 and 5 feet 5; 33 percent are between 5 feet 5 and 5 feet 9; 1 percent are under 4 feet 9. (They and their slightly taller sisters are the ones at which the platform shoemaker aims); 1 percent are the ideal French mannequin type—described as 5 feet 9 or so, weight 120 pounds, waist 22 or 23, and a handful are in the really tall-girl class—who also have craftsmen devoted to their special problem of dress, and an entire if small industry built up around it.

Catering to the average, or in-between woman, as she's called in the trade, is paying off. To take two examples from a growing number of those who specialize in outfitting the half pints:

The Murray Sices Corp. of New York, which makes nothing but suits for the 4 foot 9 to 5 foot group, sold $300,000 worth its first year in 1945-46. Sices says this year's sales will be around six million dollars. The suits are styled to make wearers look slender and taller. Sices has some tricks of his own, as well as the usual ones of vertical stripes, no shoulder padding, and "not cutting the figure in two."

Stores 'Segregate' Plump Customers

HE also has a campaign on to change the attitude of stores. He wants them to stop segregating customers, that is, trying to shunt the small and the plumpish (who after all may be the average) into departments labeled for them.

"The secret in women's clothes," he says, "is women's vanity. They refuse to be seen in such departments. They buy the regulars and have them altered at great expense to the store."

He wants all sizes sold in the same departments without comment by the clerks, who would be trained to look at the customer and know at once what she needed. The idea is: she'll be happy with a "half-pint" suit, if you don't force her to notice the classification.

Another New York firm aimed at the same "in-betweeners" is the Superior Garment Co., which makes coats, as it says, "for the womanly woman"—not tailored for "fairybook ladies, but for actual averages scored in inches and fractions from wide-scale surveys of women as they are."

In the trade papers, the company's advertising slogan is: "The dame who took Samson was no toothpick!"

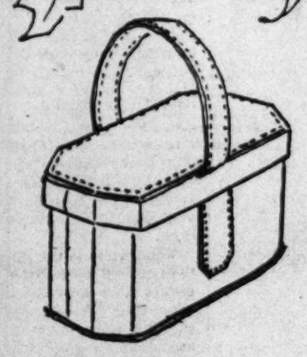
New-aspect Fall Bags



These Ronay Bags have the different look of fall '50. Some, as you can see for yourself, are imaginative variations on familiar themes, some are completely different . . . all are subtly elongated, have shorter handles, fascinating touches of "hardware." And, of course, they are made of Ronay's traditionally superior leather, which, with reasonable care, remains rich, supple and lustrous.

Little's Final Operas Are Packed With Gigli

By Paul Hume

"OPERA AT THE LITTLE" continues through Thursday.

The final double bill of the late summer singfest features Beniamino Gigli as singer and dramatic actor. Plenty of people would be surprised at such casting. It was never Gigli's luck to get rave notices for his acting when he sang in opera in this country.

But since he is cast as one of the world's greatest tenors in both films, who can say he does not act the part to perfection?

In "Non ti scordar di me" things are pretty sad. The title of the song means, "Don't forget me." A couple of hours of highly sentimental goings on is built on that little philosophy—nothing original, but it happens against a background of Italy, the Atlantic Ocean, the prewar liner Bremen and the world's better-known opera houses.

Gigli sings bits from plenty of operas. But the only aria he is allowed to complete on the sound track is "Di quella pira" from Trovatore. However, the film is decidedly for Gigli fans, or for any who love tenors.

And if you are looking for novelty, you will be interested to hear him in a short bit from Act One of Lohengrin. It's called "Merce, merce, cigno gentil." You have heard it more often as "Mein lieber Schwan," but it's the same music.

There are some favorite Italian songs in the show. The music gives it its best moments. Too bad there aren't more of them.

In the second show, Musica di Sogno, Gigli is at LaScala, singing with Mafalda Favero, in some of the best singing from La Boheme I have heard in years. But except for that short scene, he does not have much to do with the picture.

The rest of it is about a young composer whose opera doesn't get far for years. So he turns to writing jazz. He does this so much better that he makes piles of dough at it. Just when he's about to open his own revue and clean up, his old girl friend, now a star at La Scala, comes and gets him to conduct the premiere of the once-rejected opera.

The opera is given—it's a hit—he and she find love once more—and the revue is never put on—not even once. It's a shame, because the jazz is a lot better than the opera. Marta Harell does some fine singing in her boy friend's opera and there's a swell night-club routine when they rehearse the revue.

Well, Little, it's been nice hearing so much opera this month. My Italian has improved buckets.

House Group Votes To Ban Shipment Of Slot Machines

Without a dissenting vote, the House Rules Committee yesterday sent to the House floor the bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines.

The measure, passed unanimously by the Senate months ago, is likely to come up for House action next week, when similar approval is expected. The bill probably will have to go to conference because of changes made by the House Interstate Commerce Committee to limit the bill to the one-armed bandits.

Meanwhile, the Senate Crime Investigating Committee will have an open hearing at 10 a.m. today in the Senate Office Building with Warren Olney, 3d, counsel to the California Crime Commission, as the witness.

DEBRA PAGET is the pretty Indian girl James Stewart falls in love with in "Broken Arrow," and it's not hard to see why. The Technicolor story of how peace was effected between the Indians of the southwest and the white settlers begins Thursday at the Palace Theater

37 New Montgomery County Laws Include Controversial Library, Hospital Acts

Montgomery County today has 37 new laws.

The laws, enacted at the May legislative session of the Montgomery County Council, became effective automatically at midnight yesterday under Charter procedure since none of them was vetoed.

The council noted the event yesterday by issuing a statement on the controversial library bill, which it had refused to veto, and by naming a commission for Medical Care for Montgomery County as provided in another controversial bill.

Those appointed were Douglas West, 1540 East-West Hwy., Silver Spring; Mrs. Vestus Willcox, Laytonsville, and Herbert N. Eaton, 3 E. Inverness dr., Chevy Chase, Md.

The council also appointed others named by county groups: Ray G. Bergstrom, Silver Spring Hospital Association; Dr. J. W. Bird, Montgomery County General Hospital; Arthur G. Lambert, Suburban Hospital; Dr. John F. Brownsberger, Washington Sanitarium and Hospital; Dr. John G. Ball, Dr. Claude W. Mitchell and Dr. Katharine A. Chapman, Montgomery County Medical Society; Dr. William Welsh, Montgomery County Welfare Board; Dr. Dexter M. Bullard, Montgomery County Mental Hygiene Clinic.

The commission is charged with establishing "facilities for the care of medical and hospital needs in the county;" to recommend to the County Council before April 4, 1951, needs for public owned and operated hospitals or a plan for care of indigent persons requiring hospital or medical care.

The library bill, the council declared, will permit the local libraries of the county to participate in a county-wide library system, operated and supported by the county. It provides for appointment of a County Librarian.

Other new laws which became effective yesterday:

Provide for compilation of county laws, town and special taxing area and bi-county district laws into a Montgomery County Code 1950 to be printed and distributed by the county attorney.

Authorize sale of tax properties at private sale; permit banks to carry county deposits without pledging assets; provide for licensing public entertainment for profit; provide for a $1 fee by the director of finance for certifying payment or nonpayment of taxes.

Provide for removal of refuse from property where owner refuses to do so and prohibiting dumping of refuse on public or private land; authorize adoption of regulations for firearms and their use by minors; amend the volunteer fire department law to provide for administration by the county manager and county attorney.

Provide for annual compilation of laws affecting Montgomery County by the county attorney; provide for appointment of a jailer for the county jail and control of the jail by the county manager; prohibit occupation of unsanitary dwellings; regulate issuance of licenses and fees in connection with regulations adopted by the county council.

Exempt tangible personal property from the Silver Spring parking lot tax; authorize assessment of benefits against abutting property owners; regulate obstructions to vision at intersections; establish a Bethesda parking lot law; extend boundaries of Silver Spring business district.

Transfer to county manager authority to sell abandoned and stolen unclaimed vehicles; provide for impounding vehicles left on the public highways; extend jurisdiction of the juvenile court judge to include custody of children and naming a juvenile court committee; provide the form for petitions to amend the county charter; authorize issuance of bonds for schools, storm drainage, roads, bridges and a county building not to exceed $9,454,000; prohibit obscene language over the telephone; prohibit false reports to police; provide for regulation of door to door solicitors and salesmen; require a guest register at hotels and tourist homes; prohibit obstruction of streets without a permit; prohibit occupancy of unsafe habitations; provide that 5 percent instead of 10 percent of the voters be required to sign a petition for referendum on a law passed by the council.

Others repeal obsolete laws and provisions and make minor changes in wording.

3 in Family Found Dead After Flames Destroy Ship

Police believed the victims to be Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shapiro of Mount Royal, Quebec, and their son, Bernard, all unaccounted for when 397 passengers and 150 crew were taken off the burning ship last night.

Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the cruise ship, announced the finding of the bodies.

For Canada Steamship Lines this was the second cruise ship tragedy in 11 months. The Noronic burned at her Toronto pier last September 17 with loss of 119 lives.

Walsh Shows Up

Twice-a-Day Postal Action Set Today

REP. JOHN R. WALSH
. . . lunch on the run

By The Associated Press

Late, but not too late, a freshman Congressman showed up yesterday and brought up in the House a bill to restore twice-a-day mail deliveries.

That was the signal for some lively political cat-calling about whether lawmakers are sincere about wanting economy in Government.

Right from the start it looked as if there were votes to spare to cancel a cut in postal service ordered last April by Postmaster General Donaldson. But the actual decision was put off until today.

Representative John R. Walsh, Democratic first-termer from Indiana, was the man of the hour yesterday in the House. Under a complicated parliamentary situation, he and he alone could bring up the bill to wipe out Donaldson's economy order. And he had to do it yesterday. He did.

But Walsh had to fly in from Green Bay, Wis., and rush to the House floor. The House dawdled around for two-and-a-quarter hours waiting for him.

Walsh explained that he didn't know he had to be present in person. He made a speech. He said mail service has been inefficient, "a hit-and-miss proposition," since Donaldson's curtailment order. He said, no, he hadn't been pressured by postal employes to push the bill to cancel the order.

Then he hustled to the airport to catch a plane back to Green Bay and keep a speaking date last night.

He left Republicans and Democrats on the House floor in an old-fashioned argument about economy. Many Republicans were behind his bill—only a handful were against it on a test vote Monday.

Democrats figured they had the GOP over a barrel. They passed up no chances to whack away.

Earlier in this Congressional session, they pointed out, Republicans spearheaded assorted economy campaigns—some of which succeeded, like proposals for a blanket slash in nondefense spending and for leaving many Government jobs vacant.

Talks Stalled As Plaster Men Stage Walkout

The walkout of some 400 members of Local 571 of the Plasterers Tenders Union (AFL) entered its second day this morning, with no indications of a resumption of negotiations.

Meantime, Francis J. Kelly, attorney for the Employing Plasterers' Association, said the association has filed charges against the union with the National Labor Relations Board.

The charges, he said, are based on the local's alleged "refusal to bargain, specifically in striking within the 60-day period required under Taft-Hartley to terminate or modify a contract, and also for failing to give the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service the 30-day strike notice."

Leo Nazdin, president of Labor's District Council, said last night that the local has recommended that its attorney file "refusal-to-bargain" charges against the association.

Some nonassociation contractors, Nazdin said, already have signed with the local for a 25-cent hourly increase—15 cents for wages, 10 cents for a health and welfare fund—on a one-year agreement.

Before negotiations, the union's scale was $1.85 an hour. The union exercised a clause in its two-year contract providing for a reopening should economic conditions warrant it.

The union's latest demand at the negotiations called for the 25-cent increase—15 cents for wages, 10 cents for a health and welfare fund.

Arlington Pool Issue Challenged

Arlington County Treasurer John Locke Green yesterday filed notice in Arlington Circuit Court that he believes a recent referendum approving a $500,000 swimming pool bond issue is void.

Green said he will ask a declaratory judgment from the court September 8 on the validity of the referendum, which indorsed the bonds by a scant 35-vote margin.

In his "notice of motion," Green charged the referendum was not held in accord with the Virginia Code, because the vote was taken "during a primary election and under the supervision of primary party officials." He argued the code required the special bond referendum be held "in the same manner as regular elections."

He complained that only 4185 persons, out of 26,000 qualified Arlington County voters, cast ballots on the issue, and said "thousands of voters" did not vote because they did not wish to declare whether they were Democrats or Republicans.

He also argued that the ballots weren't printed as provided for in a special act of the 1950 Legislature, authorizing the referendum. Green explained to a reporter that he interpreted the act to require voting by hand ballot, on this particular issue. Arlington used voting machines for the first time in its history during the August primaries.

Pike Traffic Slowed by Donkey Cart

Baltimore, Aug. 15 (AP).—A stolid Vermonter touring the country in a donkey-drawn cart has had traffic tied in knots the past several days on busy Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

The travelers are 84-year-old C. A. Ferguson and his elderly donkey, Maud. They have been touring the United States for five years and left Washington last Saturday.

At their two-mile-an-hour pace they were nearing Baltimore today and Maryland State police will be glad when they clear the State.

Ferguson refuses to travel on the road side. He's an American citizen, he contends, and has a right to travel on the highway.

This has brought about several traffic snarls on the boulevard and near disaster for the two-wheeled, rubber-tired trailer in which he carries his possessions and living quarters.

Governor Lane Cites Veterans' Aid Measures

Baltimore, Aug. 15 (AP).—Governor Lane pointed today to 14 pieces of veterans' legislation and denied George P. Mahoney's attack on his policy toward former servicemen.

In a statement from his campaign headquarters Lane said, "a nonveteran could not be expected to be familiar with the legislation approved for the benefit of Maryland veterans during the four years of my administration.

"But as a candidate for Governor he should have informed himself concerning this legislation before attacking me in such reckless fashion."

The Governor noted he had signed 14 legislative acts improving the lot of Maryland former servicemen, including acts giving veterans preference in homesteads; tax exemptions for club houses, hospitals and other buildings built by veterans organizations; tax exemptions for property owned by paraplegic veterans; registration fee exemptions for automobiles owned by certain disabled veterans.

Other legislation listed by Lane included creation of a veterans housing commission and provision for the education of 16-23 year-old youths orphaned by the war.

Just Wanted to See People Killed, Boy Says

Versailles, Ind., Aug. 15 (AP).—A rail blockade that narrowly missed wrecking a fast passenger train was set by a 16-year-old youth who "just wanted to see people killed," State police said today.

John Petro, State police detective, said the boy admitted piling heavy lumber on a switch in Sunman, Ind. A New York Central bridge crew removed it a few minutes before the Carolina Special, bound from Chicago for Cincinnati, passed through last night.

Negro Sues To Get Into Maryland U.

Baltimore, Aug. 15 (AP).—A Negro today filed a suit seeking to compel the University of Maryland to admit him to its graduate school of sociology at College Park.

The 27-year-old student, Parren J. Mitchell of Baltimore, contended in his suit that the university has failed to pass on his application for admission solely because of his race. That, the suit contends, is a violation of both the Federal and State Constitutions.

The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled in a similar suit last April that the university must admit Miss Esther McCready, a Negro, to its school of nursing. The State is preparing to appeal that decision to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Women Voters Stage Skit

Need for revision of the Maryland State Constitution will be dramatized to night in a skit, "Alterations 1950," at 8:15 p. m. at the Potomac Elementary School in Montgomery County.

"A wonderful home,"

That's what everyone says

No wonder it has everything—13 closets, basement, garage, 2 baths, one large bedroom on 1st floor, two 13x24 bedrooms on 2d floor, an outstanding kitchen with breakfast space, a beautiful side screened porch that overlooks the countryside. Not a skimpy room in the house. A delightful location in Arlington, built of almost unbelievable seasoned materials. It has a nice large lot. At $26,950, we believe it ranks at the top in value.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

THE Statler Veranda is just what its name implies—a casual summer setting. It's being used while the Embassy Room is being redecorated.

Tables in the veranda are under huge striped awnings, fixed in the ceiling with lights in them. Lighting also comes from circles cut out in the ceiling, with indirect lighting behind. The place is as light as a summer day during the dinner hour. Venetian blinds covering one wall shut out the landscaped terrace and 16th st.

Mark Monte's Continentals reign from the bandstand. They are sleek and suave—all five of them. The New York Plaza has been their home for the past seven years, and still is, come fall opening time. They are sophisticated, soft-toned, unobtrusive, but with a definite rhythm and a flair of their own.

Monte is likable for his natural enthusiasm. While watching him on the stand, putting each number across with a grin, one wonders about his patience and his facial muscles. But it's genuine.

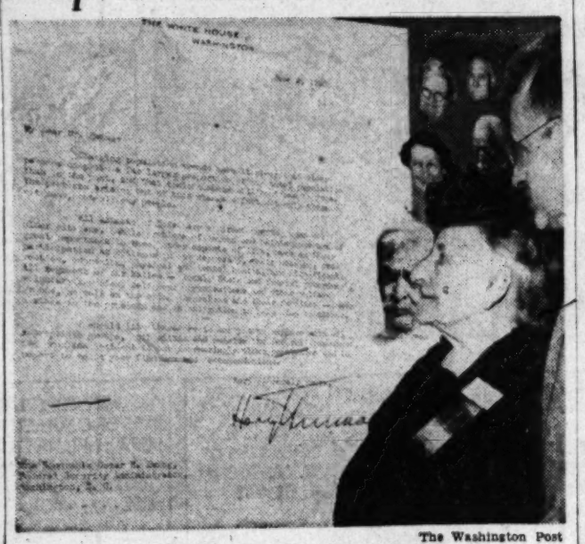
He explains his enthusiasm for Washington this way: "Have you ever walked into a restaurant and sat down and know that whether the food's good or bad, you're going to like it? You just feel comfortable there. That's the way I feel about Washington."

But while he likes Washington "the beautiful buildings and green trees everywhere," as he describes it—he's not happy about moving here because of his children. He has two young daughters who are used to the wide open spaces of their home on Long Island, and this is the first time he has transplanted them. It's not a good idea, he believes, and for that reason he has turned down offers in Hollywood. He got in plenty of traveling earlier in his career, though. Nat Brandywynne, Shep Fields, and Jan August are among the band leaders he worked with then.

The Veranda goes through the day in many different roles. The breakfast and luncheon schedule is the usual one. Lee Potter provides organ music for cocktail time, from five to seven. And from 7:30 till 9:30 Monte's Continentals play, but not for dancing. That way there's no 20 percent tax on early dinners. From nine till closing there are vocals and dancing.

BEAUTY and brains, though highly welcomed, are not at a premium at Normandy Farm and Water Gate In. The famous gals, noted for their intelligence as well as their loveliness, who have recently visited these spots, include Myrna Loy, Clare Boothe Luce and Eve Arden. Myrna Loy, now working with UNESCO, had such a lengthy chat with Normandy's Marjory Hendricks over their Red Cross experiences, that she was literally the last customer to leave—departing well after midnight.

National Agency to Aid Aged Proposed as Conference Ends



The Washington Post

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The Nation's experts on problems of the aging agreed here yesterday that some sort of a national agency is needed to handle the multiple problems of long living.

They did not go as far as proposing the creation of a Government agency for the purpose, though many agreed that something for old folk similar to the United States Children's Bureau is needed.

They did agree that one of the main problems of growing older—enforced retirement at a fixed age—should be supplanted by other standards, none of which is sufficiently well developed as yet to be acceptable.

1. All of the workers of the Nation should be covered by old age insurance benefits, not doles or old age assistance programs.

Research Urged

2. An extensive research program should be started to devise performance tests, physiological examinations and psychological test procedures to set up standards to replace fixed-age retirement.

3. A Research Council on Gerontology and an Institute of Gerontology are both immediate needs, and should be established to coordinate and encourage medical research on aging processes.

4. Mass, periodic health screening tests should be conducted to detect chronic diseases in their early stages to reduce the ravages of such killers of the aging human.

5. Housing programs which place more emphasis on the special needs of the aged should be developed.

6. Educational facilities are needed for the old folk, and those facilities now available for such a purpose need guidance on how to interest older persons to attend their classes.

One Deterrent

The recommendations will be transmitted in a full report of the three-day conference proceedings to President Truman, who asked the Federal Security Agency to promote the conference. Some 800 of the Nation's leading authorities in all fields concerned with aging attended the deliberations.

Commenting on the need to abolish fixed-age retirement systems, Dr. Philip M. Hauser, associate dean of the University of Chicago, told the delegates that there is at present "no acceptable substitute for chronologic age" in determining when a worker should retire.

Testing Standards

He urged the setting up of an extensive research program toward devising "adequate and satisfactory" testing standards whereby employers can determine when their workers should be retired or relieved of duties beyond their capacities.

One definite recommendation to supplement the conference's suggestion that social security be extended to provide old age insurance to all was advanced later by E. L. G. Zalinski, executive vice president of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Zalinski proposed revision of the Social Security Act to provide an incentive for persons over 65 to continue working. This could be done, he said, by amending the act to increase the primary benefit due at age 65 by 4 percent for each year the worker continues employment beyond 65.

No tax would be paid by either employe or employer for those who continue to work beyond 65, Zalinski said.

Such amending of the act, he said, "would encourage the worker to stay on the job, and offer an inducement for his employer to retain his services."

Science Finds Cure for Rats Turning Gray

Nutrition scientists of Public Health Service, they were told, have succeeded in restoring gray hair to its natural color and preventing balding—in rats.

Whether the same measure—adding copper to the diet—will similarly succeed with humans is still the great unknown.

Dr. Nathan Shock, a member of the conference's section on aging research, divulged the laboratory development in discussing progress of nutrition studies under way at PHS laboratories, in Bethesda, Md.

Working with black rats, Dr. Hundley fed them a diet rich enough in calories and vitamins to develop normal growth. The animals, however, began to show gray hair, some as early as 10 days after the diet was begun. After five to six weeks marked graying had really developed, he said.

The experimenters, using the same diet augmented by copper, found that black hair in the graying rats began to reappear after about five days. By the end of three months the restoration was complete, except in extremely advanced cases, Dr. Hundley reported.

Liver and seafood, they pointed out, are rich in copper.

Too Many Females Emphasize 'Success'

(Reprinted through the courtesy of the Atlantic Monthly, in the August issue of which these articles initially appeared.)

By Agnes E. Meyer

CHAPTER THREE

Another fallacy about women which is receiving far too much currency is the accusation that they have lost the adventurous spirit of "their older sisters" who battled successfully against male domination. Agnes Rogers recently wrote an article in Harper's magazine and a similar one in the American Scholar deploring the fact that women are only too often content with minor positions in the business world. "Their willingness to accept the status of useful but humble cog in an enterprise directed by men is baffling to me," she said. She wants them to conquer their "humility and lack of confidence."

Now I fail to see any exaggerated humility in modern women. On the contrary, I find too much emphasis on success and too little upon service. In my opinion, humility is the greatest possible asset in any human being, particularly in women. True, humility is the understatement of a powerful personality. It is innocence triumphant, which Emerson has described as "the most powerful critic of all that passes through its alembic." It is the ability to understand reality as it confronts us. This ability, so characteristic of woman's inherent personality, to adjust herself to outward circumstances, to the husband in marriage, to the employer and fellow workers in business and industry, is not a sign of weakness but of strength. The woman who tries to control situations by force and by aggressively overplaying her hand in every human relation is the weak woman trying to overcompensate for her weakness.

Aggressive, Frustrated Women

These are the worried, restless, immature females who complain bitterly that there are not enough women in high executive positions in the business world and in Government. These aggressive, frustrated women actually make the role of woman in business and public life more difficult because more suspect. They are precisely the female types under whom neither women nor men want to work. The balanced, mature woman who knows her inner worth does not run around the world complaining of the injustice of men. She is quietly expanding her area of influence. This wise, subtle, and effective type of woman meets with appreciation wherever she is active, not because she is demanding recognition, but because her gifts are recognized as extremely rare and invaluable. If I were asked to define the principal quality of such exceptional women, I should say that it is the capacity to accept the triumphs of life without pride and the sufferings of life without despair. The wisdom of these truly feminine and humane personalities is summed up in the words of St. Paul to the Philippians: "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound."

Cooperation Is Needed

But youth is only too apt to think that it has to be aggressive if it is to make its way in our competitive society. That is untrue for women, whether young or old. The Chinese poet Tu Fu expressed sublimely the natural aspirations of womanhood in a warring world when he wished for huge wings that could be stretched out over all sensitive, suffering humanity. What the world needs today is not more competition but woman's native genius for sympathetic cooperation. Competition is so acute because society has crumbled and left the individual atomized and unprotected. Unless we women succeed in modifying this competitive spirit through more effective cooperation between public and private endeavor, between management and labor, between the contending religious sects, between the family and the community, between one individual and another, then there is little hope for our democratic civilization. This is women's great opportunity—to ease the acute and dangerous tensions of American life.

Must Learn Self-Respect

I am not asking women to overdo self-sacrifice to a point of self-abasement. We all know extreme feminine types who use this masochistic weapon not out of a desire to serve, but to conquer and subdue their victims. Women must learn to keep self-respect and self-sacrifice, the social and the biological functions, in balance. Such women have the most friends because they defend their own personalities while giving free play to the expansion of other personalities. Those are the women who are called blessed because they constitute the happiness of their families and of the whole community.

Such women, moreover, are not concerned with the modern cry for equal rights because they are too sure of themselves and of what they have to give to the world. They seek not parity but partnership with men.

Women have been tempted to put too much emphasis on equal rights because the slogan was used by some admirable pioneers who won us the vote, equal pay for equal work, and other desirable objectives. In many respects, however, the cry for equal rights has been a pernicious doctrine, especially in two areas, those of sex and of marriage.

Five-a-Week

Kate Smith Plotting TV Show for Fall

By Syd Kronish

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (AP).—Kate Smith will do a five-a-week afternoon television show this fall for NBC.

The hour-long "Kate Smith Show" will be televised Mondays through Fridays, spearheading the network's entrance into afternoon television programming.

KATE SMITH

Kate will be mistress of ceremonies on the programs, which will include guest stars, dramatic sketches, interviews and—naturally—songs by Kate Smith herself.

For nearly 20 years she has been a top name in radio and this show will mark her entrance into the video field.

Ted Collins, the man responsible for calling the Nation's attention to Miss Smith's talent, will also appear on the new TV series as producer and announcer. He did the same chore on Kate's radio programs in the past.

She is still heard over MBS daily at noon.

On the dial . . . Don Ameche is being auditioned for a possible radio audience-participation show for NBC this fall . . . "Dimension-X," the science fiction program heard over NBC, receives more fan mail from children than any other show on that network.

"GOOD afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. This is Al Helfer, with Art Gleeson, bringing you Mutual's baseball game of the day."

Folks listening to 387 radio stations throughout the country hear these words nearly every day in the week—and are taking hefty Al and baseball to their hearts.

While at Yankee Stadium last week with Al, I perused the contents of a few pieces of mail. All were complimentary. The postmarks on the envelopes were from such widespread places as Monroe, La., Miami, Fla., and Great Falls, Mont.

One letter was from Capt. Stephen Abbott, United States Army, retired, now living in Randleti, Utah. Captain Abbott said how much he enjoyed the programs and then told how he played on the West Point baseball team back in 1902 with Douglas MacArthur.

"Country" Helfer is a big 235-pound guy from West Virginia. A former star athlete at Washington and Jefferson, he has been broadcasting all kinds of sports for nearly 20 years.

But the "game of the day" itinerary is far different from anything Al has ever done previously. Every day Al is in a different major league city, flying to reach his destination on time. So far this year he estimates he has traveled about 75,000 miles.

MAN'S best friend, along with other assorted pets, receives his due on Animal Clinic, Midwest TV series which will make its debut on the ABC television network Saturday at 11 a. m.

Featuring a licensed veterinarian, Dr. Wesley A. Young, as master of ceremonies, the half-hour program is built around regular clinical treatment sessions conducted by Dr. Young, head of the Anti-Cruelty to Animals Society in Chicago for the past 14 years. Lois Gill assists Dr. Young in the sessions. Live animals are used to demonstrate the care and feeding of pets.

George Gallup, public opinion analyst, and Virgilia Peterson, book reviewer, will spar as pro and con critics of Look magazine when the publication is examined on the ABC (WMAL) telecast of Author Meets the Critics tonight at 8:30 p. m. Woodrow Wirsig, newly named executive editor of Look, will be in the role of author during the review of the semimonthly picture magazine.

Wednesday's Greater Washington Radio Programs

WRC-9:30—Miss Jane Lingo, daughter of Comdr. B. Harrison Lingo, and Richard Skinner of the Olney Theater discuss the summer theater.

WQQW-10—Symphony No. 4 by Robert Schumann, and Peer Gynt Suite No. 2 by Edvard Grieg are featured on Morning Symphony.

WCFM-6—United Nations this week presents a transcribed program, "The West Answers Russian Propaganda at the United Nations," with voices of American, Russian, British and French delegates.

WTOP-7—A series of dances, musically executed on Columbia Pops Concert, include Rose's "Dance of the Spanish Onion," a "Harlem Square Dance," Pucci's "Danza Campera," and an Albeniz tango.

WWDC—WASH-FM-8:25—Baseball: New York plays Washington from Griffith Stadium.

WTOP-9:30—Singers Richard Hayes and Toni Arden, plus disk jockeys Bob Clayton of Boston, Mass., and Dick Gilbert of Phoenix, Ariz., are guests on the ABC's of Music.

KID STUFF

"That's the wishbone, Tommy," I said to a 5-year-old neighbor lad the other day. "Aren't you going to make a wish over it?"

"I wish," said Tommy earnestly, "that there was some chicken left on it."

THIS IS WASHINGTON

Street Scene: Car with New York tags in the streetcar tunnel portion of the Dupont Circle underpass, with a motorman angrily clanging his bell to further bewilder the luckless driver.

PET PEEVE

Mrs. K. J. Roos of 3705 S. 9th st., Arlington, Va., is getting pretty weary of having people smash into the family car while it's parked, and then drive off without identifying themselves.

Last year a door and a fender were wrinkled. This year, with a new convertible to shoot at, the hit-and-run artist again left a mashed door and fender behind. And, as Mrs. Roos points out:

"Most people carry insurance against damaging the other fellow's car. All it would cost them would be a minute of time to leave a note for the owner of the damaged auto."

Yep—but when they slink away in the night, they pay a far bigger price. For months they worry every time somebody rings the doorbell, for fear it's the police with a warrant for leaving the scene of an accident without making a report.

APPROPRIATE?

"In every circle, and truly at every table, there are people who know when and through what pass Macedonia should be entered; When it is proper to engage the enemy, when to lie quiet. And they not only determine what is best to be done, but if anything is done in any manner they arraign the Consul, as if he were on trial before them.

"If, therefore, anyone thinks himself qualified to give advice respecting the war which I am to conduct, let him not refuse his assistance to the State, but let him come with me into Macedonia.

"He shall be furnished with a ship, a horse, a tent; even his traveling charges shall be defrayed.

"But if he thinks this is too much trouble, and prefers the repose of a city life to the toils of war, let him not, on land, assume the office of a pilot.

"The city furnishes an abundance of topics for conversation; let it confine its passion for talking within its own precincts, and rest assured that we will pay no attention to any councils but such as shall be framed within our camp."

SOUND EXPLANATION

The sound track of practically every film these days carries an orchestra which saws away relentlessly, regardless of whether the actors are at the moment wrestling with their consciences, singing, talking, sleeping or fighting. Especially fighting.

The latest is that the Roxy Theater is going to replace its stage show with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, in person.

The music will no doubt be excellent. But movie fans may have some difficulty in catching on to the idea.

Johnson Aides Win Few Friends

By Tom McNamara and Jack Anderson

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, his column will be written by members of his staff. —Editor's note.)

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's sagging public relations haven't been helped by the bad manners of some of his military aides, who seem to enjoy getting in people's hair.

Gen. Renfrow

A classic example occurred when Baseball Commissioner "Happy" Chandler recently called on Johnson to offer the services of baseball to the war effort. He was met in the outer sanctum by Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow.

Renfrow mumbled officiously that he had sent for a personnel procurement officer to "sit in on" the conference with Johnson.

Then, in a painful attempt at humor, the general added: "After all, he's the fellow whose shoulder you'll have to cry on."

The insinuation that Chandler might be seeking special favors—such as deferments for ball players—burned him to a crisp. Trying to contain his anger, he shot back:

Renfrow mumbled something that sounded like an apology.

'Old-Fashioned' Ideas

Young Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., 36 years old, and twice married, was speaking before a New York State meeting at which 74-year-old Lieut. Gov. Joe Hanley was also present.

F. D. R., jr., had devoted part of his speech to twitting Hanley, who is scheduled to be the Republican candidate for Governor—unless Dewey is drafted to run for a third term.

"Governor Hanley is a fine man," said Franklin, "but just a little bit old-fashioned." And he continued to harp on Hanley's old-fashionedness with the indirect implication that he was too old.

When it came Hanley's turn to speak, he met FDR's ribbing with this immediate comeback:

"Yes," he said, "I may be a little old-fashioned. In fact, I am so old-fashioned that I have lived for 49 years with the same wife."

Military Transportation

With military personnel on the move across the country, the railroads are grabbing the lion's share of the business. This is no accident, but by written agreement with the Defense Department.

It's not that train travel is cheaper. Railroads give a 10 percent military discount, but so do the airlines. In fact, air travel is often more economical, considering the meals and Pullman charges that are added to the railroad fare. Buses are even cheaper, though perhaps more inconvenient.

When we asked the Defense Department to explain this preference for railroads, a spokesman replied untruthfully: "It is not by virtue of any agreement that the railroads get the bulk of military passenger traffic."

Secretary of Defense Johnson promised last year to reconsider this policy, yet renewed the same old agreement on July 1.

Note—In practice most long-distance military passengers travel by Pullman, which allows no discount for berths. While no one objects to giving our troops the best accommodations, it would be cheaper and quicker in many cases for them to fly.

'Tarzaneyetus' Epidemic

Dr. George Calver, the Capitol physician, was mystified when Congressman Tom Steed of Oklahoma reported an epidemic of "Tarzaneyetus" in Congress. "Don't get excited, Doc," the Oklahoman explained. "That's just eye fatigue watching our colleagues swinging from so many limbs—like Tarzan.

Salary Rift Denied By Atomic Commission

A spokesman for the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday contradicted a statement in the Drew Pearson's column of last Saturday reporting that one of the reasons Carroll Wilson quit as Atomic Energy Commission manager was because he was making $3000 less than the deputy manager.

Wilson was paid $15,000 a year, and the deputy manager, Carl Shugg, $18,000.

The spokesman said it was Wilson who selected Shugg, then AEC's Hanford operations manager, for the deputy post, and insisted that Shugg continue to receive his Hanford salary even though it was higher than the salary of the AEC manager.

$500,000 Slander Suit Filed by Drew Pearson

Columnist Drew Pearson filed a $500,000 slander suit against California Attorney General Frederick Napoleon Howser in District Court yesterday.

Pearson charged that on April 6, Howser in a conversation with two men in Santa Rosa, Calif., "caused it to be believed that Plaintiff (Pearson) had been guilty of the crime of subornation of perjury."

Last year, Howser sued Pearson for $300,000 libel damages, claiming that Pearson had made statements which linked Howser to gambling. The suit is still pending.

Pearson said that the alleged slander had injured his good name, had brought him "into disgrace," and had lessened the value of his news articles and commentaries. Pearson said that his reputation for "accuracy and integrity" constituted a business asset.
